Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MMI 160. Ensemble Recording Workshop I. 3 Credit Hours.

Assisting recording and sound reinforcement engineers in the assigned performance ensemble in both rehearsal and performance. Students also perform in a studio ensemble where they act as both recording engineer and musician.

Requisite: Plan of MUE or MEC.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 161. Ensemble Recording Workshop II. 3 Credit Hours.

Students are responsible for the audio needs of an assigned ensemble in both rehearsal and performance. Lectures address audio equipment and practices. Students also perform in a studio ensemble where they act as the recording engineer and musician. Open to MUE majors only.

Prerequisite: MMI 160. Requisite: Plan of MUE or MEC.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 171. Music Engineering Laboratory. 1 Credit Hour.

Requisite: MBEI Or MBEC Majors Or MBEI Minors only.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MMI 172. Audio Design Workshop III. 1 Credit Hour.

Digital audio system design and architecture including analog-digital conversion, digital I/O hardware specifications, audio effects processors and digital audio recorder alignment techniques. Students design and troubleshoot audio projects including A/D converters, S/PDIF I/O, and DAT recorders. Open to MUE and EAN Majors only.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 173. Introduction to the Music Business. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides students with an overview of the music business and related entrepreneurial fundamentals. Music business topics explored include copyright, publishing, the record business, licensing, the live music industry, and arts administration. Entrepreneurial topics explored include starting a business, accounting and marketing basics, and securing funding.

Requisite: MBEI Or MBEC Majors Or MBEI Minors only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 178. Entertainment Industry Survey. 3 Credit Hours.

An overview of the entertainment industry. Concentration on the legal, marketing and financial aspects of different areas of the industry including film, television, music, broadcasting, cable, publishing, video games, sports, performing arts, and theme parks.

Requisite: MBEI Or MBEC Majors Or MBEI Minors only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 201. Introduction to Music Recording. 3 Credit Hours.

An overview study of the theory and practice of music recording, with emphasis on modern recording studio practices. Topics include physics of sound, psychoacoustics, studio design, microphones, loudspeakers, consoles, signal processing, digital audio, MIDI, and synchronization.

Requisite: Must have a plan of MUE or MEC or EAN.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MMI 207. Skills Lab III: American Song Traditions. 1 Credit Hour.

A learning ensemble focusing on the various Anglo-American song traditions from English and Irish folk ballads, through Hymnodies, Old-Time, Bluegrass, Western Swing and Newgrass.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MMI 208. Skills Lab IV: American Song Traditions. 1 Credit Hour.

A learning ensemble focusing on the various African-American song traditions from early plantation songs, shouts, hollers, and spirituals, to the development of blues traditions, to gospel.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 240. Experiential Musicianship III. 3 Credit Hours.

The study of melodic, harmonic and rhythmic language in jazz and contemporary music using analysis and aural dictation. MMI 207 Skills Lab III, keyboard lab accompanies this course.

Corequisite: MMI 207 SKILLS LAB III.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MMI 241. Experiential Musicianship IV. 3 Credit Hours.

The continuation of MSJ 140/MMI 240 focused on the study of the diminished chord, extensions, modes and upper structure triads. A keyboard lab accompanies this course.

Corequisite: MMI 208 SKILLS LAB IV.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 250. Essential Technologies for Musicians. 3 Credit Hours.

Basic MIDI and digital audio principles from set-up to final mix, recording of live Instruments using basic microphone techniques, MIDI sequencing, software synthesizers, basic editing, and audio looping.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: DIL.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 273. Artist Development and the Live Entertainment Industry. 3 Credit Hours.

Views of the live entertainment industry from the perspective of the performing artist, artist manager, talent agent, attorney, and concert promoter. Consideration is given to the interpersonal, business, and contractual relationships and their impact on the performing artist's career. Strategies for career development are addressed and the ground rules of publicity, public relations, and promotion explored and applied in practical situations through special individual and team projects.

Prerequisites: MMI 173 or MMI 178 or MMI 310. Requisite: MBEI and MBEC majors and MBEI minors only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 274. Introduction to Music Copyright Law. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides a study of the current U.S. copyright law as it applies to musical compositions and sound recordings. This course includes analysis of the modern practices of music licensing for both digital and physical uses as well as copyright acquisition. Students will study the various rights of the copyright owner, what can be protected by copyright, and the duration of copyright. They will learn the formalities of music copyright including registration and notice. Current music copyright infringement cases are reviewed along with defenses to infringement and remedies for infringement. The course also covers international copyright protection and music copyright as it applies to digital technologies and distribution.

Requisite: MBEI Or MBEC Majors Or MBEI Minors only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 307. Skills Lab V: American Pop. 1 Credit Hour.

A learning ensemble focusing on American Popular Music from the late-1950s to the late-1970s. Students will develop a portfolio of original songs in modern American styles.

Components: ENS.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MMI 308. Skills Lab VI: American Pop. 1 Credit Hour.

A learning ensemble focusing on American Popular Music from the 1980s to the present. Students will develop a portfolio of original songs in modern American styles.

Components: ENS.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 310. Music Business and Entrepreneurship for Musicians. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides students with an overview of the music business and related entrepreneurial fundamentals. Music business topics explored include copyright, publishing, the record business, licensing, the live music industry, and arts administration. Entrepreneurial topics explored include starting a business, accounting and marketing basics, and securing funding.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 315. Contemporary Songwriting I. 3 Credit Hours.

Explores modern songwriting techniques, song lyric theory, song form, melodic development, pop harmony and rhythm & grooves. Students will analyze a variety of recordings by top modern songwriters. Students will compose and record a number of original songs for the course.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 320. Contemporary Lyric Writing. 3 Credit Hours.

This course explores modern lyric writing techniques, song lyric theory, and song form. Students will analyze a variety of lyrics by top modern songwriters, focusing on their use of literary devices, imagery and metaphors. Students will compose a number of original lyrics for the course.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MMI 361. Acoustics. 3 Credit Hours.

A study of the theoretical principles of acoustics. Principle topics include basic properties, acoustical phenomena, superposition, Fourier Theorem, symmetry, vibrating strings and columns, and musical instruments; a study of architectural acoustics such as growth and decay, absorption coefficients, normal modes, diffusion, isolation, and mass law; design applications such as structural techniques and materials, live end-dead end, room geometry, tuning, TDS and other measurement techniques.

Prerequisites: MTH 112, PHY 102 or PHY 205. Requisite: Plan of MUE and MEC.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MMI 378. Music Business Agreements. 3 Credit Hours.

This course explores the legal agreements between different parties in the music business, such as record companies, recording artists, music producers, and licensees. Emphasis is placed on the different ways of contractually addressing intellectual property ownership and usage, compensation, and exclusive services.

Prerequisite: MMI 173 or MMI 178 or MMI 310 and MMI 274. Requisite: MBEI and MBEC Majors and MBEI Minors only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 401. Audio Electronics. 3 Credit Hours.

An introductory course in audio electronics theory and professional audio applications such as recording studio equipment and audio effects design. Coursework includes basic electronic components and theories, passive filtering, transformers, operational amplifiers, vacuum tubes, non-linear elements including diodes and JFETs, graphic, parametric and shelving equalizers, compressors, limiters, gates, microphone preamps, analog effects including reverb, flanging, and chorusing. Students will design custom audio circuits and use computer simulations to understand theory of operation.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MMI 410. Music Engineering Capstone Project. 3 Credit Hours.

Students in MMI 410 propose and execute a project that represents the Culmination of their learning experiences in the Music Engineering Program. Students meet as a group with a faculty member of record each week to Discuss project topics and assess progress. The course concludes with a public Presentation of the final project.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 436. Audio Postproduction. 3 Credit Hours.

Basic audio for video and film postproduction, including the study of time code, synchronization, electronic editing, video and film transports, dolby stereo, equipment interfacing, and future developments.

Prerequisite: MMI 201 and Requisite: MUE and EAN Majors.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 445. Senior Project/Portfolio. 1 Credit Hour.

This course is the capstone of the Creative American Music Program. Students will develop a portfolio of recordings of original songs. Students will also be required a public performance of their original songs.

Requisite: must have a major Plan of MBEI with Creative American Music & Business or a minor Plan of Creative American Music.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 454. Entertainment Industry Practicum. 1 Credit Hour.

Practical experience in an entertainment industry organization.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 455. Music Business Internship. 2 Credit Hours.

Practical experience in different areas of the music business under the supervision of professional firms and the university.

Requisite: MBEI or MBEC or MADE Majors.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 456. Internship in Entertainment Industries II. 0 Credit Hours.

Continuation of MMI 455.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

MMI 460. Recital Recording and Sound Reinforcement (Recording Services). 1 Credit Hour.

Practical experience in live concert recording, editing and mastering, and sound reinforcement, under supervision of professional on-campus engineers.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 465. Internship in Music Engineering. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Practical experience in the music engineering industry such as work in a recording studio, broadcast company, hardware or software manufacturer, under professional supervision.

Requisite: Plan of MUE or MEC.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

MMI 493. Special Projects in Music Media and Industry. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Advanced individual instruction pertaining to faculty member's area expertise and student's area of interest. This course includes a culminating project.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: IND.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

MMI 494. Special Topics in Music Media and Industry. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Advanced group/classroom instruction pertaining to faculty to faculty member's expertise and students' areas of interest.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

MMI 501. Transducer Theory. 3 Credit Hours.

Course covers the fundamentals of electromagnetism and audio transducer theory including loudspeaker and microphone systems. Classical electro-acoustical analysis of transducers including acoustic suspension, bass-reflex, transmission line, electrostatic and horn loudspeakers, dynamic, ribbon and condenser pressure, and pressure-gradient microphones. Students use computer-aided design programs and Thiele-Small parameterization to model loudspeakers and measure loudspeaker responses. Open to MUE and EAN Majors only.

Prerequisite: MMI 501. Requisite: Plan of MUE and EAN.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 502. Audio Signal Processing I. 3 Credit Hours.

A study of the theory and practice of digital audio topics including discrete time sampling, quantization, dithering, PCM, A/D and D/A conversion, digital filtering, oversampling, modulation codes, timebase, error correction codes, magnetic storage, DAT, and optical storage.

Requisite: MUE and EAN majors only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MMI 503. Audio Signal Processing II. 3 Credit Hours.

A study of the theory and practice of digital audio topics including fiber optics and networks, compact disc, interconnection, psychoacoustics, low bit-rate perceptual coding, MPEG, digital audio broadcasting, sigma-delta conversion, noise shaping, digital video, and emerging technologies. Open to MUE and EAN Majors only.

Prerequisite: MMI 502. Requisite: Plan of MUE and EAN.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 504. Audio Signal Processing III. 3 Credit Hours.

Theory, design, and development of computer audio synthesizers and analyzers. Students implement software synthesizers including analog and physical modeling, wave-table, wave-shaping, and FM designs. Classical and modern theories of timbre and time-frequency analysis are included.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

MMI 505. Current Trends in Music Engineering I. 3 Credit Hours.

Theory, design and development of audio signal processing techniques. Topics include DSP architectures, systems design, algorithm development, and applications. DSP development tools used to write, debug, and test programs including time-domain based effects such as reverb, chorus, flanging, and digital delay as well as frequency-domain projects such as FIR, IIR, and FFT filters and vocoders.

Prerequisite: MMI 504. Requisite: Plan of MAU and EAN.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 506. Current Trends in Music Engineering II. 3 Credit Hours.

MMI 506 addresses current technologies, skills, and techniques employed in a specific aspect of the audio technology and/or music technology fields.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

MMI 508. Current Trends in Music Engineering III. 3 Credit Hours.

MMI 508 addresses current technologies, skills, and techniques employed in a specific aspect of the audio technology and/or music technology fields.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

MMI 510. Computational Psychoacoustics. 3 Credit Hours.

This course deals with the fundamentals of audition in human biological systems, including auditory sensory transduction, cochlear processes, neural pathways, cortical organization, and auditory illusions, with specific applications to perceptual data reduction techniques and auditory displays.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

MMI 511. Current Trends in Music Engineering IV. 3 Credit Hours.

MMI 511 addresses current technologies, skills, and techniques employed in a specific aspect of the audio technology and/or music technology fields.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

MMI 520. Audio Technology for Musicians. 3.00 Credit Hours.

Introduction and overview of audio technology with emphasis on music recording, production equipment, and techniques. Topics include microphones, loudspeakers, mixing consoles, interconnection, amplifiers, digital processing, time code, and surround sound. Open to non-MUE majors.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

MMI 521. Timbral Ear Training. 3 Credit Hours.

Students in this course will accomplish four primary goals: 1) instantaneous discernment of ISO frequency regions and critical bands; 2) aural identification of audio-processing techniques, artifacts, and problems; 3) development of critical thinking skills and competence in current audio listening test methodologies; and 4) successful completion of a comprehensive bank of critical listening "golden ears" tests

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

MMI 530. Entrepreneurship for Musicians. 3 Credit Hours.

Course explores a wide range of options for musicians who want to pursue music business careers in their regional music markets. Students examine opportunities in performance, recording, composition, education, and more. Emphasis is placed on the packaging of musical skills in the marketplace and on the financial management of a small proprietary music business. As a result, the student musician will be prepared to make career decisions with foresight and planning.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: DIL.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 531. Recording Engineering Seminar. 3 Credit Hours.

Students in MMI 531 will accomplish three primary goals: 1) understanding historical trends in the audio recording industry, particularly those involving key technological advances; 2) understanding and appreciating recent advances in sound recording technologies and methods; and 3) development of critical thinking, research, writing, and presentation skills.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

MMI 532. Arts Leadership. 3 Credit Hours.

Course explores critical concepts of leadership, decision-making, and teamwork in wide-ranging arts presentation settings. Through experiential learning, students practice and acquire the knowledge and skills vital for effective navigation through the dynamic arts industry.

Requisite: MBEI or MBEC or MADE Majors.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 537. Recorded Music Operations. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides a study of the activities involved in commercially exploiting recorded music. The course includes an analysis of activities involved in the production, manufacturing, distribution, and marketing of a recorded music product; as well as related royalty accounting, mechanical licensing and master-use licensing activities.

Prerequisite: MMI 173 or MMI 310 and MMI 274 and Requisite: MBEI or MBEC or MADE Majors.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 543. Music Marketing. 3 Credit Hours.

Students learn how to fulfill demand and influence consumer behavior through effective marketing techniques. The course provides the students with information on the latest technologies being employed to reach and communicate with target consumers.

Requisite: MBEI or MBEC or MADE Majors.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 545. Music Placement and Exploitation. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides an in-depth study of the creative and business aspects involved with the discovery, placement and exploitation of music in the current entertainment business. Students explore the processes of how music is placed in television, film, commercials, video games, with new media and recording artists. This course covers the roles of the various players in the music placement business and studies creative approaches, negotiation techniques and licensing practices. The DIY music creator, both the songwriter and recording artist, and their music representative will learn how to prepare, package, present, place and exploit their music as well as how to build a fan base. Students will learn how to locate resources for licensable music, offer creative options, select and license appropriate music, combine music with a variety of media, negotiate with a variety of rights holders, and generate license requests, agreements, and cue sheets.

Prerequisite: MMI 173 or MMI 310 and MMI 274 and MMI 573 or Requisite: MBEI or MBEC or MADE Majors.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MMI 573. Music Publishing. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides an in-depth study of the creative and business aspects, concepts and practices of the music publishing industry. The course covers the acquisition, exploitation, administration and protection of songs in the contemporary music publishing business. Students will also study the income sources, royalty rates and payment procedures currently used in the music industry as they apply to musical compositions. Music publishing agreements currently used for the acquisition and administration of songs are reviewed in-depth. Foreign music publishing issues are explored and reviewed as related to domestic music publishing.

Prerequisite: MMI 173 or MMI 310 and MMI 274 and Requisite: MBEI or MBEC or MADE Majors.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

MMI 580. Advanced Analysis of Current Topics in the Music Business. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides students with in-depth study of advanced topics in the music business, including recent developments in the areas of music licensing, copyright, international markets, live music, artist development, data management, and others. Particular focus is placed on ways to meet the current challenges facing the industry.

Requisite: MBEI Or MBEC Or MADE Majors Or MBEI Minor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MMI 593. Special Projects in Music Media and Industry. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Advanced individual instruction pertaining to faculty member's area expertise and student's area of interest. This course includes a culminating project.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: IND.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

MMI 594. Special Topics in Music Media and Industry. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Advanced group/classroom instruction pertaining to faculty to faculty member's expertise and students' areas of interest.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

MMI 601. Transducer Theory. 3 Credit Hours.

Course covers the fundamentals of electromagnetism and audio transducer theory including loudspeaker and microphone systems. Classical electroacoustical analysis of transducers including acoustic suspension, bass-reflex, transmission line, electrostatic and horn loudspeakers, dynamic, ribbon and condenser pressure, and pressure-gradient microphones. Students use computer-aided design programs and Thiele-Small parameterization to model loudspeakers and measure loudspeaker responses. Open to MUE and EAN Majors only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 602. Audio Signal Processing I. 3 Credit Hours.

A study of the theory and practice of digital audio topics including discrete time sampling, quantization, dithering, PCM, A/D and D/A conversion, digital filtering, oversampling, modulation codes, timebase, error correction codes, magnetic storage, DAT, and optical storage.

MMI 637. Recorded Music Operations. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides a study of the activities involved in commercially exploiting recorded music. The course includes an analysis of activities involved in the production, manufacturing, distribution, and marketing of a recorded music product; as well as related royalty accounting, mechanical licensing and master-use licensing activities.

Components: DIL.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 641. Tour Management and Production. 3 Credit Hours.

Students will become familiar with the responsibilities of a tour planner. Individual tour planning projects are assigned which will give the students insight into the management and production of a tour.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: DIL.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MMI 643. Marketing in the Arts and Entertainment. 3 Credit Hours.

Students learn how to fulfill demand and influence consumer behavior through effective marketing techniques. The course provides the students with information on the latest technologies being employed to reach and communicate with target consumers.

Components: DIL.

MMI 693. Special Projects in Music Media and Industry. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Advanced individual instruction pertaining to faculty member's area of expertise and student's area of interest. This course includes a culminating project.

Components: DIS.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

MMI 694. Special Topics in Music Media and Industry. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Advanced group/classroom instruction pertaining to faculty member's expertise and students' areas of interest.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

MMI 701. Advanced Digital Audio Electronics. 3 Credit Hours.

Topics in digital audio including discrete time signals, digital filters, error digital audio processors, FFT, CIRC, and digital recorders are discussed. Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MMI 705. Current Trends in Music Engineering I. 3 Credit Hours.

Theory, design and development of audio signal processing techniques. Topics include DSP architectures, systems design, algorithm development, and applications. DSP development tools used to write, debug, and test programs including time-domain based effects such as reverb, chorus, flanging, and digital delay as well as frequency-domain projects such as FIR, IIR, and FFT filters and vocoders.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MMI 706. Current Topics in Audio Analysis and Signal Processing. 3 Credit Hours.

MMI 606 surveys recent topics related to audio analysis, synthesis, and signal processing with an emphasis in software programming and practical applications. Typically Offered: Fall & Summer.

MCY 342. Music of the Classical, Romantic, and Modern Periods. 3 Credit Hours.

A comprehensive, in-depth study of the musical styles and genres of the Classical, Romantic, and Modern Eras of important musical figures of these periods, and analytical studies of important pieces of music from these periods.

Prerequisites: MTC 140 + 141 + 240 + 241 or Equivalents.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring & Summer.

MCY 493. Special Projects in Musicology. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Advanced individual instruction pertaining to faculty member's area of expertise and student's area of interest. This course includes a culminating project.

Components: IND.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

MCY 494. Special Topics in Musicology. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Advanced group/classroom instruction pertaining to faculty member's expertise and students' areas of interest.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

MCY 520. History and Literature of the Wind Band. 3 Credit Hours.

An historical survey of wind band literature, the evolution of the military band, the wind band, and the wind orchestra.

Requisite: Music Majors, Upperclass Status or Permission of Instructor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MCY 521. Symphonic Literature. 3 Credit Hours.

A survey of orchestral music from the end of the seventeenth century to the present.

Requisite: Music Majors, Upperclass Status or Permission of Instructor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MCY 522. Operatic Literature. 3 Credit Hours.

The history and literature of opera from the end of the sixteenth century to the present.

Requisite: Music Majors, Upperclass Status or Permission of Instructor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MCY 524. Contemporary Music. 3 Credit Hours.

Music of the 20th century, with emphasis on developments since 1945.

Requisite: Music Majors, Upperclass Status or Permission of Instructor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MCY 525. Art Song Literature. 3 Credit Hours.

A survey of the solo vocal literature from the 16th century to the present, with particular emphasis on the 19th-century French and German repertoire.

Requisite: Music Majors, Upperclass Status or Permission of Instructor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MCY 526. Keyboard Literature I. 3 Credit Hours.

A survey of keyboard literature from its beginning to approximately 1750 emphasizing changes in styles of writing and expression, development of techniques suited to the primary instruments in use (including the early organ, clavichord, harpsichord and fortepiano), ornamentation both specified and improvised, forms, and ideas for interpretation based on historical sources.

Requisite: Music Majors, Upperclass Status or Permission of Instructor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MCY 527. Keyboard Literature II. 3 Credit Hours.

A survey of solo keyboard literature from approximately 1750 to the present emphasizing changes in styles of writing and expression, development of technique suited to the primary instruments in use (including the clavichord, harpsichord, fortepiano and modern piano), embellishment both specified and improvised, forms, and ideas for interpretation based on historical sources (including facsimiles, printed scores, written records and sound recordings, particularly those by the composers themselves).

Requisite: Music Majors, Upperclass Status or Permission of Instructor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MCY 529. Music of the Baroque Period. 3 Credit Hours.

Literature and history of music from the end of the sixteenth to the middle of the eighteenth centuries.

Requisite: Music Majors, Upperclass Status or Permission of Instructor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MCY 530. Music of the Classical Period. 3 Credit Hours.

The musical styles which developed between the mid-eighteenth century and the nineteenth century.

Requisite: Music Majors, Upperclass Status or Permission of Instructor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MCY 532. History of Chamber Music. 3 Credit Hours.

Styles and forms in chamber music literature from the seventeenth century to the present.

Requisite: Music Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MCY 533. Music of the Romantic Period. 3 Credit Hours.

The musical styles which developed during the nineteenth century.

Requisite: Music Majors, Upperclass Status or Permission of Instructor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MCY 537. Music in the United States. 3 Credit Hours.

A survey of music in the United States from colonial times to the present, with emphasis on the social, economic, and political conditions which affected it. Art music (sacred and secular), popular music in all idioms, the music industry as it evolved in the U.S., and the influence of American music on the music of other countries.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MCY 538. Music, Gender, and Sexuality. 3 Credit Hours.

An exploration of music from around the world from the perspective of women. We will examine the roles women have played, and still play, as creators and performers in art music and popular music traditions. Representations of women and gender ideologies will also be discussed.

Requisite: Upperclass Status or Permission from Instructor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MCY 540. Music and Religion. 3 Credit Hours.

Music and Religion are fundamental aspects of human existence, evidence of which goes back some 30,000 years. This seminar course will explore musical and religious experiences in human history and the use of music within major religious traditions. It will include specific study of some of the major monuments of sacred music of the western classical tradition.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MCY 553. Miami's Musical Heritage. 3 Credit Hours.

A study of the musical traditions and practices of the various cultures that are part of Miami's unique multi-ethnic society.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring & Summer.

MCY 554. Music Cultures of the World. 3 Credit Hours.

A study of music culture of the region including the music of folk societies, popular artists, and classical musicians. Open to non-majors.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

MCY 562. Music of Argentina and Brazil. 3 Credit Hours.

An in-depth study of Argentine and Brazilian musical cultures covering folk, popular, and classical traditions. Open to non-majors.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MCY 564. Seminar in Latin American Music Collections. 3 Credit Hours.

Examines Latin American music materials at the Cuban Heritage Collection and Special Collections at the Richter Library. Focuses on interpreting original documents and acquiring archival techniques.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MCY 583. History of the American Musical Theatre. 3 Credit Hours.

An examination of the development of musical theatre from its European opera and operetta background to an indigenous American art form. The areas to be explored include the rise and fall of various genre of musical shows, integration of story, song and dance, important producers, directors, lyricists, composers, and new fields such as director-choreographer. The development of an American cultural consciousness and political and socio-economic trends of various decades that greatly influenced the content and form of musical shows is also examined.

MCY 7. B.A. in Music Forum. 0 Credit Hours.

Forum for this major will provide programs on and discussion of the role of the musical arts in society for people in a wide range of careers.

Components: FOR.

Grading: CNC.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MCY 711. Musicology Pedagogy. 3 Credit Hours.

Musicology Pedagogy: The course explores various philosophies of and approaches to teaching music history and literature.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

MCY 716. Graduate Musicology Forum. 0 Credit Hours.

Graduate Musicology Forum: A weekly gathering of faculty and students featuring lectures and discussion on current topics in musicology and ethnomusicology.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MCY 720. Jazz Cultures: History and Historiography. 3 Credit Hours.

This course surveys a range of the sounds and practices that have been called jazz over the past century and explores some of the ways in which musicians, educators, scholars, journalists, audiences, and others have understood and shaped this genre.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

MCY 728. Music Bibliography. 3 Credit Hours.

Course presents research materials, including dictionaries, encyclopedias, historical collections, scholarly editions, complete works, books, articles, and lists dealing with specialized areas of music history and literature.

Requisite: Frost School of Music.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

MCY 793. Special Projects in Musicology. 1-3 Credit Hours.

MCY 810. Master's Thesis. 1-6 Credit Hours.

The student working on his/her master's thesis enrolls for credit, in most departments not to exceed six, as determined by his/her advisor. Credit is not awarded until the thesis has been accepted.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

MCY 820. Research in Residence. 1 Credit Hour.

Used to establish research in residence and maintain full-time enrollment for the master's degree after the student has completed the required hours of thesis credit.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

Neuroscience Program (NEU)

NEU 100. Introduction to Neuroscience (EXP). 3 Credit Hours.

Students examine the basic aspects of neuroscience research, specifically targeting neurological disorders. Tools and techniques used in the area of neuroscience such as biochemistry, molecular biology, electrophysiology, light and electron microscopy, confocal microscopy, and image analysis will be addressed. Discussions will also include topics in lab diagnostic techniques as well as state of the art instrumentation.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

NEU 190. Faculty Overview of Research and Undergraduate Mentoring (FORUM). 1 Credit Hour.

Critical discussion of research reports in neuroscience.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NEU 200. Introduction to Psychiatry (EXP). 3 Credit Hours.

The course will cover basic aspects of Psychiatry and behavioral sciences. We will emphasize the impact of evidence-based findings on the diagnosis, etiology, management and treatment of all major psychiatric disorders. Concepts such as history of psychiatry, evolution of the psychiatric nomenclature, childhood and adult development, brain circuitry, neurotransmitters, psychotherapies and pharmacological mechanisms of most commonly used medications will be discussed. We will utilize lectures, small group discussions as well as videos and live patient interviews. Students will be able to observe a patient interview by a faculty.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NEU 280. Introduction to Research Projects I. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Students assist on a research project in neuroscience under supervision of a faculty member. Activities include library research, data collection and management, and attendance at research team meetings.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NEU 342. Neural Mechanisms of Disease. 3 Credit Hours.

Cellular and molecular mechanisms underlying nervous system dysfunction and mental illness. Biological bases, including clinical and therapeutic aspects, of specific neurological disorders.

Prerequisite: BIL 268 or PSY 220 or PSY 425.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NEU 380. Introduction to Research Projects II. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Students assist on a research project in neuroscience under supervision of a faculty member. Activities include library research, data collection and management, and attendance at research team meetings.

Prerequisite: PSY 291 or PSY 292. Requisite: UASP and Faculty Permission, 2.5 NEU GPA.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NEU 400. Neurogenetics. 3 Credit Hours.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NEU 403. Neuroscience laboratory. 4 Credit Hours.

Research methods and laboratory experiments in contemporary neuroscience from individual cells to behavior. Scientific report writing and computer applications in experimental design and analysis.

Prerequisite: PSY 390, BIL 268 or PSY 425. Or Corequisite: PSY 425. Requisite: Senior Status.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NEU 440. Neural Mechanisms of Psychiatric Disorders. 3 Credit Hours.

Analysis of different neuropsychiatric disorders including, but not limited to, schizophrenia, depression, post-traumatic stress disorder and autism spectrum disorders. Lectures are derived from current research articles looking at in depth mechanisms of these disorders. It is expected that students have a good understanding on neuroscience, molecular biology and abnormal psychology before registering for this course. Grades are based upon two take home exams that are designed to test the student's knowledge of the material presented in class. In addition, students are required to write a research paper on a topic agreed upon by both the professor and the student.

Prerequisite: BIL 268 or PSY 220 or PSY 425.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NEU 465. Cellular and Molecular Neuroscience. 3 Credit Hours.

Biophysical, biochemical, and structural features of nerve muscle and sensory cells. Basic cellular processes underlying function and development of nervous system.

Prerequisite: BIL 255, BIL 268 or PSY 220, and CHM 202.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NEU 468. Developmental Neuroscience.. 3 Credit Hours.

Cellular and molecular aspects of nervous system including neuronal differentiation.

Prerequisite: BIL 255, BIL 268 or PSY 220, and CHM 202.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NEU 480. Research with Writing Credit. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Students assist on a research project in neuroscience under supervision of a faculty member. Activities include library research, data collection and management, and attendance at research team meetings.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NEU 580. Senior Honors in Neuroscience I. 3 Credit Hours.

Students work closely with a faculty member to design a unique research study and write a scientific paper to report on the results. Limited to undergraduate students only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NEU 581. Senior Honors in Neuroscience II. 3 Credit Hours.

Students work closely with a faculty member to design a unique research study and write a scientific paper to report on the results. Limited to undergraduate students only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NEU 601. Introduction to Neuroscience Techniques. 1 Credit Hour.

Hands-on exercises in research laboratories introduce first-year Neuroscience students to methodologies commonly used in the Neurosciences.

The course includes selected techniques from electrophysiology, immunocytochemistry, fluorescence microscopy, recombinant DNA, protein immunoblotting, and functional imaging. Students are required to complete a lab notebook of each exercise. There is also a segment on database searches.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NEU 609. Research. 1-5 Credit Hours.

Students work with individual members of the program faculty on research problems. Provides orientation as to the areas of research in the field and the techniques used.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NEU 641. Statistics in Neuroscience. 1 Credit Hour.

This course will provide basic information necessary to appropriately design experiments and analyze and interpret data in the behavioral and biological sciences. A lecture/discussion format will be used. The course will cover research methodology, basic statistical concepts, and an in-depth discussion of descriptive (measures of central tendency, variability and correlation) and inferential statistics (both parametric and non-parametric tests of significance). In addition, various statistical computer programs will be reviewed. Specific topics include: 1. Statistical terminology; 2.

Measurement scales; 3. Plotting your data for initial interpretation; 4. Measures of central tendency and variability; 5. Type I and Type II errors and controlling power; 6. Which statistical test do I use for my data? 7. What can I conclude from my data and does it mean anything? Students will be evaluated based on their understanding of statistical design and data interpretation.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NEU 650. Modeling CNS injury and Repair. 1 Credit Hour.

This course provides an overview of a number of complex modeling systems using in CNS Injury and Repair biomedical research. The course examines models, such as spinal cord injury, traumatic brain injury, ischemic/stroke injury, experimental autoimmune encephalomyelitis (EAE) model of multiple sclerosis, axon regeneration in retinal nerve and spinal cord, and drosophila models of degeneration. The course will consist of both lectures and hands-on laboratory components. Elective

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NEU 700. Seminars in Neuroscience. 1 Credit Hour.

Required each Fall and Spring for all NEU students, emphasizes student research presentations (30 min each for 2nd year students; 60 min each for student 3rd year on). Attendance at neuroscience related seminars is also required.

Requisite: Neuroscience.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NEU 711. Accelerated Basic Science Medical Curriculum. 1-18 Credit Hours.

From late June to mid-February, the following accelerated and intensive complete basic science medical curriculum is offered: Embryology, Gross Anatomy, Histology, Biochemistry, Neuroanatomy, Biophysics and Neurophysiology, Systemic Physiology, Pathology, Medical Microbiology, and Pharmacology. A single grade will be entered on the graduate transcript for this course.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NEU 720. Research in Residence. 0 Credit Hours.

Used to establish research in residence for the thesis for the master's degree after the student has enrolled for the permissible cumulative total in Master's Thesis (usually six credits). Credit not granted. May be regarded as full time residence.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NEU 721. Principles of Membrane Physiology and Biophysics I. 2 Credit Hours.

Course discusses chemical and physical structure of membranes, model systems, permeability and transport, membrane potential, ionic channels, excitability in nerve and muscle, ionophores, active transport, and membrane receptors. Identical with MCP 641.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NEU 722. Principles of Membrane Physiology and Biophysics II. 2 Credit Hours.

Course topics include osmosis and cell volume, tracer analysis of permeability and compartmentation, theory of channels and carriers, cable properties, Hodgkin-Huxley formalism, Na, K, and Ca ion channels, regulation of cellular Na, Ca activities, single-channel analysis, chemical synapses, membrane receptors, cell junctions, excitation and E-C coupling in muscle. Identical with MCP 642.

Prerequisite: NEU 721.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NEU 731. Advanced Topics in Neuroscience. 1 Credit Hour.

Special work, lecture, laboratory, reading, seminar, or a combination of these as determined by advisor in accordance with student's interest.

Requisite: Neuroscience.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NEU 761. NEU I - Molecular and Cellular Neuroscience. 2 Credit Hours.

An advanced introduction to modern neurobiology, focusing on the cellular and molecular biology of neurons, glia, synapses, and sensory receptors.

Requisite: Neuroscience.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NEU 762. NEU II - Systems Neuroscience. 4 Credit Hours.

The course aims to provide a general, but intensive, background to the neurosciences beyond Cellular Neuroscience (NEU 661) and Developmental Neuroscience (NEU 663) and to prepare students for more specialized neuroscience courses, for lab rotations, and for subsequent dissertation work. NEU 662 will present sensory, motor and integrative neuroscience at the level of functional systems, but will do so in the context of cellular and molecular neuroscience. The course concentrates on the experimental basis for our understanding of nervous system function and uses both didactic lectures and student discussions of current research literature. The course expects that students have a working knowledge of synaptic transmission, excitable cell membranes, and ion channels from previous coursework in PHS 641/2 and NEU 661, as well as a general knowledge of biochemistry and molecular biology from their PIBS course. It will also be useful to have taken NEU 663. [Pre-requisites: PHS641/2 and NEU661, or in exceptional cases, permission of instructors].

Requisite: Neuroscience.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NEU 763. Developmental Neuroscience. 2 Credit Hours.

This course will explore nervous system development from early neural induction and neurogenesis to the construction of neural circuits. Cellular and molecular mechanisms of neurulation and CNS patterning, neural progenitor migration, neural crest and ectodermal placodes, programmed cell death, construction of neural circuits and axon guidance, and synaptogenesis will be covered

Requisite: Neuroscience.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NEU 797. Neuroanatomy. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to teach functional neuroanatomy to individuals engaged in basic neuroscience research. Therefore, most of the emphasis will be placed upon gross anatomy, identification of pathways and circuits, and a description of the physiological functions of neuroanatomical systems.

To the extent that it may help to explain functional aspects of the nervous system, each lecture will contain some clinical examples and/or case histories. An important feature of each class period will be a laboratory segment in which the student will study human and sheep brains, examine models of the brain, and use internet neuroanatomy websites containing pictures, text, clinical examples, and 3-dimensional rotations of the nervous system

Requisite: Neuroscience.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NEU 810. Master's Thesis. 1-12 Credit Hours.

The student working on his/her master's thesis enrolls for credit, in most departments not to exceed six, as determined by his/her advisor. Credit is not awarded until the thesis has been accepted.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NEU 830. Doctoral Dissertation. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Required for all PhD students before passing the Qualifying Examination. The student will enroll for credits as determined by the Program Office, but no more than a total of 6 credits.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NEU 840. Doctoral Dissertation- Post Candidacy. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Required for all PhD students before passing the Qualifying Examination. The student will enroll for credits as determined by the Program Office, but no more than a total of 6 credits.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NEU 850. Research in Residence. 1 Credit Hour.

Students register in the semester they plan to submit their dissertation to the Graduate School.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

Nursing (NUR)

NUR 100. Introduction to Nursing. 3 Credit Hours.

This is an introductory course to explore the various roles and responsibilities of the professional nurse in American health care. Major issues within health care today will be discussed and the impact they have on professional nursing will be explored.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 200. Process of Health Promotion. 3 Credit Hours.

Healthcare: A process of health promotion, maintenance, rehabilitation, and preventative medicine.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 202. Introductory Statistics in Health Care. 3 Credit Hours.

Application of descriptive and inferential statistics. Principles and methods of summarizing data including tables, graphs, percentile ranks, central tendency, variability, normal distribution. Basic concepts of probability, hypothesis testing, and analysis of variance. Examples and problems from nursing and health sciences.

Corequisite: MTH 101. Or Requisite: ALEKS > or = 55 or SAT Score > or = 630 or ACT > or = 28.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 205. Personal Nutrition. 3 Credit Hours.

Principles of nutrition integrated with cultural dietary patterns across the lifespan. Not for nursing majors or minors.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 207. Introduction to Pharmacology. 3 Credit Hours.

Introduction to the basic principles of therapeutic pharmacology. Special consideration of cultural beliefs and folk medicine included. Emphasis is on the understanding of the different classes of drugs and their application in various health care settings.

Prerequisites: BIL 150 and CHM 103 or 111 or 121 and HCS 212/215.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 300. Seminar in Inter-Professional Health Care. 1 Credit Hour.

This course will introduce the core competencies of inter professional collaborative practice using guidelines from the Institute of Medicine, Quality and Safety Education for Nurses and the Inter professional Education Consortium. Concepts of team based care will be discussed. The course will offer online activities as well as face-to-face team based activities with other healthcare professionals.

Requisite: Nursing Major and Sophomore Standing or Higher.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Summer.

NUR 301. Human Sexuality and Vulnerable Populations. 3 Credit Hours.

The study of human sexuality via multidisciplinary theoretical perspectives and research. Students will examine the complex relationships of the physiological, psychological, cultural, gender, religious, historical, and political aspects of human sexuality. Human sexuality in the context of health disparities will form the foundation for the course. WRITING COURSE

Prerequisite: BPH 206 or Requisite: Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 303. HIV/AIDS and Health Maintenance for Health Care Providers. 3 Credit Hours.

Definition, diagnosis, management, and care of diverse patient populations with HIV infection and AIDS. Course is presented and discussed from an interdisciplinary health care perspective.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 304. Adult Health I: Fundamentals of Nursing Practice. 6 Credit Hours.

This clinical course emphasizes the supervised application of health assessment skills, nursing process, and clinical nursing techniques in the clinical laboratory, community, and acute care settings.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 305. Issues in Health Disparities. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will be an introduction to the general research on health systems and health disparities. Emphasis will be placed on social, biological, economic and social policy issues that impact on the health of minority populations. Concepts associated with epidemiology, poverty, racism, public policy and international politics will be explored. WRITING COURSE

Prerequisite: BPH 206 or Requisite: Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 306. Principles of Nutrition. 3 Credit Hours.

Principles of nutrition integrated with cultural dietary patterns for client adaptation across the lifespan.

Requisite: Sophomore Standing.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 307. Pharmacology. 3 Credit Hours.

Introduction to the basic principles of therapeutic pharmacology. Special consideration of cultural beliefs and folk medicine included.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 308. Adult Health II. 7 Credit Hours.

This course focuses on the nursing management of the client throughout the adult life cycle who experiences alterations and/or adaptations in physiologic defense mechanisms. Teaching strategies to be utilized include lecture, discussion, critical thinking exercises.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 310. Global Health. 3 Credit Hours.

Introduction to the concepts of global health and the critical links between public health and social and economic development. Determinants of health and patterns of disease and health outcomes across the globe are critically examined. The course reviews the determinants of health status in terms of biology, demography, epidemiology, culture, sociology, economics, and politics. Key concerns regarding reproductive health, child survival, nutrition, communicable diseases, and chronic diseases are examined. health care delivery in developed vs. undeveloped regions of the world are emphasized.

Prerequisite: BPH 206.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 311. Theories and Concepts of Nursing. 2 Credit Hours.

An introductory nursing course explaining the philosophy of baccalaureate nursing using the major concepts of person, environment, health, and nursing with a multicultural focus.

Requisite: Nursing Major and Sophomore Standing or Higher.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 314. Health Assessment and Promotion. 3 Credit Hours.

Introduction to health assessment using a lifespan approach. Emphasis is on the development of data collection and basic decision-making using health assessment findings.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 315. Pathophysiology. 3 Credit Hours.

The study of the physiologic and biologic manifestations of disease and disease processes. Emphasis is placed on physiology of altered health within the context of disruptions of structure and function of the human body as a whole.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 317. Theories in Growth and Development. 3 Credit Hours.

Application of growth and development theories through the lifespan with a case study approach to issues commonly encountered nursing practice in a variety of clinical settings.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 318. Women's Health Nursing. 4 Credit Hours.

This course focuses on the use of the nursing process in the care of women and the care of mothers and newborns with an emphasis on health promotion, illness prevention and nursing clinical management of chronic and acute conditions.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 319. Contemporary Issues in Bioethics for Health Care. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will cover bioethical issues in the health care environment, including ethical principles, theories and decision making strategies. WRITING COURSE

Prerequisite: BPH 206.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 320. Child and Adolescent Health Nursing. 4 Credit Hours.

This course focuses in the use of the nursing process to develop and implement nursing management strategies for children and their families experiencing acute, chronic, and critical multi-system health alterations within a multicultural content. Use of the nursing process to expand and develop appropriate clinical interventions and a member of the health care team. Students will build on foundation skills in critical thinking, collaboration, and leadership in the provision of nursing care.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 350. Pathophysiology/Pharmacology for RN-to-BSN. 4 Credit Hours.

This course presents the study of the physiological and biologic manifestations of disease and disease processes, and introduces the basic principles of therapeutic pharmacology. Emphasis is placed on the physiology of altered health within the context of disruptions of structure and function of the human body as a whole. Special consideration of cultural beliefs and folk medicine is included.

Requisite: Must be in the RN to BSN program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 390. Advanced Placement Practice I for RN-to-BSN Students. 10 Credit Hours.

Nursing Management of the client throughout adulthood who experiences alterations and/or adaptations/maladaptions in physiologic defense mechanisms; complex alteration and/or adaptations in organ system function. The client in this course is identified as the individual, family or significant others. Course content emphasizes concepts of infection, the surgical client, immunity and altered cell growth, utilizing the nursing theories and the nursing process. Assists adult clients to adjust to multisystem alterations/adaptations/maladaptions in the endocrine, cardiovascular, respiratory, immunological and hemopoietic, nervous, musculoskeletal, digestive, and renal urinary systems. Specific models are utilized to enhance the teaching of critical thinking. Research findings are utilized to support nursing interventions.

Requisite: Must be in the RN to BSN program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 400. Theories, Research and Evidence-Based Practice. 3 Credit Hours.

Course emphasis is placed on developing an understanding of the research process and application of research findings in community-based practice in multicultural settings. Course focuses on the relationship between theory, research, practice, and the development of competencies to become an informed consumer of research. Writing Credit.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 401. Evidence-Based Nursing Practice. 3 Credit Hours.

This course examines evidence-based practice in nursing. Focuses on the research process; location, critical appraisal, and evaluation of evidence; application and evaluation of evidence-based practice changes; and quality improvement.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Summer.

NUR 402. Global Health Disparities Research. 3 Credit Hours.

This is a 4 week intensive educational experience that prepares students to be successful conducting supervised health disparities research as part of the MHIRT program at a foreign institution, disseminating findings, and applying to graduate school. The training program is broken into a preparation phase (3 weeks prior to leaving to their host country), and a dissemination phase (1 week after they return). Students will be working as a research assistant at a foreign site for eight weeks in between the preparation and dissemination phases of this training program. Students will learn about the influence of culture and healthcare policy on health and health disparities, research design, statistics, communicating research findings and careers in health disparities research.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 403. Advanced Placement Practice II for RN-to-BSN Students. 10 Credit Hours.

This course focuses on the nursing process in the care of pediatric clients and families, the obstetrical client, and women's health. Emphasis is on the use of the nursing process to assist clients to adapt to health alterations requiring care in secondary health care settings. This course covers care of the pediatric client and the childbearing client and women's health.

Requisite: Must be in the RN to BSN program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 405. Professionalism and Career Pathways. 3 Credit Hours.

This nursing course focuses on the assessment and development of a career pathway for registered nurses seeking a Bachelor's in the Science of Nursing professional nursing practice. There will be a focus on concepts of professionalism, roles in nursing, advanced practice, diversity, culture and a critical analysis of legal, ethical and political dimensions of nursing practice.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: DIL.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 406. Current Issues in Healthcare. 3 Credit Hours.

The focus of this course is to explore and understand current and emerging healthcare issues as well as discuss how nurses as members of interprofessional healthcare teams contribute to positive patient outcomes. Students will integrate their professional nursing practice experiences to enrich discussions of current and emerging healthcare issues.

Prerequisite: NUR 311. And NUR 314. And NUR 350. And NUR 400.

Components: DIL.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 408. Genetics and Healthcare. 3 Credit Hours.

Exploration of basic knowledge in genomics, understanding of social, cultural and psychological implications of genetic services, health prevention and promotion.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 411. Adult Health III. 5 Credit Hours.

This course focuses on the adult experiencing complex multisystem alteration/adaptations in organ and system function. Emphasis is on the use of the nursing process to assist adult clients to adapt to system related insults.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 412. Epidemiology for Population-Based Care. 2 Credit Hours.

During this course students will examine the principles of epidemiology including, the historical evolution of epidemiology, the natural history of disease, epidemiologic models, and epidemiologic research. Health and disease is conceptualized as a complex interaction between individual relationships, community and socio-economic-political level factors with unique considerations for target populations across the lifespan. The process of disease surveillance is discussed including trends in communicable and non-communicable disease as well as the measures of morbidity (e.g., incidence and prevalence) and mortality. Factors, or determinants of health, that contribute to distribution of disease in populations are discussed. The effect of health care policy and health economics on disease distribution is considered. How the interaction of the determinants of health, health care policy, and health economics contribute to health disparities is also examined. Disease surveillance and health promotion are examined from a global perspective. The impact of the environment on health is also discussed. Finally, introductory disaster management concepts are reviewed as they relate to the care of populations affected by disasters.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Summer.

NUR 414. Advanced Placement Practice III for RN-to-BSN Students. 10 Credit Hours.

Content emphasizes concepts and themes of families and communities and the use of the nursing process to assist in promoting and maintaining health. The behavioral health focuses on psychotherapeutic processes across the life span. Emphasis is on planning nursing care for individuals, families and groups and professional and therapeutic communication skills and techniques. Explores the influence of neuro-physiology and psychopharmacology on the development of psychiatric and mental health services and the evolution of the role of the psychiatric nurse.

Requisite: Must be in the RN to BSN program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 415. Perianesthesia Nursing. 3 Credit Hours.

The focus of this course is on the use of the nursing process to develop and implement nursing management strategies for patients and families undergoing a surgical and/or special procedure. Emphasis is placed on the use of a multicultural nursing perspective to plan and implement nursing interventions. This course highlights Perianesthesia nursing care of surgical patients.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 417. Pre-Immersion Course for Accelerated Option Students. 0 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to facilitate personal and professional success; this course introduces students to the purposes and processes of nursing. An emphasis is placed on study, communication, and critical thinking skills that support academic achievement. Students also examine the relationship between learning and motivation.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: DIL.

Grading: NON.

Typically Offered: Spring & Summer.

NUR 418. Pre-Immersion for Traditional Option Students. 0 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to facilitate personal and professional success; this course introduces students to the purposes and processes of nursing. An emphasis is placed on study, communication, and critical thinking skills that support academic achievement. Students also examine the relationship between learning and motivation.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: NON.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 424. Math Essentials for BSN Students. 0 Credit Hours.

This course supports students with basic to advanced medical math concepts. Topics include calculating dosages, using scientific formulas and basic statistical principles.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 426. Leadership and Management in Nursing. 5 Credit Hours.

Analysis and synthesis of the application of professional concepts in a variety of multicultural health care delivery systems. Emphasis is placed on personal, professional, and organizational growth. Individualized and integrated clinical experiences are provided through direct clinical supervision by preceptors.

Requisite: Must be in the RN to BSN program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 430. Leadership in Nursing. 3 Credit Hours.

Theoretical and applied concepts of transition to the nursing role within the healthcare setting are explored in this course. The focus is on practice issues and responsibilities in contemporary professional nursing practice. Emphasis is placed on the transition to practice and nursing care systems with increasing responsibility through discussion of practice theory and styles, empowering, mentoring, managing change and striving for excellence. Seminar discussion topics will focus on the issues of successful transition to the practice environment as new nurse.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 435. Clinical Express Undgr. 5.00 Credit Hours.

This course is an online orientation for clinical faculty at the School of Nursing and Health Studies. The content is specific to clinical instructors who will be supervising BSN nursing students at various clinical sites used by the School of Nursing and Health Studies.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 440. Population Focused Nursing. 4 Credit Hours.

The focus is on population-focused nursing and community-oriented approaches to understanding and addressing major public health concerns across the life span. Emphasis is on assessing, planning, implementing and evaluating programs for a variety of communities both domestically and internationally. Health and disease is conceptualized as a complex interaction between individual, relationship, community and socio-economic-political level factors. Epidemiology, sociology, behavioral sciences and nursing theory and practice are integrated throughout. Special attention is given to addressing the unique needs of vulnerable populations and cultural groups, the elimination of health disparities, and social justice.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 441. Public Health Nursing. 2 Credit Hours.

The focus of this course is on public health nursing and community-oriented approaches to addressing major public health concerns across the life span. Emphasis is on assessing, planning, implementing and evaluating programs for a variety of communities both domestically and internationally. The provision of knowledge related to epidemiology, sociology, behavioral sciences and nursing theory and practice is required throughout this process. Special attention is given to addressing the unique needs of vulnerable populations and cultural groups, the elimination of health disparities, and social justice considering the population aggregate's determinants of health. Finally, the varying roles of the public health nurse are examined, including that of the public health nurse in disaster response.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 448. Psychiatric Mental Health Nursing. 4 Credit Hours.

The focus is on psychotherapeutic processes across the life span. Emphasis is on planning nursing care for individuals, families, and communities with a variety of psychiatric and mental health problems in various settings (inpatient, outpatient, community). Professional and therapeutic communication skills and techniques are important components of this course.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 453. Role Transition. 5 Credit Hours.

Theoretical and applied concepts of transition to the nursing role within the healthcare setting are integrated in this course. The course is a synthesis of previously learned knowledge, incorporating the components of physiological, psychological, and developmental concerns in the care of the client. Seminar discussion topics have a focus on the issues of successful transition to the practice environment as a nurse generalist, with the ability to exercise clinical reasoning and evidence-based practice.

Requisite: Must be a Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 461. Health Disparities Research Practicum. 1-4 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to provide opportunities for students across all levels of higher education to participate in health disparities research.

Students will be mentored by a health disparities researcher with an active research project. Objectives will be established by the research mentor and the student according to educational level, interests and opportunities. Students will be incorporated into the research team and expected to attend project meetings. They will also be expected to participate in scholarly work that could contribute to the success of the project. Examples of scholarly work include co-authoring research papers and presentations, developing recruitment materials, assisting in compiling/developing data collection measures, or any other product deemed appropriate by the mentor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 485. Global Health: Transcultural Nursing. 3 Credit Hours.

Components: DIL.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 487. International Health: Transcultural Nursing. 3 Credit Hours.

Collaborative clinical venture between the University of Miami, School of Nursing and an International School of Nursing. Students will exchange supervised western clinical experiences, knowledge and skills for the care of clients and families in specialty areas including Medical-Surgical, Surgery, Intensive Care and/or Emergency nursing units. This course will allow students to apply and synthesize basic science knowledge and skills that foster ethical, legal and culture specific health care.

Requisite: School of Nursing Health Studies.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 498. Selected Topics. 6.00 Credit Hours.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 499. Selected Topics. 6.00 Credit Hours.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 536. U.S. Health Care Crisis: Politics and Policies. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will explore key health policy issues within the U.S., along with the politics and interest groups which shape them. Fundamental concerns within the health care system such as: cost, quality and access to care will be analyzed. Major topics of discussion will include: Medicare, Medicaid, private insurance, the nursing shortage, and prescription drugs. The politics and policies surrounding issues such as bioethics, globalization, and infectious disease will also be considered.

Requisite: Junior Status and no IP Credit.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 601. Advanced Pharmacology. 3 Credit Hours.

Advanced practice nursing application of pharmacological and pharmacokinetics for the purpose of selecting appropriate drug therapies for diverse populations.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 602. Doctoral Level Orientation/Nur. 0 Credit Hours.

This course provides entering doctoral students with an evaluation of their writing ability and a review of formal writing skills. Other topics pertinent to success for nursing coursework at the doctoral level are addressed.

Components: LEC.

Grading: NON.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 603. Healthcare Databases: Design, Development and Clinical Application. 3 Credit Hours.

This course focuses database systems, development, design, and implementation within the context of health care. Special emphasis is placed on the role of database applications for continuous quality improvement and regulatory compliance. Students will design a relational database applicable to informatics leadership responsibilities.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 604. System Life Cycle/Project Management. 3 Credit Hours.

This course covers the identification and development of information technology plans for projects supporting the health care organization's business objectives and all activities required in the initiating, planning, executing, controlling, and closing phases of the project's lifecycle. This course is intended to provide the body of knowledge and best practices necessary for a new Consultant, Business Analyst or Project Manager to successfully perform his/her responsibilities on an IT enterprise project.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 605. Health Information Exchange. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to introduce the informatics professional to the basic principles of Health Information Exchange. The focus will be on interoperability between ambulatory clinics, acute care facilities and long-term care; electronic health records; electronic prescribing systems and consumer health care informatics. Special emphasis is placed on the role of HIE in the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 606. Advanced Practice Preparation. 0 Credit Hours.

This preparatory experience provides students an opportunity to review concepts of pharmacology; physiology; and health assessment prior to beginning the Master of Science in Nursing program. Activities related to academic strategies and writing are also included, to assist in improving study and writing skills.

Components: LEC.

Grading: NON.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 607. Leadership and Professional Development Strategies for Nursing Informatics. 3 Credit Hours.

In this course students will be exposed to the principles of organizational culture, dynamics, mission, vision, values, and goals as it impacts nursing. Additionally they will learn current theories of change management and resource management for nursing informatics practice. They will explore change agent roles in project management and processes.

Co-requisite: NUR 604.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 608. Concepts in Advanced Practice Nursing. 3 Credit Hours.

Major concepts necessary for advanced practice nursing. Included are: major scientific theories, health and health promotion, health policy, ethical issues, epidemiology, technology in health care, and advanced practice role competencies. Specific emphasis is placed on understanding culture and cultural diversity in health care.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 609. Professionalism in Advanced Practice Nursing. 2 Credit Hours.

Focuses on the synthesis of concepts and principles necessary to develop leaders in advanced practice nursing specialties. Emphasis is placed on the role of the advanced practice nurse for optimal delivery of health care to clients across the life span.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 610. Adult Gerontology Acute Care I. 4 Credit Hours.

Analysis of selected theories and conceptual models of nursing and their implementation in practice and research. Approaches to development of a scientific body of knowledge for nursing practice is included. (2) Prerequisite: Graduate status.

Prerequisite: NUR 601 and 612 and 613.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 611. Foundations of Anesthesia Science and Technology for Nurse Anesthetists. 5 Credit Hours.

Introduction to the application of basic sciences to nurse anesthesia. This course includes the application of principles of physics, molecular biology, biochemistry and medicinal chemistry.

Prerequisite: Anesthesia Track and NUR 601 and 612 and 613.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 612. Physiology/Pathophysiology for Advanced Practice Nursing. 3 Credit Hours.

Analysis of physiologic and pathophysiologic mechanisms of health and illness.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 613. Advanced Health Assessment and Diagnostic Reasoning. 3 Credit Hours.

Emphasis on culturally sensitive comprehensive health assessment and diagnostic reasoning related to advanced nursing practice. Special emphasis is placed on advanced health assessment; including age appropriate health screenings; prenatal, pediatric, and geriatric assessment; and interpretation of basic laboratory tests and diagnostic studies utilized in advanced nursing practice. Specialty specific seminars address issues for individual tracks within advanced practice nursing.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 614. Basic Concepts in Anesthesia Nursing. 5 Credit Hours.

This course is an overview of fundamental knowledge and skills for entry into advanced practice anesthesia nursing. Concepts include essential techniques, monitoring and equipment, and pharmacologic interventions for common problems and conditions requiring routine surgical procedures in a highly structured and guided clinical learning environment. Cultural competence and interdisciplinary anesthesia care across the lifespan is emphasized.

Prerequisite: NUR 601 and NUR 611 and NUR 612 and NUR 613 and Co-requisite: NUR 617.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 615. Professional Aspects of Anesthesia Nursing. 2 Credit Hours.

This course focuses on the development and current trends in nurse anesthesia practice, education, and research. Concepts include the historical, legal, legislative, and professional role issues associated with advanced practice anesthesia nursing. Professional responsibilities, ethical issues, diversity, cultural competency, quality assurance, continuing education, and professional involvement are emphasized.

Prerequisite: NUR 646 and Co-requisite: NUR 650.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 616. Pharmacology for Acute Care Nursing. 3 Credit Hours.

Focuses on foundational pharmacologic principles and associated application to clinical practice in acute care nursing. Integration of pharmacological concepts and interventions in safe, culturally competent, and interdisciplinary acute care advanced nursing practice are emphasized.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 617. Pharmacology for Anesthesia Nursing. 3 Credit Hours.

Focuses on pharmacological principles and associated application to clinical practice in nurse anesthesia. Integration of pharmacological concepts and interventions in safe, culturally competent, and interdisciplinary anesthesia practice are emphasized.

Prerequisite: NUR 601 and NUR 611 and NUR 612 and NUR 613 and Corequisite: NUR 614.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 618. Research Immersion. 1 Credit Hour.

Students complete a research practicum (data analysis, data collection and writing IRB protocol) under the mentorship of their advisor or faculty member with particular expertise the student needs to acquire for their dissertation research. The advisor/faculty member and student will develop a contract to achieve specific research goals for the semester. These research goals are tied to specific research activities needed to move the student forward in planning or developing their dissertation proposal methods. The practicum requires a total for 45 hours of work over the Summer between the first and second year of course work in the program.

Prerequisite: NUR 670. And NUR 665. And NUR 680. And NUR 674. And NUR 671.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 619. Advanced Concepts of Anesthesia Nursing I. 7 Credit Hours.

This course will provide an in-depth knowledge and skills of anesthesia nursing care for a variety of common problems and conditions across anesthesia specializations. Concepts include assessment, techniques, planning and pharmacologic interventions for specialty surgical procedures in a highly structured and guided clinical learning environment. Cultural competence and interdisciplinary anesthesia care across the lifespan is emphasized.

Prerequisites: NUR 601 and NUR 611 and NUR 612 and NUR 613 and NUR 614 and NUR 617.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 620. Advanced Concepts of Anesthesia Nursing II. 9 Credit Hours.

This course will provide in-depth knowledge and skills of highly specialized problems and conditions requiring anesthesia or surgical interventions. Concepts include assessment, techniques, planning and pharmacologic interventions for regional anesthesia, pain management, care of obstetrical patients and patients with catastrophic conditions in a highly structured and guided clinical learning environment. Cultural competence and interdisciplinary anesthesia care across the lifespan is emphasized.

Prerequisites: NUR 601 and NUR 611 and NUR 612 and NUR 613 and NUR 614 and NUR 617 and NUR 619.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 621. Diagnostics and Nursing Interventions for Acute Care Nursing. 3 Credit Hours.

Selected diagnostic tests and intervention techniques essential to acute care nursing. Critical thinking and decision making related to interdisciplinary assessment of acute care patients. Cultural issues related to diagnostics and intervention.

Prerequisite: NUR 601 and 612 and 613.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 622. Acute Care Nursing of Adults I. 4 Credit Hours.

The first of two sequential clinical practicums designed for the development of scientific knowledge and advanced practice skills in the area of acute care nursing. Involves synthesis of concepts, knowledge and skills gained in previous courses applied to the care of the acutely ill patient. Focuses on the advanced practice of acute care nursing via the nurse practitioner/clinical nurse specialist.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 623. Maternal Child Health in Primary Care Practice. 5 Credit Hours.

Theoretical and clinical bases for advanced practice nursing management of infants and children. Emphasis is placed on strategies for health maintenance and prevention of health problems and management of alterations.

Prerequisite: NUR 628.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 624. Introduction to Pedagogy. 2 Credit Hours.

This course provides students a foundation in Pedagogy using examples from nursing education. Students will learn about educational theory, the cultural context of education, and the role of teaching in the academy. Educational strategies to be discussed include didactic, online, clinical, laboratory, and simulation. Best practices in assessment and evaluation will be emphasized.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 625. Adult Gerontology Acute Care II. 7 Credit Hours.

Theoretical and clinical focus for the nurse practitioner as an advanced practice nurse in the health care management of adult populations in rehabilitative settings and residential facilities including assisted living, long term, and home care. (2:6) Prerequisite or corequisite: NUR 601.

Prerequisite: NUR 613 and 617.

Prerequisite: NUR 601 and 610 and 612 and 613.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 626. Advanced Concepts in Gynecological Health Care for Women. 2 Credit Hours.

Theoretical and clinical bases for the provision of complex gynecological care of women. Emphasis is on strategies for promotion of transcultural health care needs and management of alterations according to the advanced practice roles.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 627. Primary Prenatal Healthcare of Women. 1-2 Credit Hours.

Theoretical and clinical bases for providing primary prenatal care of women. Emphasis is on management strategies for promotion of transcultural health care needs according to the advanced practice role.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 628. Adult Gerontology I. 5 Credit Hours.

Theoretical and clinical bases for health care management of health alterations in the adult population. Emphasis on strategies for health maintenance and prevention of health problems, management of alterations, discharge planning and rehabilitation of individuals and aggregate population.

Corequisite: NUR 601. And NUR 612. And NUR 613.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 630. Research Methods and Evidence-Based Practice. 3 Credit Hours.

Research process, research methods, and the analysis of data using quantitative and qualitative approaches. Focuses on understanding levels of evidence for implementing evidence-based practice and performance improvement in nursing practice and health care. Investigates research methods associated with health disparities, access to health care, and clinical outcomes.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Summer.

NUR 631. Adult Gerontology II. 4-7 Credit Hours.

Theoretical and clinical bases for health management of health alterations in the adult population. Emphasis on strategies for health maintenance and prevention of health problems, management of alterations, discharge planning and rehabilitation of individuals and aggregate population.

Prerequisites: NUR 601 and NUR 612 and NUR 613 and NUR 628.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 634. Perinatal Health Care. 6.00 Credit Hours.

Continuation of the application of physiologic, psychosocial, and cultural concepts to perinatal health care management. Emphasis is placed on nurse-midwifery management of intrapartum, postpartum, and neonatal clients.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 635. Innovation in Nursing Informatics. 3 Credit Hours.

This course explores contemporary concepts in nursing informatics. The course examines the historical context of nursing informatics, followed by an exploration of emerging technologies including tele-health, wireless medical devices, consumer health informatics, interactive education, and social media. This course prepares students to critically evaluate and incorporate evolving technology. Special emphasis is placed on the social, ethical, regulatory, and legal issues associated with health care innovations.

Corequisite: NUR 633.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 636. Nursing Informatics Internship. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to prepare students to function as Nursing Informatics Specialists. Emphasis is on the synthesis of health care informatics theory and mastery of technical applications and each of their respective roles in nursing informatics practice. Students design a scholarly project at the level of a clinical analyst under the direction of a faculty member and preceptor.

Co-requisite: NUR 635.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 637. Capstone Practicum in Nursing Leadership in Informatics. 3 Credit Hours.

In the capstone course students will assimilate and apply the knowledge and skills they have acquired from their course work in the program.

Students will complete a non-thesis capstone project that requires them to critically analyze and solve a problem they might realistically encounter in health informatics using their skills in data acquisition, project management, data presentation, and risk management. Students will also develop and submit an electronic portfolio that contains key examples of work they generated during their time in the program along with a self-reflection of that work.

Prerequisites: NUR 604 and NUR 607 and NUR 608 and NUR 630 and NUR 633 and NUR 636 and NUR 658 and BTE 450 and BTE 685 and Corequisites: NUR 603 and NUR 605.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 638. Adult Gerontology Acute Care III. 6 Credit Hours.

Theoretical, clinical, and research basis of advanced practice nursing in the care and management of adults in primary care setting. (2:15) Prerequisite: NUR 628.

Prerequisite: NUR 625.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 639. Acute Care Nursing of Adults II. 7.00 Credit Hours.

The second of two clinical practicums designed to guide the development of scientific knowledge and advanced practice skills in the area of acute care nursing. Designed to assist the student to assume the role of the Acute Care Nurse Practitioner/Clinical Nurse Specialist.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 640. Teaching and Learning Theory in Clinical Nursing Education. 3 Credit Hours.

This course covers principles and practices of teaching and learning integral to clinical nursing education and identifies the role of the faculty in teaching students with diverse learning styles and needs within a variety of clinical settings.

Components: DIL.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 641. Methods for Clinical Nursing Education. 3 Credit Hours.

The focus of this course is the organization and management of instruction for clinical nursing education. Emphasis is placed on effective strategies for the development of learning opportunities in diverse clinical settings.

Components: DIL.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 642. Evaluation in Clinical Nursing Education. 3 Credit Hours.

The course explores principles and practices of evaluation integral to clinical nursing education.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 643. Practicum in Nursing Education. 5 Credit Hours.

The focus of this course is laboratory and clinical application of principles of teaching and learning.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 644. Leadership and Professional Development Strategies for Nursing. 4 Credit Hours.

In this course, students will be exposed to the principles of organizational culture, dynamics, mission, vision, values, and goals as it impacts nursing. Additionally they will learn current theories of change management and resource management for nursing practice. They will explore change agent roles in project management and processes.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 645. Interdisciplinary Anesthesia Nursing I. 8 Credit Hours.

Initial integration and synthesis course of advanced knowledge and skills for interdisciplinary anesthesia nursing care. Selected topics and clinical case studies include collaborative-decision-making, effective communication, planning and evaluation for patients with complex problems and conditions across the lifespan. With continual guidance, students assume greater responsibility for culturally competent and interdisciplinary anesthesia care.

Prerequisites: NUR 601, NUR 611, NUR 612, NUR 613, NUR 614, NUR 617, NUR 619, NUR 620.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 646. Interdisciplinary Anesthesia Nursing II. 10 Credit Hours.

Second integration and synthesis course of advanced knowledge and skills for interdisciplinary anesthesia nursing care for complex problems and conditions across the lifespan. With moderate guidance students assume greater responsibility for culturally competent and interdisciplinary anesthesia care.

Prerequisite: NUR 601 and NUR 611 and NUR 612 and NUR 613 and NUR 614 and NUR 617 and NUR 619 and NUR 620 and NUR 645.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 647. Advanced Practice Nursing Integration. 6 Credit Hours.

Integration of the components of the Advanced Practice Nursing role to analyze advanced practice issues.

Prerequisite: NUR 623 and 631.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 648. Internship. 7.00 Credit Hours.

Integration and role synthesis of Advanced knowledge and skills in nurse midwifery care for women and infants within diverse cultural clinical settings. Selected topics include practice management and clinical case studies to include diagnosis, collaborative practice, planning and evaluations of care for normal and complex conditions for the female adolescent, reproductive age woman and infant, the mature women and their families.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 650. Interdisciplinary Anesthesia Nursing III. 11 Credit Hours.

This course is the third and final integration and synthesis course of advanced knowledge and skills of interdisciplinary anesthesia nursing care for complex problems and conditions across the lifespan. With minimal guidance students assume greater responsibility for culturally competent and interdisciplinary anesthesia care.

Prerequisite: NUR 646.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 651. Qualitative Data Analysis. 3 Credit Hours.

The course is designed to help the student develop skills and understanding relating to the advanced analysis of qualitative data. The course assumes all students will either be in or nearing the analysis stages in their research. Focus is on preparation and management of text and media data for analyses; the creation and application of various types of coding to data; the distinctions in coding data evolving from different qualitative approaches; and analysis of longitudinal qualitative data. Permission required.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 652. Introduction to Clinical Inquiry I. 3 Credit Hours.

Combines clinical knowledge and hands-on clinical experience in an area of the student's potential research interest. Students will practice under the supervision of an advanced practice nurse in the specialty area. Students are expected to begin the process of identifying clinical research problems.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 653. Introduction to Clinical Inquiry II. 6 Credit Hours.

Combines clinical knowledge and hands-on clinical experience in an area of the student's potential research interest. Students will practice under the supervision of an advanced practice nurse in a specialty area. There will be a focus on health care delivery systems. Students are expected to translate clinical problems into researchable questions.

Prerequisites: NUR 652 and 662 and 665 and 670 and 674 and 698.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 654. The Evolution of Nursing Practice and Application of Theory in Nursing Practice. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is an overview of the conceptual foundations of nursing science and nursing practice. Knowledge from basic and applied sciences and ethics as well as the history of the global evolution of nursing practice are examined.

Requisite: Enrollment in the DNP Program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring & Summer.

NUR 655. Health Care Management, Economics, Financing, and Ethics. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is an overview of health care management, financing, ethics and core and advanced concepts of health care economics. This course will also examine issues associated with health care management, economics, and ethics.

Requisite: Enrollment in the DNP Program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 656. Global Health. 3 Credit Hours.

This course covers diverse topics that affect the health of the population and advanced practice nursing internationally.

Requisite: Enrollment in the DNP Program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 657. Population Based Health and Health Care Disparities. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is an overview of knowledge from nursing, public health and other disciplines for population based assessment. Population based models and frameworks from nursing, public health, and other disciplines will be explored. The importance of cultural and ethical dimensions in program development is highlighted.

Prerequisites: NUR 654 and NUR 656 and NUR 663 and NUR 664.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 658. Health Policy Development and Implementation. 3 Credit Hours.

An exploration of health care organizations and healthcare policy, and how change is effected in both. Health care policy and planning to address health care disparities at the local, state, and federal levels will be explored. Organizational diagnosis, organizational change, and ethical dimension of public policy formulations and implementation will be highlighted.

Requisite: Enrollment in the DNP Program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 659. Technology in Health Care. 3 Credit Hours.

An exploration of the various aspects of the evolving technology to improve and transform health care and advanced practice nursing. This course prepares DNP nursing students to design, select and use technology to support, manage, and improve patient care and health care systems.

Requisite: Enrollment in the DNP Program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 660. Translational Science. 3 Credit Hours.

Emphasis is on translational science which includes organizational readiness and promoting change in a health care environment. Focus is on utilizing systematic analysis to identify, plan, execute and appraise best evidence on selected topics.

Prerequisites: NUR 654 and NUR 663 and NUR 664.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 662. Nursing Epistemology. 4 Credit Hours.

Focus on historical and philosophical perspectives in the development of knowledge and patterns of knowing with in-depth examination of the evolution of nursing science. Analysis of concepts relevant to nursing phenomena. Approaches to scientific development in nursing with emphasis on theory building and theory generation.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 663. Research I: Evaluating the Evidence for Practice. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is an analysis of evidence-based nursing practice. During the course, students acquire the knowledge base to resolve clinical practice problems and direct evidence-based practice.

Requisite: Enrollment in the DNP Program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring & Summer.

NUR 664. Research II: Biostatistical Applications for Nursing Practice. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is an overview of basic statistical concepts and computer applications related to healthcare, nursing, and biomedical research. An examination of both parametric and non-parametric statistics in program evaluation, testing and process outcomes, and/or basic research studies is included.

Requisite: Enrollment in the DNP Program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 665. Quantitative Research Methods. 3 Credit Hours.

In-depth exploration of research methods and design for quantitative research in nursing. Emphasis on development of a research problem; quantitative research design from descriptive to randomized clinical trials; epidemiologic designs; threats to validity; sampling and power analysis; measurement including psychometric theory, data collection and management; and interpretation of data. Other topics include ethics, human subjects' protection, and translation of findings into practice.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 667. Research Practicum. 1 Credit Hour.

Student participates in an ongoing research project under the guidance of a faculty member. Conducts the practical aspects of research including: IRB application/continuing reports, data collection and management.

Prerequisite: NUR 665 and NUR 670.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 670. Qualitative Methods in Research. 3 Credit Hours.

Exploration of inductive approaches to research and the use of qualitative methods including grounded theory, ethnography, focus group, and phenomenology. The techniques include unstructured and structured interviews. Discussion of techniques, analysis, and the ethical and political implications of special problems in qualitative research.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 671. Scientific and Theoretical Writing. 3 Credit Hours.

Introduction to the process of scientific writing including concept analysis and publication. Critique and respond to own and peers' writing. Challenges of making revisions. Synthesize relevant literature. Other topics include: impact factor, publication process, and techniques of writing.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 672. DNP Scholarly Project Seminar I. 3 Credit Hours.

Emphasis is on translational science which includes organizational readiness and promoting change in a health care environment. Focus is on utilizing systematic analysis to identify, plan, execute and appraise best evidence on selected topics.

Prerequisites: NUR 676 and NUR 688 and NUR 689.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring & Summer.

NUR 673. DNP Scholarly Project Seminar II. 3 Credit Hours.

This second capstone course is the implementation and evaluation of the project developed in Capstone I.

Prerequisite: NUR 672.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 674. Applied Statistics: Generalized Linear and General Estimating Equations. 5 Credit Hours.

Overview of GLM, GZLM, and GEE, which combine many aspects of ANOVA/ANCOVA and multiple regression models for continuous and categorical independent and dependent variables, moderation/mediation, multiple independent variables, and repeated measures of dependent variables.

Computer applications using real data and standard statistical software packages will be utilized.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 676. Practice Immersion Experience I. 2-12 Credit Hours.

This course contains individually precepted learning experiences across the spectrum of advanced practice nursing in a variety of settings. Students develop expertise within the scope of their nursing practice.

Requisite: Enrollment in the DNP Program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 679. Applied Statistics: Structural Equation Modeling and Hierarchical Linear Modeling. 3 Credit Hours.

Overview of structural equation modeling (SEM) and hierarchical linear modeling (HLM) for continuous, categorical, longitudinal, and nested data.

Computer applications using real data and statistical software packages (Exel, SPSS, Mplus).

Prerequisite: NUR 674.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 680. Research Ethics. 0 Credit Hours.

This is a hybrid course that addresses the ethical and responsible conduct of research, protection of human subjects, and nursing science career development.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 681. Measurement of Nursing Phenomenon. 3 Credit Hours.

Development of instruments to measure a phenomenon of concern within the domain of nursing.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 682. Advanced Practice Psychopharmacology. 2 Credit Hours.

Review of common psychoactive medications, classes, uses, effects, side effects, and prescriptive implications.

Components: DIL.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 683. Theoretical Bases for Advanced Practice Psychiatric Mental Health Nursing. 2 Credit Hours.

Review of theories and practice of individual, group and, family therapy; role of advanced practice mental health nursing, ethics, research, legislative practice.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 684. Advanced Practice Psychiatric Mental Health Nursing Therapeutic Interventions. 1-5 Credit Hours.

Assessment and treatment of persons with major psychiatric disorders.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 685. Advanced Practice Psychiatric Mental Health Nursing Preceptorship. 4 Credit Hours.

Clinical preceptorship with experience in individual, and group, therapy. Includes experiences in prescribing psychoactive medications.
Prerequisites: NUR 682 and NUR 683 and NUR 684.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 686. Advanced Practice Psychiatric Mental Health Nursing Preceptorship II. 5 Credit Hours.

Clinical preceptorship with experience in individual, and family therapy. Includes experiences in prescribing psychoactive medications.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Summer.

NUR 688. Health Systems Development and Leadership Practice Immersion II. 2 Credit Hours.

This course contains individually precepted learning experiences across the spectrum of nursing in a variety of settings. Students develop expertise within the scope of their nursing practice.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 689. New Method of Implementation-Practice Immersion Experience III. 2 Credit Hours.

This course contains individually precepted learning experiences across the spectrum of nursing in a variety of settings. Students develop expertise within the scope of their nursing practice.

Prerequisites: NUR 676, NUR 688.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 690. Independent Study. 1-6 Credit Hours.

A in depth study of a specified area in advanced nursing of special interest to the student, under faculty guidance.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 694. Clinical Practicum for DNP Nurse Anesthesia Clinical. 7 Credit Hours.

This course is the clinical integration and synthesis of advanced knowledge and skills of interdisciplinary anesthesia nursing care for complex problems and conditions across the lifespan. Students assume responsibility for culturally competent and interdisciplinary anesthesia care with minimal assistance.

Prerequisite NUR 650.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 695. Clinical Practicum for DNP Nurse Anesthesia. 9 Credit Hours.

This course is the clinical integration and synthesis of advanced knowledge and skills of interdisciplinary anesthesia nursing care for complex problems and conditions across the lifespan. Students assume responsibility for culturally competent and interdisciplinary anesthesia care with minimal assistance.

Prerequisite: NUR 694.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 696. Crafting the Dissertation Proposal Part I. 2 Credit Hours.

The course is designed to help students focus and refine their ideas for their dissertation proposals. Focus is on developing and refining the ideas for the dissertation, and writing the introductory/review of the literature/methods chapters. The student will also begin preparation for a grant submission. During the semester, the course coordinators will assist the student in choosing a dissertation chair who will also provide input into the proposal.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 697. Selected Topics. 12.00 Credit Hours.

Subject matter offerings based upon student demand and availability of faculty. Subtitles describing topics will be shown in class schedule in parentheses after selected topic notation.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 698. Selected Topics. 6.00 Credit Hours.

Subject matter offerings based upon student demand and availability Of faculty. Subtitles describing topics will be shown in class schedule in parentheses after selected topic notation.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

NUR 699. Special Topics in Nursing Research. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Directed or independent research in collaboration with a faculty member providing opportunity for participation in ongoing nursing research. Specific requirements and credit allocation determined by contractual arrangement between student and faculty member.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 700. Post Master Clinical. 12.00 Credit Hours.

Post Master Clinical

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 701. Clinical Continuation. 6.00 Credit Hours.

Clinical Continuation

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

NUR 702. Adult Gerontology III. 7 Credit Hours.

Integration of the components of the Advanced Practice Nursing role to analyze adult gerontology advanced practice issues.

Prerequisite: NUR 631.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

NUR 703. Becoming a Successful Nurse Scientist 1. 0 Credit Hours.

This course is part 1 of a 4 course sequence that builds skills for academic and career success, provides a forum for discussing current issues in the discipline that have implications for research, and assists students with career planning. Weekly attendance is required for first year students. Third and fourth year students are invited to all course meetings and encouraged to attend for and/or present specific topics.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 704. Becoming a Successful Nurse Scientist 2. 0 Credit Hours.

This course is part 2 of a 4 course sequence that builds skills for academic and career success, provides a forum for discussing current issues in the discipline that have implications for research, and assists students with career planning. Weekly attendance is required for first year students. Third and fourth year students are invited to all course meetings and encouraged to attend for and/or present specific topics.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 705. Becoming a Successful Nurse Scientist 3. 0 Credit Hours.

This course is part 3 of a 4 course sequence that builds skills for academic and career success, provides a forum for discussing current issues in the discipline that have implications for research, and assists students with career planning. Weekly attendance is required for first year students. Third and fourth year students are invited to all course meetings and encouraged to attend for and/or present specific topics.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

NUR 706. Becoming a Successful Nurse Scientist 4. 0 Credit Hours.

This course is part 4 of a 4 course sequence that builds skills for academic and career success, provides a forum for discussing current issues in the discipline that have implications for research, and assists students with career planning. Weekly attendance is required for first year students. Third and fourth year students are invited to all course meetings and encouraged to attend for and/or present specific topics.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 796. Crafting the Dissertation Part 2. 2 Credit Hours.

The course is designed to help students: learn how to pursue funding for their dissertation research; and write the third(methods) chapter of their dissertation proposal. In addition to attending class, students are expected to meet regularly with their advisor (future Dissertation Chair) to obtain his/her input on assignments.

Prerequisite: NUR 696. And NUR 671.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

NUR 810. Master's Thesis. 1-6 Credit Hours.

The student working on his/her master's thesis enrolls for credit, in most departments not to exceed six, as determined by his/her advisor. Credit is not awarded until the thesis has been accepted.

Components: DIS.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 830. Doctoral Dissertation. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Required of all candidates for the Ph.D. The student will enroll for credit as determined by his/her advisor but not for less than a total of 12 credits. Not more than 12 hours of NUR 730 may be taken in a regular semester, nor more than six in a summer session. A student who has passed (a) qualifying examinations, and (b) is engaged in an assistantship, may still take the maximum allowable credit stated above.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

NUR 850. Research in Residence. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Used to establish research in residence for the Ph.D., after the student has been enrolled for the permissible cumulative total in appropriate doctoral research. Credit not granted. May be regarded as full-time residence as determined by the Dean of the Graduate School.

Components: THI.

Typically Offered: Fall.

OCE 503. Physical Oceanography. 3 Credit Hours.

Introduction to properties of seawater, instruments and methods, heat budget, general ocean circulation, formation of water masses, dynamics of circulation, regional oceanography, waves, tides, and sea level. A mathematical and problem solving course for majors in MPO.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

OCE 504. Analytical Methods in Marine and Atmospheric Chemistry. 1 Credit Hour.

A survey of analytical methods as applied to oceanographic and atmospheric chemistry. Course is taught in a multi-instructor format. Topics include trace organic analysis by HPLC, GC, and GC-MS, laser induced fluorescence detection of gas phase atoms, differential absorption detection of atmospheric species, aerosol sampling, ion chromatography, photochemical techniques, oceanographic tracers, microbiological techniques, and computational resources. Course is designed to be taught in conjunction with MAC 503.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

OCE 512. Marine Organic Geochemistry. 3 Credit Hours.

Broad introduction to the chemical constituents comprising organic matter in marine environments. This course will address how biological origins, dietary and detrital reworking, and physical phase influence the distribution and fluxes of organic matter in the marine carbon cycle, on both short and long timescales. Topics will address both the water column and sediments, in open-ocean and coastal environments. Students may choose topics of specific interest to their research for presentations and writing assignments (subject to instructor approval). The first half of the course will focus on the chemistry and physical phases of organic matter; the second half will focus on discussing the application of organic geochemical tools to environmental questions via the primary literature.

OCE 515. Environmental Hydrology. 3 Credit Hours.

An introduction to the physical processes of hydrological science. The principles of evapotranspiration, precipitation, infiltration, groundwater flow, seepage, overland flow, and stream flow are expounded. Areas of interrelation with environmental, marine, and geophysical sciences are emphasized. Measurement techniques for hydrological variables and the statistical analysis of hydrological data time series for runs and extremes are also described.

OCE 522. Marine Microbial Dynamics. 3 Credit Hours.

An overview of the function of microbes in the ocean from a chemical perspective, building a quantitative understanding of cellular needs and metabolic functions, and the role these microbial processes play in controlling chemical fluxes and biogeochemical cycles in the ocean.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

OCE 531. Ocean Data Analysis. 3 Credit Hours.

Useful and widely used ocean data analysis techniques are discussed. Topics covered include: a review of statistical concepts and linear algebra; time series analysis; least squares and regression techniques; principal component analysis; optimization and inverse methods; and simple models of ocean processes. Computational methods are emphasized. Choice of the material covered is dictated in part by student interests.

OCE 537. Natural Hazards: Atmosphere and Ocean. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to provide students with an understanding of natural hazards in both the atmosphere and ocean. In the atmosphere, we will explore both weather events such as storms and hurricanes and tornadoes as well as longer term phenomena such as monsoons and excess rainfall in the tropics. Oceanographically, the course will address hazards such as storm surge and flooding, rogue waves, rip currents, and tsunamis that occur on short time scales as well as the longer term effects such as sea level rise and the impacts of El Niño and La Niña oceanographic conditions on weather conditions. Thus, the course focus is on hazards and their impacts around the globe.

OCE 610. Ocean Biogeochemistry. 3 Credit Hours.

Introductory course to understand the ocean as a system. It will cover the interactions between biological, chemical, and geological processes in the environment, all within the context of physical controls. In the ocean, biogeochemistry includes the cycling of both major (e.g., C, N, P, Si, O) and minor elements (such as Fe). Tracing the spatial and temporal variability of these elements provides insights on the biological and geochemical processes at work, as well as the hydrographic and other controls on those processes. In this course, the physical ocean system is introduced in the context of its controls on the biological system, which in turn controls distributions of bioactive elements. Considered here are the major processes controlling ocean productivity, its roles as a carbon sink, organic matter production and consumption, the cycling of nutrients, the inorganic carbon system, and biogeochemistry of the sediments.

OCE 721. Waves and Tides I. 3 Credit Hours.

The focus of this course is on the kinematics, dynamics and energetics of wave motions in the ocean and atmosphere from both theoretical and observational perspectives. We examine the internal wave spectrum ranging from the buoyancy frequency to the inertial frequency including the WKBJ scaling of the momentum by the buoyancy frequency. The IW spectrum often contains both the semidiurnal and diurnal tidal frequencies where the former is often referred to as internal tide that are excited along continental margins by barotropic tides. Within the context of normal modes, Kelvin and topographically Rossby waves are also present in this regime known as coastally trapped (also known as continental shelf waves). The course then goes into the equatorial wave guide that supports these motions (except for near-inertial motions). This is followed by the forced wave motions by atmospheric fronts and cyclones where Green's functions are introduced.

OCE 767. Spectral and Finite Element Methods in Computational Fluid Dynamics. 3 Credit Hours.

The simulation of fluid flows in geometrically complex domains (like ocean basins) and/or with high fidelity requires the adoption of new discretization techniques that can simultaneously handle the complicated geometry and permit high accuracy solution. The finite element method has traditionally been used to tackle the geometric complexity while spectral methods have been developed to handle high accuracy in simple geometries. Here we present an approach to handle both complexity within a single framework, namely the spectral element method. The course starts by describing the weak formulation common to all finite element methods which, by design, are geometrically flexible. The second part of the course describe how high order polynomial can be implemented within the finite element framework to achieve high accuracy rates.

OCE 768. Marine Trace Element Geochemistry. 3 Credit Hours.

This course includes an in-depth discussion on all major aspects of oceanic trace element cycle and their application in oceanography and climate studies. The discussed topics include distribution, controlling processes, trace element speciation, isotopes, the role of trace elements in oceanic cycle of major nutrients and the application in the studies of past ocean history and climate. New data and major findings of the on-going GEOTRACES program will also be discussed.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

OCE 770. Seminar in Ocean Sciences. 1 Credit Hour.

Oral presentation of research and special topics by students, faculty, and visiting scientists.

Components: SEM.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

OCE 772. Advanced Underwater Acoustics. 3 Credit Hours.

Analysis and numerical modeling of sound propagation in the ocean: geometrical acoustics, normal mode theory, and the parabolic equation method. Recent advances in underwater acoustics: effects of oceanic variability, signal fluctuations, random medium propagation, ocean bottom interactions, and shallow water propagation are also examined.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

OCE 775. Advanced Studies. 1-4 Credit Hours.

Supervised study of special interest to graduate students.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

OCE 776. Mesoscale Oceanography. 3 Credit Hours.

The course will present a current view of our understanding of ocean mesoscale variability, including its properties in different oceanic regimes, the dynamics governing its origin and development, and its overall role in the oceans and climate. Lectures will present material covering theory, observations (both in situ and satellite), and numerical model results. Students will learn basic concepts on ocean mesoscale processes and perspectives on current research topics from lectures, assignments and research papers.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

OCE 780. Capstone Independent Study of Coastal Engineering (MSOE). 3 Credit Hours.

OCE 780 is an independent study course in the field of Coastal Engineering that is intended to be a final semester capstone project in the MS in Ocean Engineering program. The student will work with the instructor to select a laboratory or field experimental project of interest related to coastal oceanographic engineering. The student will review the background of similar studies, design the project applying appropriate scaling laws (in the case of the laboratory studies), design the measurements to be taken and the protocols for doing so. The student will assist in model construction as required. Data will be collected, analyzed and archived. A report will be prepared and presented at an open seminar on campus.

Components: IND.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

OCE 781. Special Topics in Marine Chemistry. 1-4 Credit Hours.

Lectures, research projects or directed readings in special topics related to marine chemistry.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

OCE 786. Advanced Ocean Measurements. 2 Credit Hours.

Theory and techniques of ocean measurements, ocean data systems, and processing and ocean data transmission are discussed. Lecture, 2 hours.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

OCE 790. Mechanics and Thermodynamics of the Air-Sea Interface. 3 Credit Hours.

This course deals with the theory and practice of air-sea interaction. Two hours of lectures and one hour in the wind-wave laboratory provide an appropriate mix of theory and experiment. The topics covered include: thermodynamics of the interface; conservation equations; wave generation, propagation, and dissipation; boundary layer turbulence; heat, mass, and momentum transfer; energy dissipation, intermittency; turbulence closure; and wave prediction models.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

OCE 793. Special Problems. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

OCE 800. Practical Training and Internship. 1-6 Credit Hours.

Supervised internships or off-campus employment for students pursuing the M.A., M.S., or Ph.D. degree. Consists of work related to research in progress.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

OCE 805. MPS Internship. 1-6 Credit Hours.

The Master of Professional Science internship is an approved, supervised internship project with an organization engaged in activities associated with the student's degree track. The internship results in a collaborative project, written report, and oral presentation on a topic approved by the student's advisory committee. Up to 6 credits are necessary for graduation.

Components: PRA.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

OCE 810. Master's Thesis. 1-6 Credit Hours.

The student working on his/her master's thesis enrolls for credit, in most departments not to exceed six, as determined by his/her advisor. Credit is not awarded until the thesis has been accepted.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

OCE 815. Master's Thesis-Post Candidacy. 1-6 Credit Hours.

Used to establish student has been admitted to candidacy for the MS degree. The student working on his/her Master's Thesis enrolls for credit not to exceed 6 combined with 710. Credit is not awarded until the Thesis has been accepted.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

OCE 820. Research in Residence. 1 Credit Hour.

Used to establish research in residence for the thesis for the master's degree after the student has enrolled for the permissible cumulative total in AMP 710 (usually six credits). Credit not granted. May be regarded as full time residence.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

OCE 830. Doctoral Dissertation. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Required of all candidates for the Ph.D. The student will enroll for credit as determined by his/her advisor but not for less than a total of 12. Not more than 12 hours of AMP 730 may be taken in a regular semester, nor more than six in a summer session. Where a student has passed his/her (a) qualifying examinations, and (b) is engaged in an assistantship, he/she may still take the maximum allowable credit stated above.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

OCE 850. Research in Residence. 1 Credit Hour.

Used to establish research in residence for the Ph.D., after the student has been enrolled for the permissible cumulative total in appropriate doctoral research. Credit not granted. May be regarded as full-time residence as determined by the Dean of the Graduate School.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Ophthalmology

OPH 610. Anatomy and Physiology of the Eye. 1 Credit Hour.

This course introduces the major anatomical and physiological regions of the eye, including cornea, lens, retina, optic nerve, cranial nerves and extraocular tissues. Emphasis is placed on the relationship between the eye and others systems. Demonstrations include eye dissection, visual testing and visual perception experimentation.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

OPH 615. Pathology of Eye Diseases. 1 Credit Hour.

This course covers in detail the major pathologies of the eye, including congenital diseases and syndromes, infectious diseases, tumors and adult-onset degenerations. Emphasis is placed on pathophysiological mechanisms contributing to pathology, and also covers examination of the eye, diagnostic features, and management of major eye diseases. Demonstrations include histological sections, OCT, visual field and angiogram, and associated diagnostic criteria.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

OPH 620. Ocular Pharmacology, Epidemiology, and Biostatistics. 1 Credit Hour.

Course will teach local anesthetics, anti-infectious, anti-allergic agents, control of ocular pain, adverse ocular and systemic reactions caused by therapeutic agents will be part of the course. Ocular therapeutic principles (pharmacokinetics and pharmacodynamics, toxicity), sources of drug information, new drug development, drug regulations as applicable to different areas of operation including prescription writing will be discussed. An introductory course in epidemiologic and biostatistics methodology covering study design for investigation of both infectious and chronic diseases of the eye; screening programs and health services research will also be discussed. Outbreak investigation, natural history of infectious diseases, validity of clinical tests, survival analysis, and clinical trial and etiologic studies will be discussed. Methods of biostatistician evaluation of experiment design and analyses of data to decipher significant from non-significant results and general tools for statistical analyses will be reviewed.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

OPH 625. Microbiology and Immunology of the Eye. 1 Credit Hour.

Students will learn concepts and terminologies of immunology, bacteriology, virology, parasitology and mycology with an emphasis on mechanisms of microbial disease transmission and host defense mechanisms. Students become familiar with the types of organisms responsible for human disease, the mechanisms by which they produce disease, and the application of this knowledge to the treatment of patients. This course integrates the biomedical disciplines of immunology and medical microbiology. Infectious and immunological diseases with relevance to the clinical setting and pharmacological approaches will be presented. A basic understanding of the classification and characteristics of infectious microorganisms, the mechanisms by which infectious agents cause disease, and methods of both prevention and treatment are highlighted. Causes and treatment of immune diseases will also be presented. Concepts of inflammation, sepsis, cell injury, tissue repair, hemodynamic disorders, genetic disorders, environmental and nutritional pathology, immunodeficiency diseases, autoimmune and metabolic diseases will be presented. Throughout the course, small group tutorials and interactive clinical correlations based on clinical cases linking basic science concepts to clinical medicine will be presented. Tutorials, clinico-pathological correlations and laboratories emphasize problem-solving skills, integration of knowledge and independent learning.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

OPH 630. Ophthalmic Genetics. 1 Credit Hour.

This course provides an overview of the influence of genetics in ophthalmology with respect to understanding pathogenic mechanisms of eye diseases, and the development of novel therapeutic strategies. The course will provide an introduction to complex and Mendelian genetics, and research strategies involved in identifying disease-associated genetic changes. Specific topics include hereditary retinal diseases, genetic associations in age related macular degeneration and glaucoma, genetics of myopia and optic nerve diseases, and mitochondrial disorders affecting the eye. Additional discussions include current gene therapy clinical trials.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

OPH 635. Electrophysiology of the eye. 1 Credit Hour.

This course will introduce the basic principles of electrophysiology of the eye, identify neural signals, neurotransmitters, molecular signaling within neurons. Additionally, the sensation and sensory systems. Emphasis is placed on the relationship between the eye and other signals and senses.

Corequisite: OPH 663.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

OPH 640. Vision and Optics. 2 Credit Hours.

This course will provide an introduction to the principles of geometrical optics and its application to the study and assessment of the visual system. Topic covered will include fundamental of geometrical optics, principles of optical system components (lenses, mirrors, prisms, light sources), optics of the eye and vision correction, basic principles of visual optical instruments (loupe, microscopes, telescopes), and principles and applications of ophthalmic diagnostic and imaging systems, including ophthalmoscopes, retinoscopes, slit-lamp, keratometers, corneal topography systems, aberrometers and optical coherence tomography.

Corequisite: OPH 662.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

OPH 645. Biochemistry, Cellular and Molecular Ophthalmology. 2 Credit Hours.

An introduction to biochemistry with emphasis on ocular clinical applications. Topics will include nutrition, cellular biology, biochemistry of tears, conjunctiva, and cornea. The structure and functions of proteins and enzymes as well as metabolism of carbohydrates and lipids will be discussed. Case studies and journal articles will be used to demonstrate the useful applications of these principles to ocular health-related issues.

Components: LEC.

OPH 661. LAB: Basic Biochemistry, Microbiology, and Pathology. 3 Credit Hours.

Experiments related to molecular biology (includes PCR, DNA cloning, hybridization analysis, restriction mapping, and DNA sequence analysis), protein purification and analysis (salt fractionation, ion exchange chromatography, affinity chromatography, SDS-PAGE, and immuno-blotting), and determination of enzyme kinetic parameters.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

OPH 662. Lab: Basic and Applied Optics and Statistics. 1 Credit Hour.

This laboratory course serves as a companion to the Vision and Optics course. It will include practical hands-on examples of the application of geometrical optical theory to the design and calculation of optical systems, provide an initial hands-on experience with basic optical system setup on an optical bench, and provide basic hand-on training or demonstration of ophthalmic diagnostic techniques and instruments, including refraction, ophthalmoscopy, retinoscopy, slit-lamp examination, aberrometry, corneal topography and optical coherence tomography.

Corequisite: OPH 640.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

OPH 663. Lab: Electrophysiology, Clinical Testing and Applications. 1 Credit Hour.

This laboratory work will introduce the students to novel clinical recording techniques, electrophysiologic tests, and clinical applications of ERG, EOG, and VEP. Emphasis is placed on novel and specialized clinical applications and recordings. The course will be divided in two sections. Section one ends with focus on the effects of maturation, aging, and testing in infants. Section two will conclude with electrophysiologic findings of many clinical conditions and clinical applications of ERG, EOG, and VEP of various eye disorders/diseases.

Corequisite: OPH 635.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

OPH 691. Clinical Ophthalmology Update. 2 Credit Hours.

Society, Science and Medicine. History and evolution of medicine, Seminars on different aspects of medicine including a broad spectrum view of career options. The emphasis will be how medicine has been developed historically, its efficacy, and the future outlook. For example, antibiotic resistant bacteria was discovered in 12,000 year old underground caves that makes us realize that antibiotic resistance is an old problem and we need to have an outlook bearing that in mind. .

OPH 771. PBL: Advanced and High Throughput Approaches in Science. 2 Credit Hours.

The Problem-Based Learning Method (PBL) was designed to teach students in small groups to identify specific techniques that will yield the answers to the problems. Content will include the underlying norms and principles that shaped these concepts. The courses also include plenary session presentations by experts on relevant topics and their use in preparing manuscripts and grant applications and policies regarding conduct of experiments using these techniques.

Components: ENS.

OPH 772. PBL: Management skills and Tools for Academia and Enterprises. 2 Credit Hours.

This Problem-Based learning course will introduce grant writing, pre-award preparation, post-award management and will be taught using problem-based modules. Federal and non-federal extramural grants will be used as modules specific aspects of different segmental grants will be presented. Major research grant, training and fellowships, grants-in-aid will be taught. In addition, small business innovation research (SBIR) or STTR will be covered. Students will learn techniques to analyze markets, identify optimal opportunities, develop plans to sell their vision in order to attract talent and stakeholders. A series of problem-based lectures integrates modern business concepts from an entrepreneurial approach.

OPH 773. PBL: Animal Models, Regulatory issues, and Research Methods. 2 Credit Hours.

Part I: The aim of this Problem-Based learning course is to provide students the basic understanding and expertise pertaining to generation and implementation of preclinical research IACUC protocol. This course consists of a problem based learning module with a focus on developing students' understanding of various animal models in preclinical research and how to refine animal research models that meet the requirement of IACUC regulation. Part II: The purpose of this course is to provide clinical research regulatory expertise with an aim to create future leaders in the drug development industry. This regulatory science course uses a multidisciplinary approach and encompasses course work in regulatory writing techniques, quality systems, and medical device and pharmaceutical regulation. The concentration is designed to develop the student's understanding of how to meet regulatory oversight requirements as they relate to the conduct of clinical studies. This course will prepare students to play critical roles throughout the lifecycle of pharmaceuticals, medical devices, and biologics. They provide strategic, tactical and operational direction, and support for working within regulations to expedite the development and delivery of safe and effective healthcare products to individuals around the world. The regulatory professional's services can be utilized in research and development, clinical trials, extension of premarket approvals, manufacturing, labeling and advertising, and post-market surveillance. Knowledge of clinical research conduct and management which involves the design, execution and management of clinical trials as well as quality assurance and compliance principles are important to regulatory professionals. Course also provides highlight on how to effectively partner with experts such as writers drafting pre- and post- approval regulatory FDA submission documentation (INDs, NDAs, PMAs etc.) for product clearance or licensure, IRB reviewers and investigational Pharmacists to enhance the development of healthcare products.

Principles and techniques of logic applied to legal reasoning.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PHI 236. Feminist Philosophy. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is an introduction to issues in feminist philosophy, including its critique of Western philosophy and its contributions to major areas of philosophy such as ethics, social philosophy, theories of human nature, and theories of knowledge. Theories of oppression introduced at the beginning of the course inform analyses of sexism, heterosexism, racism, classism and ableism, and philosophizing about these "isms" is aided by sociocultural research. The emphasis is not only on what is contained in these topics, but also on how to think critically about them.

PHI 240. Language, Power and Politics. 3 Credit Hours.

A discussion of various types of politically relevant speech, which includes terms like 'gender' and 'race', slurs, political rhetoric, feminist discourse, pornography. How do politicians use rhetoric to persuade and manipulate their targets? How do words embody an ideology? How do we use language to demean, derogate, silence and hurt other people based on their gender, ethnic origin, religious affiliation or sexual orientation? What is the meaning of slurs? And how does this meaning enable slurs to derogate? How is pornography a speech act and how does it subordinate and silence women? Should pornography be granted protection under the first amendment? What does it mean to be a 'women' and what does it mean to be a 'feminist'? What do certain gendered and racial terms mean? How might language constitute or enable violence?

PHI 271. Ancient Philosophy. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will introduce students to Ancient Greek ideas by examining central philosophical themes, such as: Knowledge; Why Be Moral? Justice in the City/Justice in the Soul; Liberty and Social Engineering; Happiness; Friendship; Death. We will use primary texts (in translation) by Plato, Aristotle, Cicero, and Augustine of Hippo, supplemented by some selections from the Greek historian Thucydides. Some Greek vocabulary will be assigned. The final exam will consist of a 2-week-long role playing game, The Threshold of Democracy: Athens in 403 B.C. (Developed by the Classics department at Barnard College, and a core component of Ancient Philosophy courses at UT Austin). Students will be assigned different roles: Thrasylbulus; a radical Democrat; an Oligarch; and a supporter of Socrates.

PHI 349. Philosophy of Space and Time. 3 Credit Hours.

Time and space are notoriously difficult to think about. We seem to have an intuitive understanding of them, but it is surprisingly hard to express that understanding. To make matters worse, modern physics challenges what little grasp we thought we had on the concepts of space and time. We are told that space can be curved, and that there can fail to be an objective fact about which of two events occurred first. So we are left without even an intuitive grasp of two of the most fundamental concepts of experience.

PHI 356. Philosophy of Education. 3 Credit Hours.

Examines the nature and aims of education. Of particular concern will be the evaluation of five possible epistemic aims of education: knowledge, truth, rationality, understanding, and intellectual virtue. Are all of these legitimate aims? How do they relate to one another? Are any more fundamental than the others? We will also consider a range of moral/political/social aims of education. A general question concerns the cultural embeddedness of all such proposed aims, so we will consider the place of considerations of diversity, multiculturalism, and their place in civic education in democratic societies in the determination of legitimate educational aims and ideals.

PHI 544. The Philosophy of Language. 3 Credit Hours.

A central feature of human language is that it is meaningful; this is what allows us to use language to record and share information about the world, and to communicate the ideas, thoughts and emotions that make up our private mental lives. But what is linguistic meaning? One historically influential idea is that linguistic meaning is to be analyzed in terms of truth. This course will examine this idea, and consider several philosophical debates that have arisen from it, or in which it has played an important role. Along the way students will gain an understanding of some of the most central concepts and issues in contemporary philosophy of language.

PHI 553. Philosophy and Film. 3 Credit Hours.

Combining readings in philosophy and film theory and criticism with close analysis of selected films, this course is premised on a conviction in the potential fruitfulness, both for film studies and philosophy, of thinking philosophically about the ontology of the medium, the history and the art of film, the ways we experience movies, and their impact on our lives. A main focus will be on the writings of Stanley Cavell-the most important author in the Anglo/American philosophical tradition to make writing about film a substantial part of his philosophical project-and philosophical responses by to his work.

A selected philosopher or philosophical problem. May be repeated for credit.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHI 798. Independent Study in Philosophy. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Directed reading on a topic or philosopher. May be repeated for credit.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHI 810. Master's Thesis. 1-6 Credit Hours.

The student working on his/her master's thesis enrolls for credit, in most departments not to exceed six, as determined by his/her advisor. Credit is not awarded until the thesis has been accepted.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PHI 830. Doctoral Dissertation. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Required of all candidates for the Ph.D. The student will enroll for credit as determined by his/her advisor, but for not less than a total of 12 hours. Up to 12 hours may be taken in a regular semester, but not more than six in a summer session.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PHI 840. Post-candidacy doctoral dissertation. 1-6 Credit Hours.

Required of all candidates for the Ph.D. who have advanced to candidacy. The student will enroll for credit as determined by his/her advisor, but not for less than a total of 12. Not more than 12 hours of PHI 740 may be taken in a regular semester, nor more than six in a summer session.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PHI 850. Research in Residence. 1 Credit Hour.

Used to establish research in residence for the Ph.D., after the student has been enrolled for the permissible cumulative total in appropriate doctoral research. Credit not granted. May be regarded as full-time residence as determined by the Dean of the Graduate School.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

Physical Science (PSC)

PSC 101. Physical Science. 3 Credit Hours.

An interdisciplinary course to provide the non-science major with an understanding of some of the methods, ideas and accomplishments of Physics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Geology, and their role in the development of civilization.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

Physical Therapy (PTS)

PTS 601. Advanced Clinical Practice: Counterstrain 1. 1 Credit Hour.

This seminar course will provide an in depth discussion of the history, physiologic rationale, and fundamentals of the Strain Counterstrain method of manual therapy. Newer concepts of fascial science will also be explored. Counterstrain I will stress palpation skills as the foundation for any manual therapist and will teach advanced palpatory anatomy techniques. 30-50 Counterstrain techniques spanning the whole body and consisting of the musculoskeletal, neurovascular, and visceral systems will be taught through lecture, demonstration, and lab.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 602. LAGO Local Pro-Bono Clinic Elective. 1 Credit Hour.

This course is designed to provide physical therapy students with an integrated clinical experience under the supervision of licensed physical therapist. The students work in a pro-bono clinic located at University of Miami Hospital. Students will have the opportunity to participate in the full spectrum of physical therapy care with a population of uninsured patients in need of a broad range of health care and health care education services. Students will have an opportunity to apply previously learned knowledge and skills as it applies to the needs assessed in the community for pro bono service. Health risk issues related to prevention will be assessed and physical therapy services applicable to the needs will be designed.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PTS 603. Introduction to Principles of Orthotic Fabrication and Prescription. 1 Credit Hour.

This seminar course is designed to introduce the art of custom orthotic making. We will explore the various categories within custom orthotics; static, dynamic, serial static, and static progressive. A comparison of the features of pre-fabricated orthoses vs. custom made will be made. The application of clinical reasoning to decision making will equip the Therapist with the necessary information to assist them when considering the orthotic options to achieve the best possible outcome for their patients.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 604. Rehabilitation Technology for Physical Therapists. 1 Credit Hour.

This course will introduce current advancements in diagnostic and therapeutic equipment used by physical therapists in clinical practice. The emphasis will be on latest rehabilitation technology such as virtual reality, neural stimulation and rehabilitation robotics. Students will observe the equipment being used on patients, get a basic understanding of its operation and have an opportunity for hands-on learning.

Components: LEC.

Grading: CNC.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 605. Physical Therapy Private Practice Management. 1 Credit Hour.

Course focuses on establishing a private physical therapy practice, including initial development through marketing and management.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 606. Issues in Women's Health: Gynecology. 1 Credit Hour.

Introduction to physical therapy practice for evaluation and treatment of pelvic floor dysfunction.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 607. Issues in Women's Health: Obstetrics, Osteoporosis and Breast Health. 1 Credit Hour.

Introduction to physical therapy practice for evaluation and treatment of problems related to pregnancy, osteoporosis, and other disorders specific to women.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 608. Nutrition for Physical Therapists. 1 Credit Hour.

A presentation of nutrition content that will benefit the professional skills of physical therapists.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 609. Advances in Amputee Rehabilitation and Prosthetic Technology. 1 Credit Hour.

This course is designed to provide interested students with educational materials about amputations surgery, prosthetic technology and rehabilitation that will augment the information presented in other courses. A select faculty of experts have been invited to present on topics of interest that provide greater depth of knowledge for those physical therapy students who are interested in the field of prosthetics and amputee care. Students will be encouraged to actively participate during each presentation with thought provoking dialog regarding how technology, evidence-based rehabilitation and disciplines involved in prosthetic rehabilitation can work together as a team to generate a better than satisfactory outcome for people with limb loss.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 610. Introduction to Pilates - Gateway. 1 Credit Hour.

This course provides in-depth instruction in the use of Pilates Mat to supplement physical therapy practice. This course covers the history of Pilates and Polestar education, biomechanics, and the many uses of Pilates in physical practices, as well as instruction in 18 Pilates mat exercises. Students learn to perform and teach the exercises and 4 unique class sequences.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PTS 611. Advanced Clinical Practice: Topics in Pediatrics. 1 Credit Hour.

The course will focus on advanced topics in pediatric physical therapy. Through lecture, seminar discussion and lab experiences, topics will include: typical and atypical development over the first year and examination and evidence-based intervention strategies used in early intervention strategies.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 612. Sports Physical Therapy. 1 Credit Hour.

An overview of the general aspects of sports physical therapy practice will be provided. Topics will include the various settings, evaluations, interventions, and techniques involved in Sports physical therapy practice.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 613. Advanced Clinical Practice: Evaluation and Treatment of the Foot and Ankle. 1 Credit Hour.

This course will review the anatomy, normal and abnormal kinesiology/biomechanics, pathology and imaging of the foot and ankle and discuss physical therapy evaluation and intervention based on evidence based practice. It will include an introduction to evaluation and negative casting for orthotics.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 614. Certified Strength and Conditioning Specialist Preparation (NSCA). 1 Credit Hour.

Evaluation and exercise planning of athletes to help them achieve their maximum physical performance without incurring injury. Case studies, a problem-solving approach, and integration of previously learned material are emphasized. Classroom instruction, exercise performance, video analysis, and case studies are utilized.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 615. Advance Clinical Practice: Taping for the Orthopedic Population.. 1 Credit Hour.

This seminar course is designed to introduce the participant to the concepts of taping for various musculoskeletal pathologies commonly seen in the athletic population. Athletic taping and kinesiotaping principles and uses in rehabilitation will be introduced. A lab component will allow participants to practice the various taping techniques demonstrated.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 616. Clinical Research I. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides a foundation for evidence based practice as a physical therapist. It presents the principles, concepts and basic skills required to identify, evaluate, create and apply research evidence to the practice of physical therapy. Topics covered include levels of research evidence, health/disability models, searching for research literature including electronic data bases hypothesis testing, critical review of research literature, measurement, statistical analysis, research design, sampling, bias, and statistical computing.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 617. Abdominal Anatomy. 1 Credit Hour.

Course analyzes abdominal anatomy emphasizing structure and function. Cadaver dissection is included.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 619. Pelvic Anatomy. 1 Credit Hour.

Course analyzes the anatomy of the human pelvic area. Cadaver dissection is included.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 620. Spanish for Physical Therapists. 1 Credit Hour.

This course is designed to familiarize the physical therapy student with different aspects of the Spanish speaking culture. This course is also designed to assist the student in developing the basic communication skills in Spanish needed in the clinical setting when working with Spanish speaking patients.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 621. Advanced Topics in Neurologic Physical Therapy: Vestibular Rehabilitation. 1 Credit Hour.

This course will expand on knowledge and skills developed in prior courses (Neuroscience, Neuro Examination, and Neurorehabilitation) to focus on the clinical management of an individual with a vestibular disorder from identification of dysfunction through comprehensive clinical management.

Through lecture, seminar discussion, and lab experiences, topics will include: Comprehensive vestibular examination and evaluation, Clinical management and intervention strategies, Competency skills checklist, Implementation of treatment

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

PTS 623. Myofascial Release. 1 Credit Hour.

Introduction to Myofascial Release technique in rehabilitation.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 624. Myofascial Release II. 1 Credit Hour.

A follow up to the introductory course MFR I. This course focuses on a review of bioenergy followed by practice of release techniques for trunk, extremities and head and neck. Cranial techniques and rebounding are also taught.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 625. Introduction to Dry Needling Theory and Technique. 1 Credit Hour.

Course introduces the participant to the concepts of dry needling, its neuro-functional principles, and its use in a physical therapy setting. Emphasis on comparing and contrasting dry needling to acupuncture, as well as the safety, indications and contraindications of dry needling. A lab component will allow participants to practice various introductory dry needling techniques.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 627. Gateway Pilates II. 1 Credit Hour.

This two-day Pilates course will teach how to provide four new basic Pilates Mat classes. A total of 18 Gateway 2 preparatory exercises and original Pilates Mat exercises will be taught. The instructor will provide ample experiences for real time practice of each of the 4 Pilates Mat sequences, and will provide feedback to each participant pertaining to additional training and practice to become proficient teachers of the Gateway Introductory Mat work.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 629. Evaluation and Treatment of Spinal Dysfunctions I. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides an in-depth exploration of the evaluation and treatment of various dysfunctions of the spine. The lumbar and sacro-iliac regions will be explored. Thorough evaluation procedures will be emphasized as they relate to specific diagnosis. Treatment for the respective diagnoses will include therapeutic exercise, soft tissue stretching, and postural re-education.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 630. Foundations of Physical Therapy. 3 Credit Hours.

Historical development, philosophical foundations and contemporary practice of a physical therapist as an educator, consultant, researcher, administrator, and model of healthy behaviors. Health as indicated by global fitness measures will be demonstrated and experienced. Medical terminology mastered.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 631. Gross Anatomy for Physical Therapy I. 3 Credit Hours.

Gross anatomy with emphasis on the musculoskeletal systems and a survey of other systems that are relevant to physical therapy practice. Cadaver dissection.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 632. Gross Anatomy for Physical Therapy II. 3 Credit Hours.

Gross Anatomy with emphasis on the musculoskeletal systems and a survey of other systems that are relevant to physical therapy practice. Cadaver dissection.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 633. Communication in Physical Therapy Practice. 2 Credit Hours.

Course provides an analysis of communication skills in physical therapy clinical practice. Emphasis is placed on instruction of patients and their families, supportive staff, and health care team members. In-depth examination of patient-therapist interactions is included. Prerequisite: Open to Physical Therapy majors only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 640. Neuroscience I. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will explore the human nervous system with an emphasis on the relationship between structure and function. The gross structures of the central and peripheral nervous systems will be discussed, and basic neurophysiological and neuropsychological constructs regarding the function of the nervous system will be explored. Particular emphasis is placed on the systems involved in human motor control and function, its assessment, and the basis for diagnosis and treatment selection by physical therapists.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 641. Neuroscience II. 3 Credit Hours.

Basic neurophysiological and neuropsychological constructs regarding the function of the nervous system are explored. Analyses of normal systems are contrasted with abnormal systems. Particular emphasis is placed on the systems involved in human motor control and function, its assessment, and the basis for diagnosis and treatment selection by physical therapists.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 642. Electrotherapy. 3 Credit Hours.

This course presents the physiological rationale, indications, contraindications and the application of electrical modalities, including electrical stimulation, thermal modalities, sound modalities, compressive devices, mechanical machinery, and light therapy.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 643. Medical Pathology Seminar I. 1 Credit Hour.

Lectures and seminar discussion on medical and surgical management of pathological conditions, with particular emphasis on musculoskeletal disorders.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 644. Medical Pathology Seminar II. 1 Credit Hour.

Lectures and seminar discussion on pathological conditions with particular emphasis on neuromuscular and musculoskeletal disorders.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 645. Medical Pathology Seminar III. 1 Credit Hour.

This course provides lectures and seminar discussion on medical and surgical management of pathological conditions, with particular emphasis on regenerative medicine, neuromuscular disorders and women's health.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 646. Medical Pathology Seminar IV. 1 Credit Hour.

Lectures and seminar discussion of pathological conditions with particular emphasis on cardiorespiratory and pediatric disorders.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 650. Pharmacology. 2 Credit Hours.

Basic principles of pharmacology and pharmacotherapeutics. Contemporary drug therapies and their effects on patients undergoing rehabilitation are discussed.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 670. Clinical Skills in Physical Therapy. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is specifically designed to provide each student with the necessary and basic clinical skills to function within a variety of patient settings. Utilizing a combination of lecture and the associated co-requisite laboratory, this course will cover proper body mechanics, patient positioning and draping, massage, daily patient documentation, vital signs, range of motion, basic wheelchair management and measurement, bed mobility and transfers, tilt table benefits and management, ambulatory assistive devices and gait training with assistive devices.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 671. Therapeutic Physiology. 2 Credit Hours.

This course will require the student to analyze and apply physiologic principles to promote optimal patient evaluation and management. A variety of tests and measures will be reviewed and will be integrated with specific physiologic principles in order for the student to better understand the role of therapeutic interventions for patients referred to physical therapy. The focus of the course will revolve around several related themes including (1) interpreting the cardiorespiratory response to exercise, (2) understanding energy production and regulation, (3) integrating the cardiovascular, pulmonary, and muscular systems to better understand and interpret cardiorespiratory function as well as energy production, regulation, and homeostasis, and (4) examining the effects of de-conditioning and re-conditioning using different forms of exercise for individuals who are healthy or diagnosed with a medical disorder.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 672. Clinical Kinesiology and Biomechanics. 3 Credit Hours.

A study of musculoskeletal structure and function, physiological and biomechanical factors, and principles underlying the kinematics and kinetics of normal and abnormal human motion.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 674. Clinical Examination. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will present the basic examination skills for patients with various diseases and dysfunctions of the neuromusculoskeletal system. The skills emphasized are patient interviewing, palpation, reflex/sensory testing, cranial nerve testing, coordination testing, manual muscle testing, goniometric measurement with assessment of end feels, upper and lower quarter screening, postural assessment, and documentation of findings.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 675. Clinical Decision Making I. 2 Credit Hours.

This course presents components of physical therapist practice with an emphasis on evidence-based decision making related to interviewing patients, selecting appropriate tests and measures, arriving at a physical therapy diagnosis and developing a plan of care within the physical therapist's scope of practice. Documentation formats as they relate to clinical decision making are presented. The Physical Therapist Guide to Practice patient/client management model, International Classification of Function, and practice patterns are presented. The process of physical therapy diagnosis is presented. Students will be given an opportunity to practice with case studies.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 676. Medical Screening in Physical Therapy. 1 Credit Hour.

This course presents content related to screening for medical conditions in order to make clinical decisions about appropriateness for physical therapy and need for medical referral for patients presenting for physical therapy management.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 695. Selected Topics in Physical Therapy. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Topics in contemporary physical therapy clinical practice with focus on specialty areas such as neonatal pulmonary care, balance/vestibular dysfunction, geriatrics, pediatrics, obstetrics, and gynecology.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PTS 706. Neurological Evaluation. 2 Credit Hours.

Comprehensive evaluation of the patient with neurological dysfunction. Emphasis is placed on decision making, differential diagnosis, selection, and interpretation of examination components.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 708. Human Gait and Locomotion. 1 Credit Hour.

This course is an in-depth study of the fundamental mechanisms of normal human gait and locomotion. Students will be instructed on the terminology, normal joint range of motion and muscle function of the lower limbs during gait. Mechanisms of observational and instrumented analyses of gait will be discussed. Identification of common gait deviations, using observational gait analysis skills, will be briefly discussed.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 710. Clinical Internship I. 2 Credit Hours.

First in a series of supervised clinical education experiences emphasizing the mastery of clinical skills and professional behaviors across patient care settings as they relate to the patient/client management model. This is an 8-week clinical internship.

Components: CLN.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 711. Clinical Internship II. 2 Credit Hours.

Second in a series of supervised clinical education experiences emphasizing the mastery of clinical skills and professional behaviors across patient care settings as they relate to the patient/client management model. This is an 8-week clinical internship.

Components: CLN.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 714. Neurorehabilitation. 3 Credit Hours.

Evidence-based practices in the treatment of individuals with neurological involvement are explored. Emphasis is placed upon the integration and application of theoretical constructs, prognostic indicators, examination and evaluation findings, and therapeutic intervention strategies utilized by physical therapists in neurological rehabilitation across disease course and practice settings.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 715. Rehabilitation of the Complex Patient. 3 Credit Hours.

The course will instruct students on the management of individuals with complex pathology that has additional complex social and environmental factors. Emphasis will be placed on the principles of assessment, treatment, discharge planning, and referral in the Acute Care environment. Topics covered include: early mobilization in the ICU, management of patients with multiple lines, drains, and tubes, multiple trauma, cancer, hospice and palliative care, bariatrics, solid organ transplantation, patient safety, collaboration with healthcare team members, and use of acute care appropriate outcome measures. The course includes hands on transfer labs, patient evaluation and simulation experiences, and a practical examination on assessment and mobilization of a simulated complex patient.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 717. Clinical Research II. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is a continuation of Clinical Research I that provides the student with continued guidance in the completion of the faculty led research project begun as part of Clinical Research I. A series of lectures also provide exposure to additional topics relevant to clinical research in Physical Therapy. Potential lecture topics include data analysis, design, error, philosophy of science, and research reporting.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 718. Physical Therapy Administration. 3 Credit Hours.

Course discusses physical therapy services, departmental policies and procedures, and personnel management. Issues relevant to clinical practice and the physical therapy profession are emphasized.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 720. Biomechanical Basis of Human Movement. 3 Credit Hours.

A study of the basic biomechanical principles underlying the kinetics and kinematics of normal and abnormal human motion as well as the measurement of human movement.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 721. Measurement of Impairment and Function in Human Movement. 3 Credit Hours.

A study of measurement tools utilized in the analysis of normal and abnormal human motion.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 722. Pathobiology of Human Function I. 3 Credit Hours.

Pathophysiology of musculo-skeletal processes that impair human function including skeletal muscle; skin, tendons, ligaments, cartilage; bone; and cardiorespiratory.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 724. Cardio-Respiratory Physical Therapy. 3 Credit Hours.

The skills necessary for the evaluation and treatment of patients with various cardio-respiratory diseases and dysfunctions. Inpatient and outpatient cardiac and respiratory rehabilitation is included. Research on prevention of cardio-respiratory diseases and dysfunctions as it relates to evaluative, and therapeutic methods is also discussed.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 726. Therapeutic Exercise. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will be a comprehensive approach for the evaluation and management of patients with various orthopaedic pathologies and their related dysfunction(s). An emphasis will be placed on evidence-based practice, critical thinking, treatment algorithms, as they all inter-relate to therapeutic exercises. The general focus of this course is to possess entry-level skills in the cognitive, affective, and psychomotor domains as they relate to the treatment of a wide-variety of orthopaedic conditions.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 727. Prosthetics and Orthotics. 3 Credit Hours.

This course offers a comprehensive approach to the evaluation, treatment and management of people who require the intervention of prosthetic or orthotic appliances. Identification and application of appropriate therapeutic management alternatives are integrated with self-help appliances to assist with the goal of returning the client to the community and/or the highest level of social interaction.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 728. Musculoskeletal Examination and Manual Treatment I. 3 Credit Hours.

In-depth examination of differential diagnosis of various extremity dysfunctions with principles of examining soft tissue, bony and post-surgical problems relevant to the shoulder, elbow, wrist/hand, hip, knee, ankle, and foot. Manual therapy/joint mobilizations for each joint will also be introduced.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 729. Evaluation and Treatment of Spinal Dysfunctions II. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides an in-depth exploration of the evaluation and treatment of various dysfunctions of the spine. The cervical, thoracic, suboccipital regions and TMJ will be explored. Students will review the lumbar and sacro-iliac dysfunctions. Students are expected to critically review and investigate the literature relevant to the cervical, thoracic, and head-neck regions. Treatment for respective diagnoses will include therapeutic exercise, soft tissue stretching and manual therapy techniques. Clinical competence in manual evaluation and treatment procedures are to be developed.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 730. Pediatric Physical Therapy. 2 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to provide students with an entry level knowledge, attitudes and skills essential for working with children with movement dysfunction. Examination and evidence-based practices utilized by physical therapists in the treatment of children with musculoskeletal, neuromuscular, cardiopulmonary, integumentary and/or cognitive/affective issues will be emphasized.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 731. Geriatric Physical Therapy. 2 Credit Hours.

A case-based clinical approach to factors and issues related to examination, evaluation, diagnosis, prognosis, and intervention of aging adults by physical therapists. Topics covered include age-related versus activity related changes to body systems; use of standardized functional assessments appropriate for aging adults; successful aging; musculoskeletal, neuromuscular, cardiopulmonary, cognitive and psychiatric disorders in the elderly; fall risk assessment and fall prevention; home and environmental adaptations/modifications; health care delivery sites/systems; nutrition; polypharmacy; Medicare rules and regulation related to rehabilitation; frailty/sarcopenia; and strength training and exercise prescription in the aging adult. Focused discussion centers on clinical decision making across multiple geriatric settings.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 743. Measuring Health Outcomes. 3 Credit Hours.

An in depth analysis of the use and construction of health outcome measures. Topics covered include creating and selecting items, scaling responses, scale construction, response bias, reliability, validity, responsiveness and methods of administration.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PTS 744. Integrated Sports and Leisure. 3 Credit Hours.

Course promotes the integration of students with the physically challenged by working together to learn common recreational activities. Sailing and camping activities are used as an educational tool for students to learn the capabilities, physical resources, and assistance required by physically challenged individuals.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 745. Integumentary Disorders and Treatment. 2 Credit Hours.

The course will instruct students on the management of individuals with open wounds, burns, and other dermatologic pathology from a patient focused perspective. Emphasis is placed on clinical decision making as it relates to the principles of assessment, treatment, referral, and prevention. Topics covered include: wound assessment and documentation, debridement, electrical stimulation and ultrasound for wounds, dressing selection, skin breakdown and pressure ulcer prevention, support surface selection, burns, skin grafts and muscle flaps, evaluation of arterial and venous circulation, nutrition, and the identification of melanoma, basal cell and squamous carcinoma, psoriasis, impetigo, shingles and other dermatological pathology. The course includes labs for wound evaluation, measurement, debridement, dressing selection and application, pressure mapping and support surface selection.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 748. Musculoskeletal Examination and Treatment II. 3 Credit Hours.

Advanced examination, evaluation, functional assessment and treatment of patients in selected specialty areas of musculoskeletal physical therapy, with emphasis on functional outcomes and evidence based treatment throughout the life span.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 755. Neuromuscular Basis of Movement. 3 Credit Hours.

Concepts of neuromuscular production and regulation of movement with emphasis on neurophysiologic substrates and mechanisms underlying motor behavior.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 760. Theories of Movement Science. 3 Credit Hours.

An in-depth review of classical theories and recent research in the movement sciences, to include the study and analysis of system theory and neurobiological substrates.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 761. Motor Learning. 3 Credit Hours.

The factors relating to, and affecting, the acquisition and performance of motor skills. Qualification of skill acquisition and performance are explored.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 762. Advanced Topics in Neurodevelopment. 3 Credit Hours.

Classical research and systems models of neurodevelopment is reviewed, analyzed, and related to current research on various areas of human development throughout the lifespan.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PTS 764. Seminars in Neuroscience. 3 Credit Hours.

This course explores the role and organization of the key units of the central and peripheral nervous systems at the molecular and cellular levels. The integrated functional physiology of systems neuroscience and behavioral neuroscience will be studied with special emphasis on neural contributions to involuntary and voluntary motor functions, perception, cognition, and learning. PREREQUISITE: For Physical Therapy PhD students only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PTS 765. Health Promotion and Disease Prevention. 2 Credit Hours.

The role of physical therapists in health promotion and disease prevention.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PTS 766. Rehabilitation of the Amputee. 3 Credit Hours.

This course examines the scientific evidence related to the evaluation, treatment and management of clients who require intervention for diabetic foot and/or dysvascular limb potentially leading to amputation, amputation surgery, prosthetic appliances, functional assessment and amputee rehabilitation. Upper limb prosthetic management will also be examined.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PTS 767. Prosthetic Technology and Amputee Rehabilitation. 3 Credit Hours.

This course examines the current scientific evidence related to prosthetic devices with regard to evaluation, fabrication, materials, fitting and functional outcomes. Emphasis is on state-of-the-art technology and the future of prosthetic designs.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PTS 768. Rehabilitation Engineering and Assistive Technology. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is designed for graduate students interested in developing an understanding of complementary roles of clinicians and engineers in assisting individuals with disabilities in all areas of life.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PTS 769. Seminars in Orthotics and Prosthetic Rehabilitation. 3 Credit Hours.

Examination of current scientific evidence and clinical issues related to upper and lower limb amputees, and prosthetic and orthotic componentry and related technology. Students will discuss case studies and design appropriate devices to address the needs of the individuals in the cases.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PTS 770. Education Principles in Physical Therapy. 1 Credit Hour.

Principles of education, as they apply to the educational setting, and in patient care. Students are instructed in basic educational principles and methods to prepare materials and instruct and evaluate learning for patients, families, caretakers, students, colleagues, and others, in the classroom, clinic and community.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 771. Complementary Therapies in Rehabilitation. 2 Credit Hours.

Historical development and evidence-based approach to complementary therapies in rehabilitation.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 774. Role of Academic Faculty in Physical Therapy. 3 Credit Hours.

Introduction to the faculty roles in an institution of higher education, including faculty development and evaluation systems, educational leadership, and student advising, initiation of a research career and educational administration of physical therapy programs at the entry-level and post-graduate level.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 775. Clinical Decision Making II. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will require the student to utilize: the patient management model, the ICF model, the role of disablement and enablement in the provision of physical therapy, all clinical and basic science course work, professional and third party documentation requirements, knowledge of healthcare delivery systems and legal/regulatory requirements, as well as the research literature to plan and document evidence-based care of patients in a variety of settings spanning the continuum of care. Cases will represent a sample of ages, diagnoses, and patient acuity and complexity.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 777. Instructional Methods in Physical Therapy Education. 3 Credit Hours.

Overview of research in the professional education field, with specific applications to physical therapy academic and clinical education. Emphasis is placed on curriculum development, competency-based instructional design, testing, and instructional evaluation methods.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 778. Teaching Practicum. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Supervised instructional design, teaching and evaluation of entry level physical therapy students. Students participate as course instructors in entry-level master's degree physical therapy curriculum.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PTS 784. Human Neuroanatomy. 3 Credit Hours.

Detailed exploration of the human nervous system with an emphasis on structure-function relationship and clinical applications. This course is designed for Physical Therapy graduate students with an interest in a professional career in teaching the anatomical sciences to students of the health professions including medical students.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PTS 785. Medical Diagnostic Tests. 2 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to provide the Physical Therapy student with the basic skills in understanding and interpreting the imaging techniques of Plain film x-ray, Magnetic Resonance Imaging, Computed Tomography, Bone Scans, Real Time Ultrasound, Electrodiagnostic Tests, selected Laboratory Tests and Fluoroscopy. Special emphasis will be placed on the understanding of where the interpretation of these images falls in physical therapy Differential Diagnosis and evidence based practice.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 790. Models of Physical Therapy Practice. 3 Credit Hours.

Study of the integration of didactic knowledge, clinical skills, clinical problem solving and the intuitive process into the formation of a clinical diagnosis which will direct treatment in physical therapy. Diagnosis as a process in physical therapy is compared to diagnosis in nursing, psychiatry and medicine, and is distinguished from similar processes such as assessment, examination and screening. Various models of physical therapy practice currently being taught and published will be explored, including the ICF model, the Patient/Client management model, and the Movement System. Recommendations for a Model of PT Diagnosis and Decision making will be made by students.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 795. Clinical Research Methods I. 3 Credit Hours.

An overview of measurement and sampling research design relevant to clinical research in physical therapy.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PTS 796. Applied Statistics in Physical Therapy. 3 Credit Hours.

Basic statistics taught from an applied perspective which includes statistical computing using SAS or SPSS and interpretation and presentation of data analysis.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PTS 798. Research Practicum. 3 Credit Hours.

Practicum designed to familiarize the student with an area of research, to implement a pilot study in an area of interest, and to develop working relationship with a sponsoring faculty member.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: RSC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PTS 799. Independent Study in Physical Therapy. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Each course is designed to meet the needs of graduate students for in-depth study in a particular area of special interest.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PTS 802. Special Internship. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Supervised clinical education emphasizing clinical skills.

Requisite: Physical Therapy Majors Only.

Components: CLN.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PTS 803. Clinical Internship III. 2 Credit Hours.

Third in a series of supervised clinical education experiences emphasizing the mastery of clinical skills and professional behaviors across patient care settings. This is an 8-week clinical internship.

Components: CLN.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 804. Clinical Internship IV. 2 Credit Hours.

Fourth in a series of supervised clinical education experiences emphasizing the mastery of clinical skills and professional behaviors across patient care settings. This is an 8-week clinical internship.

Components: CLN.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PTS 830. Pre-candidacy Dissertation.. 1-6 Credit Hours.

To be used for pre-candidacy PhD dissertation research.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PTS 840. Post-candidacy Dissertation.. 1-12 Credit Hours.

The student will enroll for credits as determined by his/her advisor, but not for less than a total of 12. No more than six hours may be taken in a regular semester, nor more than three in a summer session. When a student has passed his/her qualifying exams and is engaged in an assistantship, he/she may still take the maximum allowable credit stated above.

Requisite: Physical Therapy PHD Majors Only.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PTS 843. Measuring Health Outcomes. 3 Credit Hours.

An in depth analysis of the use and construction of instruments designed to measure health outcomes. Topics covered include creating and selecting items, scaling responses, scale construction, response bias, reliability, validity, measuring change, and methods of administration.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PTS 850. Research in Residence. 1 Credit Hour.

To establish residence for the PhD, or DPT, after the student has been enrolled for the permissible cumulative total in appropriate doctoral research or clinical practice. Credit not granted, may be regarded as full-time residence as determined by the Dean of the Graduate School.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

Physics (PHY)

PHY 101. College Physics I. 4 Credit Hours.

Elementary mechanics, thermal phenomena, fluids, waves. Courses 101-102-106-108 provide a ten credit 'physics with lab' sequence for premedical students and others.

Prerequisite: MTH 105 or higher. Corequisite: PHY 106.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PHY 102. College Physics II. 4 Credit Hours.

Electromagnetism, optics, and modern physics.

Pre-requisite: PHY 101 And Co-requisite: PHY 108.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PHY 103. General Physics. 3 Credit Hours.

Mechanics, waves, electromagnetism.

ARCHITECTURE MAJORS.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PHY 106. College Physics Laboratory I. 1 Credit Hour.

Laboratory course to accompany PHY 101.

Pre-requisite: PHY 101 Or Co-requisite: PHY 101 Or Pre-requisite: 201 Or Co-requisite: 201.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PHY 108. College Physics Laboratory II. 1 Credit Hour.

Laboratory course to accompany PHY 102.

Prerequisites: PHY 102 or PHY 202. Or Corequisites: PHY 102 or PHY 202.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PHY 110. Descriptive Astronomy. 3 Credit Hours.

For students not majoring in Mathematics or a Physical Science. brief non-technical treatment of the universe and its contents. Mathematical requirements are minimal with emphasis on our present knowledge about energy and matter in space. Not for major or minor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PHY 160. Physics of the Arts. 3 Credit Hours.

Newtonian mechanics, energy, wave motion, atoms, and electricity. Applications to music, art and communications.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PHY 201. University Physics I for the Sciences. 4 Credit Hours.

Calculus based introductory physics: mechanics, heat, fluids, waves, with applications from the physical and life sciences.

Pre-requisite: MTH 141 Or MTH 151 Or MTH 161 Or MTH 171 And MTH 162 Or MTH 172 Or Co-requisite: MTH 162 Or Co-requisite: MTH 172.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PHY 202. University Physics II for the Sciences. 4 Credit Hours.

Calculus based introductory physics: electromagnetism, optics, modern physics, with applications from the life sciences.

Prerequisite: PHY 201.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Summer.

PHY 205. University Physics I. 3 Credit Hours.

Mechanics through gravity and harmonic motion, intended for science and engineering students.

Prerequisites: MTH 151 or MTH 161 or MTH 171 or MTH 141. Or Corequisites: MTH 151 WITH a "B" IN MTH 105 or MTH 108 or Placement into Calculus by MTH Placement Exam. Or Corequisites: MTH 141 OR MTH 161.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PHY 206. University Physics II. 3 Credit Hours.

Fluids, waves, optics, thermal phenomena.

Prerequisite: PHY 205 and MTH 162 or MTH 172. Or Co-requisite: MTH 162 or MTH 172.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PHY 207. University Physics III. 3 Credit Hours.

Electromagnetism through Maxwell's equations.

Prerequisite: PHY 205, and MTH 162 or MTH 172.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PHY 208. University Physics II Lab. 1 Credit Hour.

Laboratory to accompany PHY 206.

Prerequisite: PHY 206 or Corequisite: PHY 206.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PHY 209. University Physics III Lab. 1 Credit Hour.

Lab to accompany PHY 207.

Pre-requisite: PHY 207 Or Co-requisite: PHY 207.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PHY 210. Honors University Physics II-III. 5-6 Credit Hours.

Fluids, waves, optics, thermal phenomena, electromagnetism. Combines PHY 206 and 207.

Pre-requisite: PHY 205 And MTH 141 Or MTH 151 Or MTH 161 Or MTH 171 And MTH 162 Or MTH 172 Or Co-requisite: MTH 162 Or Co-requisite: MTH 172.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PHY 295. Transfer Credits. 1-5 Credit Hours.

Special topics taken at other institutions but having no direct equivalents here.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

PHY 306. Intermediate Laboratory. 1 Credit Hour.

Laboratory: a review of some of the fundamental experiments in classical and modern physics.

Prerequisite: PHY 209 or PHY 360. Or Corequisite: PHY 360.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PHY 315. Mathematical Tools for Physics. 3 Credit Hours.

How to use mathematics. Series, complex algebra, vector analysis, differential equations, etc.

Prerequisite: MTH 141 or MTH 151 or MTH 161 or MTH 171 and Pre/Corequisite: PHY 206 and Pre/Corequisite: MTH 162 or MTH 172.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PHY 321. Thermodynamics and Kinetic Theory. 3 Credit Hours.

An intermediate course in thermal phenomena, from both macroscopic and microscopic points of view.

Prerequisite: PHY 206 and MTH 211 or MTH 310 or PHY 315.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PHY 325. Biological Physics I. 3 Credit Hours.

Applications of fundamental principles from fluids, electrostatics, statistical physics to biological phenomena at molecular and neuronal levels; emphasis on quantitative picture of well-known biological systems; discussion of current research at the interface of biology and physics.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PHY 340. Classical Mechanics I. 3 Credit Hours.

Includes harmonic motion, orbit theory, coupled oscillations, rigid body motions.

Prerequisite: PHY 206 and PHY 207 and Pre/Corequisite: MTH 210 and Pre/Corequisite: MTH 311 or Prerequisite: PHY 315.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PHY 350. Intermediate Electricity and Magnetism. 3 Credit Hours.

Includes the integral and differential forms of Maxwell's equations, circuit theory, and boundary value problems.

Prerequisite: PHY 206 and PHY 207 and MTH 211 or MTH 310 and Pre/Corequisite: MTH 311 or Prerequisite: PHY 315.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PHY 351. Intermediate Electricity and Magnetism II. 3 Credit Hours.

A continuation of PHY 350. Includes further application of Maxwell's equations with emphasis on radiation theory.

Requisite: PHY 350.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PHY 360. Introduction to Modern Physics. 3 Credit Hours.

Emphasis on the experimental foundations of modern physics. Relativity, quantization, atomic structure, radiation, nuclei.

Prerequisite: PHY 206 and Pre/Corequisite: PHY 207 and Prerequisite: MTH 172 or PHY 315.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PHY 362. Modern Physics Honors Seminar. 1 Credit Hour.

Special Topics to accompany PHY 360. Co-requisite: PHY 360.

Pre-requisite: PHY 360 Or Co-requisite: PHY 360.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PHY 401. Senior Thesis. 3 Credit Hours.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 402. Senior Thesis. 3 Credit Hours.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 500. Research. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Project course introducing methods of research, individual investigation of current problems.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 506. Advanced Laboratory. 1-2 Credit Hours.

Advanced experiments such as properties of the electron, optical spectra, electrical measurements, radioactive decay, absorption, etc.

Pre-requisite: PHY 209 And PHY 360 Or Co-requisite: PHY 360.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PHY 513. Mathematical Techniques in Physics. 3 Credit Hours.

Complex variables and applications. Infinite series and their uses, particularly in differential equations. Multiple integrals and Fourier series.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 516. Readings in Physics. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 517. Readings in Physics. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 518. Readings in Physics. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 522. Solid State Physics. 3 Credit Hours.

Crystal structure, quantum theory of the electronic structure of solids, mechanical, electric, magnetic and optical properties of solids.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 530. Plasma Physics I. 3 Credit Hours.

Kinetic theory of plasmas, adiabatic motion of charged particles magneto fluid dynamics, transport properties of plasmas in electromagnetic fields.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 540. Classical Mechanics II. 3 Credit Hours.

Lagrangian formulation, rigid body dynamics. Topics selected from fluid dynamics, non-linear oscillations, normal modes, phase plane analysis.

Requisite: PHY 340.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PHY 545. Introduction to Astrophysics. 3 Credit Hours.

Celestial mechanics, solar models, galaxies, distance scales, instruments.

Pre-requisite: PHY 360.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 552. Optical Physics. 3 Credit Hours.

Geometric optics, interference and diffraction, polarized light, optical pumping, coherence phenomena, applications to modern physical research.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 560. Quantum Mechanics and Modern Physics I. 3 Credit Hours.

Introductory theory with applications to simple systems. Perturbation theory and atomic structure.

Pre-requisite: PHY 340 And PHY 350 Or Co-requisite: PHY 350.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PHY 561. Quantum Mechanics and Modern Physics II. 3 Credit Hours.

Applications of quantum mechanics to atomic and molecular spectroscopy, quantum statistical mechanics, and nuclear physics.

Pre-requisite: PHY 560.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PHY 606. Advanced Laboratory. 1-2 Credit Hours.

Advanced experiments such as properties of the electron, optical spectra, electrical measurements, radioactive decay, absorption, etc.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PHY 613. Mathematical Techniques in Physics. 3 Credit Hours.

Complex variables and applications. Infinite series and their uses, particularly in differential equations. Multiple integrals and Fourier series.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 616. Readings in Physics. 1-3 Credit Hours.

PHY 618. Readings in Physics. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 622. Solid State Physics. 3 Credit Hours.

Crystal structure, quantum theory of the electronic structure of solids, mechanical, electric, magnetic and optical properties of solids.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 630. Plasma Physics I. 3 Credit Hours.

Kinetic theory of plasmas, adiabatic motion of charged particles magneto fluid dynamics, transport properties of plasmas in electromagnetic fields.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 640. Classical Mechanics II. 3 Credit Hours.

Lagrangian formulation, rigid body dynamics. Topics selected from fluid dynamics, non-linear oscillations, normal modes, phase plane analysis.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PHY 645. Introduction to Astrophysics. 3 Credit Hours.

Celestial mechanics, solar models, galaxies, distance scales, instruments.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 652. Optical Physics. 3 Credit Hours.

Geometric optics, interference and diffraction, polarized light, optical pumping, coherence phenomena, applications to modern physical research.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 660. Quantum Mechanics and Modern Physics I. 3 Credit Hours.

Introductory theory with applications to simple systems. Perturbation theory and atomic structure.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PHY 661. Quantum Mechanics and Modern Physics II. 3 Credit Hours.

Applications of quantum mechanics to atomic and molecular spectroscopy, quantum statistical mechanics, and nuclear physics.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PHY 701. Condensed Matter Physics Seminar. 1 Credit Hour.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PHY 713. Methods of Mathematical Physics I. 3 Credit Hours.

A continuation of PHY 515.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 717. Special Topics in Physics. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Topics are typically selected from fluid dynamics, applied mathematics, particle theory, nuclear physics.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 718. Special Topics in Physics. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Topics are typically selected from fluid dynamics, applied mathematics, particle theory, nuclear physics.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 722. Advanced Solid State Physics. 3 Credit Hours.

Electronic structure, electron-electron interactions, phonons, many-body problems, transport properties, magnetism, superconductivity.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 723. Statistical Mechanics I. 3 Credit Hours.

Equilibrium state, irreversibility, statistical description of an ensemble, entropy, partition functions.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 724. Statistical Mechanics II. 3 Credit Hours.

Statistical description of many body problems, specific heats, Brownian motion in liquids and fields, non-equilibrium states, super-conductivity.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 752. Electromagnetic Theory I. 3 Credit Hours.

Electrostatics, magnetostatics, Maxwell's equations, continuous media, waves, antennas, resonant cavities, wave guides.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 753. Electromagnetic Theory II. 3 Credit Hours.

Relativistic effects, interaction of radiation with matter, multiple radiation, radiation reaction.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 766. Elementary Particles. 3 Credit Hours.

The Standard Model of elementary particles. Classical theory of fields for spin 0, 1/2, 1; Feynman rules. The Standard Model Lagrangian is postulated, and some of its basic consequences are explored.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 770. Quantum Theory I. 3 Credit Hours.

Transformation theory, linear operators and vector spaces. Schrodinger's equation, rotation group and angular momentum, statistics (Bose-Einstein and Fermi-Dirac), isotopic spin, multiple structure of levels, approximation methods.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 771. Quantum Theory II. 3 Credit Hours.

One particle relativistic theory; Lorentz group; symmetries of particles; elementary scattering theory; many body problems; Green's function techniques; S-matrix.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 780. Directed Readings or Research. 1-4 Credit Hours.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PHY 810. Master's Thesis. 1-6 Credit Hours.

The student working on his/her master's thesis enrolls for credit, in most departments not to exceed six, as determined by his/her advisor. Credit is not awarded until the thesis has been accepted.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 820. Research in Residence. 1 Credit Hour.

Used to establish research in residence for the thesis for the master's degree after the student has enrolled for the permissible cumulative total in PHY 710 (usually six credits). Credit not granted. May be regarded as full time residence.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 825. Continuous Registration--Master's Study. 1 Credit Hour.

To establish residence for non-thesis master's students who are preparing for major examinations. Credit not granted. Regarded as full time residence.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PHY 830. Pre-Candidacy Doctoral Dissertation. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Required of all candidates for the Ph.D. The student will enroll for credit as determined by his/her advisor, but not for less than a total of 12. Not more than 12 hours of PHY 730 may be taken in a regular semester, nor more than six in a summer session.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PHY 840. Post-Candidacy Doctoral Dissertation. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Required of all candidates for the Ph.D. who have advanced to candidacy. The student will enroll for credit as determined by his/her advisor, but not for less than a total of 12. Not more than 12 hours of PHY 740 may be taken in a regular semester, nor more than six in a summer session.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PHY 850. Research in Residence. 1 Credit Hour.

Used to establish research in residence for the Ph.D. and D.A., after the student has been enrolled for the permissible cumulative total in appropriate doctoral research. Credit not granted. May be regarded as full-time residence as determined by the Dean of the Graduate School.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

Political Science (POL)

POL 201. Introduction to American National Government. 3 Credit Hours.

Examination of the principles, structures, and processes of the national government of the United States. Frequent comparisons made with others countries.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

POL 202. Introduction to Comparative Politics. 3 Credit Hours.

This course introduces students to study of comparative and international politics by examining how conflicts over these issues have played out in several different countries around the world.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

POL 203. Introduction to International Relations. 3 Credit Hours.

Introduction to the theory and practice of international relations. Areas covered include: diplomacy, conflict resolution, international institutions and law; great power politics, international political economy, environmental politics, political integration, the evolving state system, and new global challenges.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

POL 214. Criminal Justice and Social Change. 3 Credit Hours.

The social impact of crime as a form of domestic terrorism, the police and courts as a deterrent, and incarceration as an attempt to prevent and punish violent social behavior. This course is only open to high school students participating in the Summer Scholars Program.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

POL 250. Scope and Methods of Political Science. 3 Credit Hours.

The basic skills needed in political science to critically read academic journal articles and books. The application of scientific methods to the study of public life, focusing on research design and introducing students to the various methodologies used by researchers to draw descriptive and causal inference about the political world. Some methods introduced include ethnography, experimentation, the case study, and survey research.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

POL 301. The Science and Practice of Political Research. 3 Credit Hours.

Exposes students to the way in which scientific knowledge of political phenomena is currently created and evaluated.

Prerequisite: POL 201 or POL 202 or POL 203.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

POL 532. Art and Politics in Paris. 3 Credit Hours.

Analysis of the relationship between narratives, aesthetics (beauty) and the political/social world. By successfully completing this course, students will; understand how humans interpret the political, social, and physical world through narrative. Come to see how most/all political controversies involve competing narratives. How false narratives are deployed to manipulate the public. Realize that through art important analytical arguments are made, which impart substantial insight into social, political, and physical phenomena. See how philosophy is intelligently conveyed through art - including approaches to political legitimacy, justice, and how important analytical arguments are made. To analyze the relationship between art and politics, we draw on renaissance, modern, contemporary, and indigenous art. Paris is arguably the center of the art world, with a number of museums holding a surfeit of socially and politically important works. We visit a number of these museums. After visits to these museums, time in class will be dedicated to discuss those works you, the students, find significant. A requirement for this class is a camera (a camera phone is acceptable), with which you photograph those works you'd like to discuss in class.

For graduate students with previous study of elementary-level Portuguese who will carry out research related to the Portuguese-speaking world. Designed to enhance graduate students' communication skills at the intermediate level of proficiency.

Pre-Requisite: POR 642.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

POR 652. Intermediate Portuguese II for Graduate Research (0 Credit). 0 Credit Hours.

For students with previous study of Portuguese at the intermediate level who will carry out research related to the Portuguese-speaking world. Designed to enhance graduate students' communication skills at the intermediate-high level of proficiency.

Pre-Requisite: POR 651.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

POR 691. Topics in Luso-Brazilian Studies. 3 Credit Hours.

Graduate equivalent of POR courses listed at the 300-level.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

POR 692. Directed Readings in Portuguese. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

Program In Biomedical Sciences (PIB)

PIB 700. Journal Club. 1 Credit Hour.

All PIBS students are required to attend one journal club or seminar each week.

Components: SEM.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PIB 701. Introduction to Biomedical Sciences. 5 Credit Hours.

This course surveys fundamentals of molecular and cellular biology that underly all modern biomedical research. Lectures are organized into modules that cover Proteins and DNA, Gene Expression, Signaling and Membranes, Cells, and Development. A final module covers immunology, organ systems, and genetics. Experimental techniques are emphasized throughout, with the first week of the course devoted to a bootcamp on common biomedical methods.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PIB 702. Scientific Reasoning. 3 Credit Hours.

This course teaches scientific reasoning by critical reading of primary research papers in a small-group setting. Multiple small groups are offered every week and students can choose from different topics related to lectures in the companion PIB 701 course. Research papers are discussed in two 1-hour sessions each week.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PIB 705. Biostatistics for the Biosciences. 3 Credit Hours.

This is an introductory course that will cover the basics of applied statistics. The course will emphasize a practical understanding of statistical concepts: the goal is to prepare you to be able to properly analyze and interpret data from your research, not to turn you into a statistician. As such, the structure of the course is designed to give you lots of hands-on experience with data and statistical software, and to teach you how to proceed when you encounter novel problems in the future (e.g., data that you're not quite sure how to analyze). An overall goal of the course is to prepare you to be able to intelligently assess the statistics commonly encountered in journal articles within your field and provide you with the fundamental skills required for more advanced statistical methods when you later encounter the need.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PIB 706. Bioinformatics for the Biomedical Sciences. 2-4 Credit Hours.

PIBS 706 introduces graduate students to Bioinformatics in two parts. The first half of the course (7 weeks) covers introductory python programming for the bioscientist with hands-on coding and a programming project. The second half of the course covers analysis of biological data from primary sequences (1D), secondary and tertiary structures (2D/3D), and transcriptomic, functional and pathway analysis (4D). The course will be case-based and students will be graded on assignments rather than exams.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PIB 731. Laboratory Research. 1-6 Credit Hours.

Laboratory rotations familiarize students with a variety of modern techniques in biomedicine and potential mentors for their dissertation projects. One credit is awarded per rotation.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PIB 780. Research Ethics. 1 Credit Hour.

The NIH Guide for Grants and Contracts stipulates that Institutions receiving support for National Research Service Award Training Grants are required to develop a program in the principles of scientific integrity. This program should be an integral part of the proposed training effort.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PIB 782. Professional Development: Skills for Success I. 1 Credit Hour.

This workshop will teach students the basics on how to: manage your career, choose a rotation lab / mentor, read a scientific paper, write a lab report and present in the journal club and lab meetings.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PIB 783. Professional Development: Skills for Success II. 1 Credit Hour.

This workshop will teach students the basics on how to: write a fellowship and scientific paper as well as the proper and ethical handling of research data.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PIB 784. Practical Graduate Teaching. 1 Credit Hour.

Senior graduate students have the opportunity to participate in Graduate School teaching by evaluating presentations, teaching in small groups, and mentoring first-year graduate students in the Program in Biomedical Sciences. The overarching goal is to prepare future academicians in the complex process of training accomplished, well-rounded scientists. The activities required from the students would be: Participate in the mentoring program; read and evaluate abstracts of PIBS student rotations; participate of PIBS rotation presentations, ask questions; provide feedback of rotation presentations (abstracts and oral) to PIBS students within small groups; and provide mentoring to PIBS students in PIB701 topics.

Prerequisite: PIB 701.

Components: FLD.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PIB 785. PIBS Bioinformatics Workshop. 1 Credit Hour.

The aim of this workshop is to introduce graduate students to basic bioinformatics data retrieval and analysis as relevant to bio-medical research. The sessions will include discussion on focused topics and hands-on, project-based exercises. Only publicly available databases and web-tools will be used, no programming will be taught.

Components: WKS.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PIB 830. Doctoral Dissertation. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Required for all PhD candidates. First-year students generally take one credit of doctoral dissertation in their first summer semester then continue in program specific dissertation credit through graduation.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Summer.

Psychology (PSY)

PSY 106. Freshman Advising Contact Term (Fact). 1 Credit Hour.

Educates students about the structure and function of a research university, introduces them to the academic rules and regulations of the University of Miami and the Department of Psychology, enables them to think critically about their own graduation plan, and prepares them to enter the professional world.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 110. Introduction to Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

A survey of modern scientific psychology. Topics include learning, memory, perception, cognition, personality, motivation, emotion, development, abnormal psychology, and social psychology. Participation in a small number of experiments is required to ensure that students become acquainted first hand with the experimental laboratory methods used in Psychology. Students may choose to satisfy this requirement by writing a small number of methodology papers instead.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PSY 175. Special Topics. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 190. Faculty Overview of Research and Undergraduate Mentoring (FORUM). 1 Credit Hour.

Critical discussion of research reports in psychology.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 206. Transfer to the University of Miami (TUMS). 1 Credit Hour.

Educates students about the structure and function of a research university, introduces them to the academic rules and regulations of the University of Miami and the Department of Psychology, enables them to think critically about their own graduation plan, integrates them into the social atmosphere of the University, and prepares them to enter the professional world.

Requisite: Permission of a UASP advisor, C- or higher in PSY 110.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 210. Social Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

The major theories, methods and research findings in social psychology. Attitude formation and change, person perception, interpersonal attraction, aggression, group structure, leadership, conformity and mass phenomena. Emphasizes the individual as the basic unit of analysis (compare SOC 302). Prerequisite: C- or higher in PSY 110.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 220. Psychobiology. 3 Credit Hours.

Behavior viewed from a biological perspective. Survey of biological factors subserving sensation, perception, sleep, emotions, motivation, learning, memory, and development

Prerequisite: C- or higher in PSY 110.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 230. Child and Adolescent Development. 3 Credit Hours.

Survey of significant aspects of growth and development throughout the lifespan. Emphasis placed on childhood and adolescence.

Prerequisite: C- or higher in PSY 110.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PSY 240. Abnormal Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

Diagnostic formulations of the clinical syndromes; theories of psychopathological states.

Prerequisite: C- or higher in PSY 110.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 250. Cognitive Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

Survey of theory and research on human information processing and cognitive processes.

Prerequisite: C- or higher in PSY 110.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 260. Personality Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

A survey of the area of personality, including the relation of personality to general psychology, history of theory and research in the field, definition, assessment, and research findings in major substantive areas.

Prerequisite: C- or higher in PSY 110.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 270. Industrial and Organizational Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

Applications of psychology in business, industry, and to organizational effectiveness in general. Supervisory, leadership, morale, personnel selection, training, human factors engineering, and consumer psychology.

Prerequisite: C- or higher in PSY 110.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 275. Special Topics. 3 Credit Hours.

This course focuses on the features that characterize science and the ways that pseudoscience (e.g., ESP, astrology, energy therapy, aliens, ghosts) deviates from these. Students will learn about the factors that influence human thinking, decision making, and behavior as well as how to critically evaluate the credibility of claims and arguments. This course will help students improve their analytical and reasoning skills, support their arguments and evaluate the arguments made by others, and become better consumers of information.

Prerequisite: C- or higher in PSY 110.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 280. Introduction to Research Projects I. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Students assist on a research project in psychology under supervision of a faculty member. Activities include library research, data collection and management, and attendance at research team meetings.

Prerequisite: PSY 110. Requisite: Permission of a UASP advisor.

Components: IND.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PSY 290. Introduction to Research Methods. 3 Credit Hours.

An introduction to research methods in psychology. We will discuss the scientific concepts, principles, and ways of thinking that are central to the study of psychology. Topics to be covered include the goals of psychological research, ethical issues in the design and implementation of research studies, research design strategies and types of measurement, and methods of presenting data. A variety of in-class assignments will provide students with the opportunity to reflect upon the ways in which research is conducted, presented, and interpreted.

Prerequisite: PSY 110 and MTH 101 or mathematics placement above MTH 101. Corequisite: PSY 291. Requisite: PSY or NEU major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 291. Introduction to Biobehavioral Statistics. 3 Credit Hours.

The basics of descriptive and inferential statistics, but the focus will be on the latter. We will cover only enough descriptive statistics to enable us to introduce the inferential concepts of regression, t-tests ANOVA and Chi Square.

Prerequisite: PSY 110 and MTH 101 or mathematics placement above MTH 101. Co-requisite: PSY 290. Requisite: PSY or NEU Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PSY 292. Introduction to Biobehavioral Statistics for Non-Majors. 3 Credit Hours.

The basics of descriptive and inferential statistics, but the focus will be on the latter. Descriptive statistics to introduce the inferential concepts of regression, t-tests ANOVA and Chi Square.

Prerequisite: PSY 110 and MTH 101 or math placement above MTH 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PSY 305. Introduction to Research and Graduate School. 1 Credit Hour.

Introduction to research and graduate school in psychology and psychology-related fields. The course will focus on different opportunities available to students at the University and on the graduate school application process.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 306. Introduction to Research and Graduate School. 1 Credit Hour.

Introduction to research and graduate school in psychology and psychology-related fields. The course will focus on different opportunities available to students at tile University and on the graduate school application process.

Requisite: Permission of a UASP advisor, 2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

PSY 310. Attitudes and Persuasion. 3 Credit Hours.

An analysis of the major theories and research findings relating to attitude formation and change, including a review of widely used persuasion techniques.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292 or 2.5 PSY GPA, 9 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292, and 3 credits in MKT, CAD, COM, COS, CNJ, CPR, or CVJ courses.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 311. Emotion. 3 Credit Hours.

Theory and research concerning the development, arousal, and expression of emotional reaction.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA, 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292 or 2.5 PSY GPA, 9 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292, and 3 credits in BIL courses.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 312. Psychology of Gender. 3 Credit Hours.

Psychological theories and research related to understanding issues of gender across the lifespan.

Requisite: 2.5 GPA, 12 Credits in PSY including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PSY 313. Romantic Relations. 3 Credit Hours.

An introduction to how social scientists think about, study, and intervene with romantic relationships.

Requisite: 2.5 GPA, 12 Credits in PSY including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 320. Psychology of Drugs and Behavior. 3 Credit Hours.

The psychological and physiological effects of drugs. Includes psychosocial aspects of drug use and the treatment and prevention of abuse. An introduction to psychopharmacology.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA, 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 220 and PSY 291 or PSY 292 or 2.5 PSY GPA, 9 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292, and 3 credits in BIL 150 or higher or CHM 111 or higher.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 330. Psychology of Language Development. 3 Credit Hours.

The study of language acquisition, primarily focusing on infancy through 5 years. Topics covered include biological bases of language, sound discrimination abilities, babbling and speech production.

Requisite: 2.5 GPA and 12 Credits in PSY courses including PSY 230, PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 331. Psychology of Adulthood and Aging. 3 Credit Hours.

Major developments during the middle and later years of adulthood including changes in family and peer relationships, cognitive changes, physical changes, and psychological aspects of death and dying.

Requisite: 2.5 GPA and 12 Credits in PSY courses including PSY 230, PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 345. Abnormal Child Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

Reviews definitions, theories, and causes of mental and cognitive disorders in youth, including anxiety, depression, conduct problems, and learning and intellectual disabilities.

Requisite: 2.5 GPA and 12 Credits in PSY courses including PSY 230, PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PSY 355. Psychology of Thinking and Learning in Children. 3 Credit Hours.

Development of perceptions, thought, and language processes throughout the lifespan with an emphasis on early and middle childhood.

Requisite: 2.5 GPA and 12 Credits in PSY courses including PSY 230, PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 356. Psychology of Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities. 3 Credit Hours.

The etiological, social, and psychological aspects of intellectual and developmental disabilities.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 230 and PSY 291 or PSY 292 or 2.5 PSY GPA, 9 credits in PSY courses including PSY 230 and PSY 291 or PSY 292, and 3 credits in BIL or TAL courses.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 360. Personality Theory. 3 Credit Hours.

The role of structure, development, dynamics, individual differences, assessments, and deviations.

Requisite: 2.5 GPA, 12 Credits in PSY including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 370. Psychology of Human Sexual Behavior. 3 Credit Hours.

Interaction of biological and social factors in normal sexual development, and behavior patterns; etiologies of dysfunctions, paraphilias and gender-identity disorders; assessment and intervention procedures.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292 or 2.5 PSY GPA, 9 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292, and 3 credits in BIL 150 or higher, CHM 103 or higher or HCS 212.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 371. Stress Management. 3 Credit Hours.

Physiology and psychology of stress, with emphasis on mind-body (stress-health) connection. Integrates scientific knowledge with practice techniques such as muscle relaxation, cognitive restructuring, meditation, anger management, yoga, exercise, assertiveness training, and social support.

2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 372. Applied Behavioral Analysis. 3 Credit Hours.

The concepts, methods, and procedures used in behavior analytic research and clinical work. In this course, students will become familiar with the scientific foundations of behavioral science and the basic concepts and principles of behavior analysis. The course will emphasize terminology and definitions of behavioral concepts, as well as introduce the application of those concepts to bring about behavior change.

2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 375. Special Topics. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Requisite: 2.5 GPA, 12 Credits in PSY including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 380. Introduction to Research Projects II. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Students assist on a research project in psychology under supervision of a faculty member. Activities include library research, data collection and management, and attendance at research team meetings.

Requisite: Permission of a UASP advisor, 2.5 PSY GPA, and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: IND.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PSY 390. Intermediate Research Methods and Biobehavioral Statistics. 3 Credit Hours.

Students will conduct two (or more) pre-planned experiments. For each experiment, students will analyze the data and write up the components of a research report. In addition, students will receive detailed feedback on the assignments they submit, as an aid to improving their writing skills, reinforcing and reviewing their knowledge of research design and methodology, and expanding their understanding of statistical analyses as well as their interpretation and presentation.

Requisite: 2.5 GPA and 12 Credits in PSY including PSY 290 and PSY 291 or PSY 292 or 9 credits in PSY including PSY 290, and PSY 291 or PSY 292, BIL 268 or NEU 280, NEU 380 or NEU 480.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 391. Tests and Measurements. 3 Credit Hours.

Theory and principles of construction, use, evaluation, and interpretation of psychological tests and testing procedures.

Requisite: 2.5 GPA, 12 Credits in PSY including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 410. Social Interaction Processes. 3 Credit Hours.

An in-depth analysis of variables leading to, and processes involved in, human social interactions ranging from superficial encounters to intimate relationships.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA and 15 credits in PSY courses including PSY 210, PSY 291 or PSY 292 and PSY 390.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 411. Relationships and Health. 3 Credit Hours.

Interpersonal processes that play out in the course of chronic physical illnesses. An integrated foundation on theories and concepts of interpersonal relationships in psychology and a comprehensive introduction to how these theories and concepts can be applied to relationships among family members dealing with physical illnesses. Students will be introduced to diverse perspectives on interpersonal relationships and to a broad perspective on physical illnesses as “family” diseases, across the illness trajectory.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA and 15 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292 and PSY 390.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 412. Social and Cultural Neuroscience. 3 Credit Hours.

Human neuroimaging research on social behavior (e.g., person perception, intergroup relations, and social learning), and the relationships between culture and the brain (e.g., cultural learning and neural mechanisms underlying cross-cultural differences). The course will also cover foundations of social and cultural neuroscience (e.g., shared and unique aspects of human culture and social behavior, and techniques for studying culture and social behavior using neuroscience methods).

2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 413. Cultural Diversity in Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

An evaluation of psychology from cultural perspectives and promote critical thinking about various topics within psychology. The first half of this course will cover topics such as research methods, enculturation, developmental processes, cognition, gender, sexuality, health, emotion, language, and communication from a cultural perspective. During the second half of the course we will discuss the role of culture in personality, abnormal psychology, treatment of abnormal behavior, social behavior and organizations.

2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 425. Psychobiology. 3 Credit Hours.

Basic neuroanatomy, neurophysiology, and neurochemistry followed by an introduction to the physiological bases of sensation, motor systems, motivation, emotion, learning and memory.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA, 15 PSY credits including PSY 220, PSY 290, PSY 291 or PSY 292 or 2.5 PSY GPA, 12 Credits in PSY including PSY 290, and PSY 291 or PSY 292, BIL 150.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 426. Health Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

The psychosomatic and biopsychosocial models of illness.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA, 15 credits in PSY courses including PSY 220, PSY 290, and PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 427. Psychoneuroimmunology. 3 Credit Hours.

The most current literature in psychoneuroimmunology (PNI) allowing students to connect psychological, neuroendocrine and immunological processes and mechanisms. Students will apply this information within the context of chronic disease prevention, progression and intervention.

2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 430. Psychology of Infancy. 3 Credit Hours.

Perceptual, motor, cognitive and social development during the first two years of life. Specialized research methods and assessment procedures.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA; 15 PSY credits, including PSY 230, PSY 291 or PSY 292, PSY 390.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 431. Psychology of Social and Emotional Development. 3 Credit Hours.

Social and emotional growth; topics include family and peer relationships, sex roles, self-control, and moral development.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA; 15 PSY credits, including PSY 230, PSY 291 or PSY 292, PSY 390.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 432. Prenatal Development. 3 Credit Hours.

A detailed understanding of prenatal development including conception, embryonic and fetal development, and birth. The effects and interplay of genetic and environmental factors on the health and well-being of the developing baby will be discussed throughout the course. The important role of preconception and prenatal care will also be discussed.

Prerequisite: GPA of 3.0 or higher; PSY 230.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 445. Cultural, Values, Religiosity, and Mental Illness. 3 Credit Hours.

Cultural differences in the manifestations, course, and outcome of severe mental illness (those in which psychosis is likely to occur). This seminar also explores the growing body of research on the relationship between chronic mental disorders and the following socio-cultural factors: ethnicity, religious values, family cohesion, attributions of control, and world-view. Finally, we will explore cultural differences in societies' reactions to, and treatment of mentally ill patients.

2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 446. Issues in Clinical Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

The scientific and theoretical bases of psychotherapy. The course has three distinct components: (1) An introduction to the concept of psychotherapy, including its historical context and the research evidence supporting its efficacy and effectiveness; (2) An interactive overview of major theories underpinning the practice of psychotherapy; and (3) A brief review of evidence-based treatment models for varying forms of psychopathology and clinical conditions.

2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 455. Evolution and Sex. 3 Credit Hours.

A biological/evolutionary approach to the study of human sexuality and cognition. The evolution of sexual reproduction and the evolution of the two sexes. Initial discussions will introduce the theory of evolution by natural selection and address the different levels at which selection operates. Building on this foundation, the class will focus on why sex evolved and the myriad physiological and psychological adaptations that evolved as a consequence. Topics to be covered include sexual selection, mate selection, pregnancy, and parent-offspring conflict.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA, 15 credits in PSY courses including PSY 290 and PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 456. Genetic and Developmental Disorders. 3 Credit Hours.

The diagnostic, etiological, and intervention issues in genetic and developmental disorders with a particular emphasis on the current state-of-the-science with regard to empirically supported concepts. The course will present information that will allow students a greater understanding of specific disorders and strategies for understanding developmental problems. Current research will be placed within a contemporary context that seeks to integrate educational, psychological and biomedical disciplines.

2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 471. Positive Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

Presents an introduction to the core assumptions and research findings in the field of positive psychology; explores interventions and applications informed by this field as applied to personal well-being, social relationships, and psychotherapy.

2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 472. Evolutionary Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

Evolutionary psychology integrates concepts and evidence from evolutionary biology, behavioral ecology, anthropology, and cognitive science to better understand the evolved cognitive underpinnings of human behavior. The course covers topics such as natural selection, inclusive fitness, life history theory, emotions, aggression, cooperation, mating, morality, and religion.

2.5 PSY GPA and 12 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 474. Special Topics. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA, 15 credits in PSY courses including PSY 290 and PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 480. Research with Writing Credit. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Students assist on a research project in psychology under supervision of a faculty member. Activities include library research, data collection and management, and attendance at research team meetings. Students are also expected to complete a writing component that fulfills the University's criteria to receive writing credit.

Requisite: Permission of a UASP advisor, 2.5 PSY GPA and 15 credits in PSY courses including PSY 291 or PSY 292, PSY 390.

Components: IND.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PSY 490. Advanced Research Methods. 3 Credit Hours.

Students will develop, conduct and write up two research projects: (i) a project that uses descriptive methods and associated statistical techniques and (ii) a project that uses experimental methods and associated statistical techniques. These projects will integrate the concepts and skills learned in the Introductory and Intermediate Methods courses as well as the Introductory and Intermediate Statistics courses. Students will be asked to select a research topic and first develop a survey to examine the relationship between two predictor variables and an outcome variable. They will collect and analyze their data using correlational techniques (e.g., regression analyses) and will write up a methods and results section. Next, students will turn their descriptive study into an experiment. They will collect and analyze their data and write up a publishable research report that includes the findings from both the descriptive and experimental studies. The project will serve as a capstone, requiring them to find and critically evaluate relevant literature on their topic of choice, design a study taking into account time demands, sample characteristics and their effect on the hypotheses they are able to test, decide on instrument selection, consider potential extraneous and confounding variables (and how they will handle them if at all), select appropriate analyses for their data and hypotheses, and then present the results of their work in both poster and research report format.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA, 15 PSY credits including PSY 291 or PSY 292, and PSY 390, Senior Status, BS in Psychology major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 491. Advanced Biobehavioral Statistics. 3 Credit Hours.

This course builds upon the material covered in PSY 390. After a brief review, analysis of variance and multiple regression will be covered using a general linear model (GLM) approach. The goal is to prepare students for graduate level work in applied statistics.

Requisite: 2.5 PSY GPA and 15 credits in PSY courses, including PSY 291 or PSY 292, PSY 390.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 520. Psychoneuroimmunology. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to present some of the basic information necessary to interpret the current literature in psychoneuroimmunology (PNI) and to design research in this area.

Requisite: 2.8 PSY GPA; 18 credits in PSY, including PSY 390.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

PSY 540. Culture, Values, Religiosity, and Mental Illness. 3 Credit Hours.

Cultural differences in the manifestation, course, and outcome of serious mental disorders; the relationship between chronic mental disorders and ethnicity, religious values, family cohesion, attributions of control, and world view; cultural differences in societies' reactions to and treatment of mentally ill patients.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

PSY 575. Special Topics. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Requisite: 2.8 PSY GPA, 18 PSY credits including PSY 390.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 580. Senior Honors in Psychology I. 3 Credit Hours.

Students work closely with a faculty member to design a unique research study and write a scientific paper to report on the results. Limited to undergraduate students only.

Requisite: Permission of UASP and faculty required, 3.5 Major GPA, 3.3 Combined GPA, PSY or NEU major, 18 PSY credits, including PSY 390.

Components: IND.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PSY 581. Senior Honors in Psychology II. 3 Credit Hours.

Students work closely with a faculty member to design a unique research study and write a scientific paper to report on the results. Limited to undergraduate students only.

Requisite: Permission of UASP and faculty required, 18 PSY credits including PSY 580.

Components: IND.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PSY 601. Issues in Professional Development and Research.. 1 Credit Hour.

Seminar addressing issues such as structure of academic systems and progress through them, time management, library search systems, professional journals, how to structure curriculum vitae, procedures and rules in human subject research, professional meetings and presentations, extramural funding opportunities, professional writing style, ethical issues.

Requisite: Plan of Graduate Psychology.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 602. Scientific writing and grantsmanship. 3 Credit Hours.

Writing and organizational skills for professional development in social and behavioral sciences. Mechanism of extramural funding and grant review, including grantsmanship.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 603. Neuroanatomy. 3 Credit Hours.

Functional neuroanatomy for individuals engaged in basic neuroscience and psychological research. Gross anatomy, identification of pathways and circuits, and physiological functions of neuroanatomical systems. Clinical examples and case histories of neuroanatomical disorders. Laboratory exercises including brain dissections, examination of brain models and atlases, and internet neuroanatomy websites.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 604. Cognition and Emotion. 3 Credit Hours.

Study of basic cognitive processes of attention and memory, the function of emotions, and the role of cognitive mechanisms in the processing of affective information.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 605. Cognitive Neuroscience. 3 Credit Hours.

Brain mechanisms in cognition and behavior, including sensory encoding and perception, attention, motivation, emotion, learning/memory, language, executive functions, and mental disorders.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 606. Biobehavioral Processes and Disease in Health Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

Central nervous system, cardiovascular, endocrine, immune, and other biological processes examined in the context of behavioral medicine and health psychology research. Discussion of basic mechanisms in physiological regulation and dysregulation of the cardiovascular and immune systems, with specific reference to cardiovascular behavioral medicine and psychoneuroimmunology.

Prerequisite: PSY 610.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 609. Psychopharmacology. 3 Credit Hours.

Basic methods and current issues in psychopharmacology.

Prerequisite: PSY 605.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 610. Behavioral Medicine: Overview of Basic Science, Public Health, and Clinical Trial Approaches. 3 Credit Hours.

Overview of biobehavioral, psychosocial and sociocultural factors in pathogenesis, prevention and treatment of physical disorders.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 613. Psychoneuroimmunology. 3 Credit Hours.

Structural and functional aspects of the immune system that are sensitive to neural and psychological processes. Interactions between the nervous and immune systems are examined in relation to empirical associations between psychological factors (i.e., stress) and immune-mediated processes in diseases such as cancer and AIDS.

Prerequisite: PSY 605.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 614. Diversity issues in psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

Overview of diversity issues including race, religion, gender, age, sexual orientation, physical disability and socioeconomic status as they relate to psychological research and clinical practice.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 615. Foundations of neuropsychology. 3 Credit Hours.

Mechanisms of neurological and psychiatric disorders, including developmental disorders, dementia, aphasia, amnesia, stroke, traumatic brain injury, and loss of general intelligence. Clinical tools for neuropsychological assessment, forensics, and genetic screening.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 616. Biobehavioral Processes and Clinical Research Applications in Health Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

Conduct of clinical research and examination of biobehavioral processes in health psychology. Lectures, readings and assignments deal with clinical research involving pathology, assessment and intervention-based functions with applications focused on health and disease conceptualized at multiple levels of prevention.

Prerequisite: PSY 606 and PSY 610.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 620. Advanced Developmental Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

Mechanisms underlying continuity and change over the lifespan. Topics include developmental theories and methods; specific domains of development (perceptual, cognitive, social/emotional); socialization processes; and emerging adulthood, parenting, and aging.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 621. Theories of Development. 3 Credit Hours.

Theoretical aspects of psychological development throughout the life span.

Prerequisite: PSY 620.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 622. Cognitive Development. 3 Credit Hours.

Theories of cognitive development across infancy, childhood, and adolescence. Topics include measurement approaches, normative development, individual differences, etiological factors and contextual influences.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 623. Language Development. 3 Credit Hours.

The study of language acquisition, primarily focusing on infancy through 5 years. Topics covered include biological bases of language, sound discrimination abilities, babbling and speech production, word learning, acquisition of grammar, bilingualism, and development in atypical populations.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 624. Social Development. 3 Credit Hours.

The theoretical and empirical literature on typical and atypical social development-including emotional development and social cognition-in infants, children, and adolescents. Topics include measurement approaches, individual differences and contextual influences.

Prerequisite: PSY 620.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 625. Social Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

The major substantive areas and theories of social psychology. Emphasis on applications to students' own research field.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 631. Psychological Statistics, Research Methods, and Design. 3 Credit Hours.

Statistics for experimental design with uncorrelated independent variables. Review of t-tests; designs and applications of analysis of variance; including one-way, factorial, repeated-measures, and mixed designs; post hoc comparisons among means.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 632. Multiple Regression and Multivariate Statistics. 3 Credit Hours.

Analysis of the general linear model. Computer application of these techniques to the behavioral sciences.

Prerequisite: PSY 630. Or EPS 568. And EPS 653.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 633. Structural Equation Modeling. 3 Credit Hours.

Structural models, path analysis, measurement models, and confirmatory factor analysis, particularly related to hypotheses about causal relations, change over time, and comparisons across diverse populations.

Prerequisite: PSY 632.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 634. Hierarchical Linear Modeling. 3 Credit Hours.

Multi-level modeling of nested and non-independent data. Application of multilevel modeling to social science and behavioral data, including computer laboratory exercises.

Prerequisite: PSY 632.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 636. Research Methods with Children and Adolescents. 3 Credit Hours.

Concepts and research design approaches for the measurement and analysis of data across developmental stages from infancy through adolescence.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 638. Psychology of Infant Development. 3 Credit Hours.

Theory, research, and methodology pertaining to psychological development in the first three years of life. Emphasis on both general developmental processes, and individual differences in cognitive, social, and emotional development.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 639. Autism and Developmental Disabilities. 3 Credit Hours.

Developmental disabilities with an emphasis on autism. Biological, social, cognitive and emotional concomitants. History, etiology, assessment, and individual differences.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

PSY 640. Adult Psychopathology. 3 Credit Hours.

Theories, models, history, and research relevant to various patterns of problematic behavior, with a focus on adults. The influences of family systems as well as cultural and other diversity factors (e.g., ethnicity, sexual orientation) are included.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 641. Child and Adolescent Psychopathology. 3 Credit Hours.

Theories, models, and research relevant to the development and the course of behavioral disorders and other problems (e.g., maltreatment, exposure to violence and poverty) that emerge in childhood and adolescence. The influences of family and peer systems as well as cultural and other diversity factors (e.g., ethnicity, sexual orientation) are included.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 642. Advanced Adult Psychopathology. 3 Credit Hours.

Theory and research on risk factors and etiological models of mental disorders. Socioenvironmental (cultural, social support, life events), psychological (temperament, cognitive biases), and biological (genes, neurotransmitters) models of risk, research methodology, and design are discussed.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 643. Behavioral Medicine and Developmental Disabilities. 3 Credit Hours.

Processes influencing diagnosis and management of developmental disabilities: genetics, embryology/fetology, physical growth and development, nutrition, hearing and speech pathology, family dynamics, cognition and psycho-educational assessment.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 645. Introduction to Psychological Evaluation. 3 Credit Hours.

Measurement theory; introduction to the administration and interpretation of widely-used intelligence and personality tests, with attention to issues of ethics and diversity.

Requisite: Plan of Graduate Psychology.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 646. Psychological Evaluation of Adults. 3 Credit Hours.

Issues of diversity, ethics, and personality theory as they pertain to psychological evaluation of adults. Emphases on the use of projective and objective personality assessment methods.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 647. Psychological Evaluation of Children and Families. 3 Credit Hours.

Clinical and developmental theory and methods pertaining to the evaluation of children, adolescents, and families including intelligence tests, structured diagnostic instruments, personality and behavioral check lists, observational formats, interviewing, and projective assessment. Attention to issues of ethics and diversity.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 648. Psychological Evaluation in Physical Disorders. 3 Credit Hours.

Administration, interpretation, and psychometric evaluation of psychological tools and procedures used in the evaluation of physical disorders. Attention to issues of ethics and diversity.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 650. Laboratory in Clinical Psychology. 0 Credit Hours.

Practical training in clinical skills such as assessment, interviewing, and case conceptualization. Laboratory to be used in conjunction with courses such as PSY 640 and PSY 645

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 655. Evolution and Sex. 3 Credit Hours.

A biological/evolutionary approach to the study of human sexuality and cognition. The evolution of sexual reproduction and the evolution of the two sexes. Initial discussions will introduce the theory of evolution by natural selection and address the different levels at which selection operates. Building on this foundation, the class will focus on why sex evolved and the myriad physiological and psychological adaptations that evolved as a consequence. Topics to be covered include sexual selection, mate selection, pregnancy, and parent-offspring conflict.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 656. Introduction to Evidence-Based Psychological Treatments. 3 Credit Hours.

Theories, history, and techniques of psychological and behavioral therapies, with emphasis on evidence-based approaches.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 657. Introduction to Psychotherapy, Ethics, and Professional Issues. 3 Credit Hours.

Introductory experience in clinical interviewing, therapeutic communication, ethics, and case conceptualization. Consideration of client-and-therapist culture, gender, and diversity are also emphasized.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 660. Evidence-Based Psychological Intervention with Children and Families. 3 Credit Hours.

Theories, history, and techniques of psychological and behavioral therapies, with emphasis on evidence-based approaches with children, adolescents, and families. Understanding normative and deviant development, with attention to issues of diversity, ethics, and domestic violence.

Prerequisite: PSY 656.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 661. Interventions in Pediatric Psychology. 3 Credit Hours.

Pediatric psychology and basic learning theory. Medical and behavioral aspects of child and adolescent health disorders, psychological assessment, and evidence-based treatment approaches.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 662. Health Psychology Interventions. 3 Credit Hours.

Clinical interventions and research relevant to health problems and lifestyle, with emphasis on critical evaluations of past research and the design and implementation of intervention protocols. The origins of health psychology and the role of the health psychologist in medical systems.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 664. Ethics and Professional Conduct in Behavior Analysis. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides an overview of ethics and professional conduct in the field of behavior analysis. The course will provide in-depth information on the BACB Professional and Ethical Compliance Code for Behavior Analysts. The course will cover professional issues related to responsible conduct of behavior analysts, behavior analysts' ethical responsibility to clients and colleagues, including issues related to assessment of behavior, development and implementation of behavior change programs, clinical supervision and mentoring, the profession of behavior analysis and the BACB, and the conducting and reporting of research. In accordance with the Behavior Analysis Certification Board (BACB), this course meets criteria for 30 instructional hours in the area of Ethical and Professional Conduct, 5 hours in the area of Intervention and Behavior Change Consideration 5 hours in the area of Behavior Change Systems and 5 hours in the area of Implementation, Management and Supervision.

Prerequisite: PSY 666. And must pass with a GPA 3.2.

Components: DIS.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 665. Advanced Topics in Applied Behavior Analysis. 3 Credit Hours.

This course covers a number of advanced research and clinical issues relevant to the field of applied behavior analysis including, particularly as they relate to the field of developmental disabilities. The course will provide in-depth information related to the selection of appropriate interventions, including staying abreast of current research, critically interpreting research, considering individual client needs and developing treatment programs that are consistent with the science of applied behavior analysis. The course will additionally cover issues related to the implementation and management of clinical service provisions, including ensuring appropriate and accurate data collection, maintaining procedural fidelity and providing supervision and training. In accordance with the Behavior Analysis Certification Board (BACB), this course meets criteria for 15 instructional hours in the area of Measurement, 15 hours in the area of Experimental Design and 15 hours in the area of discretionary.

Prerequisite: PSY 666. And must pass with a GPA 3.2.

Components: DIS.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 666. Concepts and Principles of Applied Behavior Analysis. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides an introduction to Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA), which is the clinical application of behavioral science and learning theory towards the treatment of problematic behavioral and behavioral deficits. In this course, students will become familiar with the scientific foundations of behavioral science and the basic concepts and principles of behavior analysis. The course will emphasize terminology and definitions of behavioral concepts, as well as introduce the application of those concepts across a range of clinical scenarios. In accordance with the Behavior Analysis Certification Board (BACB), this course meets criteria for 45 instructional hours in the area of Concepts and Principles of Behavior Analysis.

Requisite: PSY 666 OR PSY 676 OR PSY 677 AND Bachelor's degree AND GPS>=3.2.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 667. Assessment and Treatment of Language Learning. 3 Credit Hours.

This course focuses on the application of behavior analysis toward the treatment of individuals exhibiting behavioral deficits or developmental delays. Throughout this course, students will acquire in-depth knowledge of behavioral analytic approaches for promoting the development of new skills and for supporting and maintaining those skills over time. Students will learn to prioritize target behaviors for clinical intervention as well as how to use applied behavior analytic techniques and procedures to develop effective treatment plans. Clinical and professional issues (e.g., fidelity of implementation, monitoring effectiveness) will also be discussed. In accordance with the Behavior Analysis Certification Board (BACB), this course meets criteria for 10 instructional hours in the area of Identification of the Problem and Assessment, 30 instructional hours in the area of Fundamental Elements of Behavior Change and Specific Behavior Change Procedures, and 5 instructional hours in the area of Behavior Change Systems.

Requisite: PSY 666 OR PSY 676 OR PSY 677 AND Bachelor's degree AND GPS>=3.2.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 668. Functional Assessment and Treatment of Aberrant Behavior. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will focus on the application of behavior analysis toward the treatment of aberrant behavior. Throughout this course, students will acquire in-depth knowledge of behavior analytic approaches toward the assessment of aberrant behavior (e.g., functional behavioral assessment (FBA) and functional analysis). In addition, the course will focus on how behavior analysis use the results of a behavioral assessment to develop effective and ethical behavioral interventions to reduce aberrant behavior. Clinical and professional issues (e.g., fidelity of implementation, monitoring effectiveness) will also be discussed. In accordance with the Behavior Analysis Certification Board (BACB), this course meets criteria for 25 instructional hours in the area of Identification of the Problem & Assessment, 15 instructional hours in the area of Fundamental Elements of Behavior Changes and Specific Behavior Change Procedures and 5 instructional hours in the area of Intervention of Behavior Change Considerations.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 669. Professional Issues in Designing and Monitoring Interventions. 3 Credit Hours.

This course covers a number of professional issues related to the competent and ethical delivery of applied behavior analysis services. The course will provide in-depth information related to the selection of appropriate interventions, including staying abreast of current research, critically interpreting research, considering individual client needs and developing treatment programs that are consistent with the science of applied behavior analysis. The course will additionally cover issues related to the implementation and management of clinical service provisions, including ensuring appropriate and accurate data collection, maintaining procedural fidelity and providing supervision and training. Finally, the course will provide information about the professional and ethical compliance code for behavior analysis, as outlined by the Behavior Analysis Certification Board (BACB). In accordance with the Behavior Analysis Certification Board (BACB), this course meets criteria for 15 instructional hours in the area of Ethical and Professional Conduct, 10 hours in the area of Measurement, 10 hours in the area of Experimental Design and 10 hours in the area of Implementation, Management and Supervision.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

PSY 670. Practicum in Clinical Psychology. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Supervised experience in evaluating and treating psychological problems of children, adolescents, families, and/or adults behavior. For students placed at the U.M. Psychological Services Clinic there is a weekly case conference that focuses on ethics case conceptualization. Course may be repeated for credit.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

PSY 671. Practicum in Clinical Psychology II. 0 Credit Hours.

Continuation of PSY 670.

Corequisite: PSY 645.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 672. Advanced Practicum in Clinical Psychology. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Advanced experience in special clinical techniques and clinical supervision. Primarily for post-internship clinical students. The advisor may direct that PSY 672 be repeated, but no more than six credits may be applied toward a degree.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 674. Applications of ABA in Development Disabilities. 3 Credit Hours.

The purpose of this course is to provide students with supervised clinical experience in the application of behavior analysis toward the treatment of individuals with autism and developmental disabilities who exhibit problematic behavior, behavioral deficits or developmental delays participating in ABA therapy. During this course, students will provide direct ABA services aimed at reducing problematic behavior or and promoting the development and maintenance of new skills. Experiential activities provided during this practicum course focus on functional assessment, the identification of meaningful treatment goals, identification of reinforcers via systematic assessment, and the implementation of ABA intervention techniques and programs to treat problematic behavior and behavioral and language deficits. In accordance with the Behavior Analysis Certification Board (BA.CB), this course meets criteria for 168 hours of practicum experience.

Prerequisite: PSY 666. And must pass with a GPA 3.2.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

PSY 675. Advanced Applications of Applied Behavior Analysis II. 3 Credit Hours.

The purpose of this course is to provide students with supervised clinical experience in selecting, and developing applied behavior analytic procedures and techniques for individuals with autism and developmental delay and providing clinical supervision to those implementing behavioral procedures. During this course, students will assist instructors in providing supervision to individuals who provide direct ABA services for individuals participating in ABA therapy. Experiential activities provided during this practicum course additionally focus on advanced professional issues in the design and implementation of ABA programs, so as to facilitate appropriate treatment selection, collection of data related to fidelity of implementation and systematic monitoring of treatment efficacy. In accordance with the Behavior Analysis Certification Board (BACB), this course meets criteria for 168 hours of practicum experience.

Prerequisite: PSY 666. And must pass with a GPA 3.2.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

PSY 676. Application of ABA: Principles and Concepts. 3 Credit Hours.

The purpose of this course is to provide students with supervised clinical experience in selecting, developing and implementing applied behavior analysis procedures and techniques. During this course, students will provide direct ABA services aimed at improving the behavioral functioning of individuals participating in ABA therapy. Experiential activities provided during this practicum course focus on the application of basic principles and concepts in ABA, including the identification of behavioral targets, measuring behavioral, monitoring changes in behavior over time, and implementing reinforcement-based interventions. In accordance with the Behavior Analysis Certification Board (BACB), this course meets criteria for 168 hours of practicum experience.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

PSY 830. Doctoral Dissertation. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Required of all candidates for the Ph.D. The student will enroll for credit as determined by his/her advisor, but for not less than a total of 12 hours. Up to 12 hours may be taken in a regular semester, but not more than six in a summer session.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 840. Post-Candidacy Doctoral Dissertation. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Required of all candidates for the Ph.D. who have advanced to candidacy. The student will enroll for credit as determined by his/her advisor, but not for less than a total of 12. Not more than 12 hours of PSY 740 may be taken in a regular semester, nor more than six in a summer session.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

PSY 850. Research in Residence. 1 Credit Hour.

Used to establish research in residence for the Ph.D., after the student has been enrolled for the permissible cumulative total in appropriate doctoral research. Credit not granted. May be regarded as full-time residence as determined by the Dean of the Graduate School.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

Public Health (BPH)

BPH 200. Basic Concepts Public Health. 3 Credit Hours.

This course focuses on current health care issues and the health care system as well as the future direction of health care.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

BPH 202. Introductory Statistics in Health Care. 3 Credit Hours.

Application of descriptive and inferential statistics. Principles and methods of summarizing data including tables, graphs, percentile ranks, central tendency, variability, normal distribution. Basic concepts of probability, hypothesis testing, and analysis of variance. Examples and problems from nursing, health sciences, and public health.

Corequisite: MTH 101. Or Requisite: ALEKS > or = 55 or SAT Score > or = 630 or ACT > or = 28.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

BPH 206. Introduction to Public Health. 3 Credit Hours.

Introduction to all aspects of public health, including health services administration, and policy.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

BPH 208. Introductory Epidemiology. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is a general introduction to epidemiology, definition of concepts and natural history of disease and levels of prevention. It also covers measures of morbidity and mortality. Epidemiologic aspects of infectious and chronic diseases.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

BPH 217. Medical Terminology. 1 Credit Hour.

This course will assist the student in understanding the principles of medical word building in order to develop the extensive medical vocabulary used in health care professions. Students receive a thorough grounding in basic medical terminology through the study of root words, prefixes and suffixes. The course emphasizes correct pronunciation, spelling and use of medical terms.

Prerequisite: BIL 150.

Components: CLN.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

BPH 301. Human Sexuality and Vulnerable Populations. 3 Credit Hours.

The study of human sexuality via multidisciplinary theoretical perspectives and research. Students will examine the complex relationships of the physiological, psychological, cultural, gender, religious, historical, and political aspects of human sexuality. Human sexuality in the context of health disparities will form the foundation for the course. WRITING COURSE.

Prerequisite: BPH 206 or Requisite: Nursing Clinical Major.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

BPH 303. HIV/AIDS and Health Maintenance for Health Care Providers. 3 Credit Hours.

Definition, diagnosis, management and care of diverse patient populations with HIV infection and AIDS. Presented and discussed from an interdisciplinary health care perspective.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

BPH 305. Issues in Health Disparities. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will be an introduction to the general research on health systems and health disparities. Emphasis will be placed on social, biological, economic, and social policy issues that impact on the health of minority populations. Concepts associated with epidemiology, poverty, racism, public policy, and international politics will be explored. WRITING COURSE.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

BPH 306. Principles of Nutrition. 3 Credit Hours.

Principles of nutrition integrated with cultural dietary patterns for client adaptation across the lifespan.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

BPH 309. Health and Environment. 3 Credit Hours.

This course examines health issues, scientific understanding of causes and possible future approaches to control of the major environmental health problems. Topics include how the body reacts to environmental pollutants; physical, chemical, and biological agents of environmental contamination; vectors for dissemination; susceptible populations; the scientific bases for policy decisions and emerging global environmental health problems.

Prerequisite: BPH 206.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

BPH 310. Global Health. 3 Credit Hours.

Introduction to the concepts of global health and the critical links between public health and social and economic development. Determinants of health and patterns of disease and health outcomes across the globe are critically examined. The course reviews the determinants of health status in terms of biology, demography, epidemiology, culture, sociology, economics, and politics. Key concerns regarding reproductive health, child survival, nutrition, communicable diseases, and chronic diseases are examined. Health care delivery in developed vs. undeveloped regions of the world are emphasized.

Prerequisite: BPH 206.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

BPH 317. Theories in Growth and Development. 3 Credit Hours.

Application of growth and development theories through the lifespan with a case study approach to issues commonly encountered nursing practice in a variety of clinical settings.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

BPH 319. Contemporary Issues in Bioethics for Health Care. 3 Credit Hours.

The course will cover bioethical issues in the health care environment including ethical principles, theories and decision making strategies.

Prerequisite: BPH 206.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

BPH 321. Health Promotion and Disease Prevention. 3 Credit Hours.

The focus of this course is on the understanding and implementation of strategies aimed at promoting health and preventing disease. It also focuses on optimal health maintenance and wellness support for individuals, families, and communities. The content of the course includes health across the lifespan and resources associated with health promotion. Common health alternations will be discussed, as well as socio-cultural perceptions of health and illness.

Prerequisite: BPH 206.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

BPH 322. Introduction to Health Policy. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides an introduction to the organization, delivery, and financing of health care in the United States. We will consider policy challenges created by the structure of the health care system, including access to care, quality of care, and cost growth. Major areas of focus will include public insurance programs, private insurance, the uninsured, health disparities, and implementation of health care reform legislation.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

BPH 352. Biological Principles of Public Health. 3 Credit Hours.

This course examines the biological basis and pathogenesis of diseases from a public health perspective and describes the impact on populations. This course also presents the basic scientific and biomedical concepts of modern public health problems and explores in depth mechanisms and models of the major categories of disease. The biologic principles presented in this course are foundations to developing and implementing public health disease prevention, control, or management programs.

Prerequisites: BPH 206 and BIL 150 and BIL 151 and CHM 103 or CHM 111 or CHM 121 and CHM 105 or CHM 113.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

BPH 355. Global Nutrition. 3 Credit Hours.

This course examines nutrition related public health issues in the global setting. Nutrition related morbidity and mortality, etiologic factors, and population-focused strategies to address these issues are covered. Food relief and nutrition policies and programs at the local, national and international levels are examined. Current scientific research in international nutrition is reviewed from an epidemiological perspective.

Prerequisite: BPH 206.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

BPH 365. Research Methods in Public Health. 3 Credit Hours.

This course utilizes fundamental epidemiological skills to apply concepts and practical issues related to conducting public health research. It covers key processes of research investigations such as the identification of gaps in the field, critical thinking, study design selection, research proposal development, quantitative and qualitative research methods, and best practices for the dissemination of research findings.

Prerequisite: BPH 202 or BPH 206 or BPH 208.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

BPH 402. Global Health Disparities Research. 3 Credit Hours.

This is a 4 week intensive educational experience that prepares students to be successful conducting supervised health disparities research as part of the MHIRT program at a foreign institution, disseminating findings, and applying to graduate school. The training program is broken into a preparation phase (3 weeks prior to leaving to their host country), and a dissemination phase (1 week after they return). Students will be working as a research assistant at a foreign site for eight weeks in between the preparation and dissemination phases of this training program. Students will learn about the influence of culture and healthcare policy on health and health disparities, research design, statistics, communicating research findings and careers in health disparities research.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

BPH 419. Contemporary Health Issues in South Florida. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will provide students with an in-depth look at public health topics relevant to communities in South Florida. Emphasis will be placed on the social, cultural, and policy issues that impact the health of vulnerable populations in our community. Interdisciplinary researcher knowledge and practice from the University of Miami and other relevant institutions will be highlighted.

Prerequisite: BPH 206.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

BPH 461. Practicum in Health Disparities Research. 1-4 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to provide opportunities for students across all levels of higher education to participate in health disparities research. Students will be mentored by a health disparities researcher with an active research project. Objectives will be established by the research mentor and the student according to educational level, interests and opportunities. Students will be incorporated into the research team and expected to attend project meetings. They will also be expected to participate in scholarly work that could contribute to the success of the project. Examples of scholarly work include co-authoring research papers and presentations, developing recruitment materials, assisting in compiling/developing data collection measures, or any other product deemed appropriate by the mentor.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

BPH 465. Public Health Statistics and Data Management. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to give students an opportunity to apply basic principles of statistics and data management in public health. Students will learn to use statistical techniques to answer questions relating to the morbidity and mortality of health conditions and the efficacy and effectiveness of public health interventions.

Prerequisites: BPH/HCS/NUR 202 and BPH 206.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

BPH 487. Global Health Practicum. 3 Credit Hours.

Collaborative clinical venture between UM/SON and an International School of Nursing. Students will exchange supervised western clinical experiences, knowledge and skills for the care of clients and families in specialty areas, including MedSurg, ICU and/or Emergency nursing units. Students will apply and synthesize basic science knowledge and skills that foster ethical, legal, and culturally specific health care.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

BPH 490. Field Practicum in Community Health. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides students with field experiences in community health. During the didactic portion of the course, students will be introduced to the basic principles and methods used in community health assessment, program development, program implementation, and evaluation. During the field experience component of the course students will work under the supervision of lead faculty to apply the knowledge and skills they obtained during their course of study to address a public health issue.

Prerequisite: BPH 206 and 208 and 321 and 465.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

BPH 499. Selected Topics. 6.00 Credit Hours.

Offerings will vary by semester based upon student demand and availability of faculty.

Real Estate Development (RED)

RED 601. Introduction to Real Estate Development and Urbanism. 3 Credit Hours.

Fundamentals of real estate development of urban places, including the many challenges of the development process such as analyzing market sectors and development opportunities, comprehending the development context of regulation, public policy and politics, raising investment capital, assembling land, program formulation, building types, construction management, marketing, and sales.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

RED 610. Financing Urban Real Estate Development. 3 Credit Hours.

Concepts and techniques for analyzing financial decisions in property development and investment including: real estate economics and investment performance measurement, leasing and property income streams, pro forma analysis, basics of equity and debt valuation, income tax and leverage considerations, mortgages, and deal structures. Emphasis financing individual projects.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

RED 620. Real Estate Law. 3 Credit Hours.

Fundamentals of law and the entitlement process, including contractual aspects of real estate development, finance, management and ethical issues and a real-world overview of the review and approvals process.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

RED 630. Real Estate Market Analysis. 3 Credit Hours.

Identification of critical market factors that determine development opportunities. Topics include business and construction cycles, regional and urban growth trends, commercial and industrial location theories, and advanced demographic analysis and projection techniques to project and analyze occupancy, rental growth, absorption, and competitive supply.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

RED 640. National Charrette Institute (NCI). 1 Credit Hour.

Participants learn practical skills, tools and techniques through new interactive, hands-on exercises practiced on four case study types for all aspects of public participation in community planning. The purpose of this training is to teach the tools and techniques for planning and running a successful design and development project using a NCI charrette and to give participants a practical understanding of the power of the NCI Charrette System to create sustainable communities. In addition to completing the NCI charrette planner certification program students learn about case studies and apply their learning to prepare for their Capstone Workshop.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

RED 650. Complex Urban Real Estate Transactions. 3 Credit Hours.

Real estate transactions and deal structuring from the development perspective. Using the case study method, the course explores the key components and the disciplines needed for successful real estate transactions and projects.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

RED 660. Urban Infill, Preservation, and Mixed Use Development. 3 Credit Hours.

Builds students' competencies for infill and redevelopment practice focusing on: mixed-use development, transit oriented development, barriers and solutions for urban infill development, urban site analysis, repositioning of urban land, vacant and underutilized properties, long-term land leases, tax incentives, historic preservation, public-private partnerships, business improvement districts, tax increment financing, community (re)development districts, parking strategies, and urban housing types.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

RED 670. Construction and Project Management. 3 Credit Hours.

Management of construction projects including legal considerations and techniques of management science applied to construction. Includes engineering methods of cost and time estimating, and exercises in applications of engineering economics, flow charts, tracking progress, construction contracts, indemnity agreements, and network planning techniques including CPM and PERT.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

RED 680. Entrepreneurship in Real Estate Development. 3 Credit Hours.

Focuses on management and business practices for building new urban real estate firms capable of leading the industry and assuming competitive advantages over conventional models.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

RED 690. Case Studies in Real Estate Development. 3 Credit Hours.

Students integrate and apply their learning and skills to complex problem-solving involving a series of intensive real world cases of urban real estate development. Focuses on project feasibility and helps hone the required set of development skills.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

RED 699. Capstone: Real Estate Development and Urbanism Charrette. 1-3 Credit Hours.

An intensive real estate development and urban design studio in which students are part of a multi-disciplinary team on an urban development project. Focuses on comprehensive analysis, project planning, feasibility and program development through the application of advanced development skills in an urban context.

Religious Studies (REL)

REL 100. Introduction to Hinduism. 3 Credit Hours.

Introduces academic ways of studying religious traditions, and, in particular the tradition(s) of Hindu practice. A religious tradition with contested dates of origins, Indic religious practices that now fall under the term "Hindu" are documented as early as 1500 BCE. The ideas, philosophies and practices that are called Hinduism today grew and diversified through periods of regional empire in the Indian subcontinent, through Indian expansion into the Indian Ocean region, during the arrival and colonization of Persian and European powers in India, and into the modern period of Indian democracy - and beyond. Today, Hindu practices are part of the landscape not only in India, but in Europe, Africa, the Middle East, Southeast Asia and the Americas, too.

REL 101. Introduction to Religion. 3 Credit Hours.

An overview of religious perspectives concerning ultimate reality, humankind, and the world, with special attention to major Asian and Abrahamic religions.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

REL 102. Problem of God. 3 Credit Hours.

Contemporary religious issues related to the concept of God. Foundational to this course is an examination of the religious dimension of human experience and consciousness in relation to a number of historical and contemporary problems and challenges. This course approaches the problem of God from the angle of human experience, focusing on the various historical, social, and existential determinants of belief. Topics include: globalized religion, the challenge of atheism and humanism, the impact of secularization on religion, and an exploration of the historical, social, and theological images of creation and the divine.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

REL 103. One God: Judaism, Christianity, Islam. 3 Credit Hours.

Monotheism is one of the most important ideas in human history. This course examines how Judaism, Christianity, and Islam have lived it, understood it and interpreted it. The basic structures of all three religions and explore their similarities, differences and interactions on a set of critical issues, both contemporary and classical. The course will encourage students' conversation and active participation.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

REL 105. One Goal: Transforming the Self in Asian Religions. 3 Credit Hours.

A selective survey of some of the continent's major religious traditions that attempts to provide a sense of their diversity, including a hint of their internal diversity. We will encounter major figures, doctrines, and ethical precepts, but special attention will be paid to one key element shared that distinguishes them from their Abrahamic counterparts (Judaism, Christianity, and Islam): the one goal of self-transformation and the techniques for achieving it. Here we will find the differences among traditions thrown into stark relief even as we encounter surprising parallels and continuities. Along the way students will be exposed to major concepts and approaches to the academic study of religion.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

REL 109. Anthropology of Religion. 3 Credit Hours.

Through themes such as myth, word and text, symbol, gender, pilgrimage, embodiment, and ritual, students learn about lived religion through anthropological research and field methods. The course also exposes introductory-level students to diverse world religious traditions: Korean folk religion, Indonesian Islam, Hinduism in diaspora, Judaism across cultures, Japanese temple Shinto traditions, and more.

REL 236. Cults and New Religious Movements in America. 3 Credit Hours.

Twentieth and twenty-first century religious groups in America, so-called "cults" or new religious movements (NRM's), located on the periphery of "mainstream" religion. An examination of the origins, beliefs, attraction, and interaction of the NRMs from a variety of disciplinary perspectives (historical, psychological, sociological) as well as from another variety of disciplinary perspectives (potential for violence, "brainwashing", involvement of women, and charismatic leadership). The goal is to increase our understanding of certain aspects of contemporary religious activity and the general societal response to them, and hence, of religion in general. The task is not to commend or condemn particular religious' groups, but rather to attempt to reach some understanding of them, first on their terms, then on ours in the appropriate disciplinary contexts.

REL 240. Pilgrims, Shrines, Crusades and Saint in Spain. 3 Credit Hours.

The diversity and complexity of the unique kind of Catholic culture which developed in Spain. The focus is on the formative period from 700 to 1700 CE and the major trends in both formal Spanish Catholic thought and everyday lived religion. Themes of pilgrimage, shrines, religious wars, and sainthood are examined. Because Spain in effect exported this particular form of Catholicism to the Americas beginning in 1492, an appreciation of Spanish Catholicism ought to have particular resonance for students interested in Latin America today.

Components: LEC.

REL 255. Religion and Sports: From the Ancients to the Present. 3 Credit Hours.

The intersection of sports and religion from the ancient Greeks to the present, with attention given to the role of religion and sports in American culture. It examines the functions and significance of sport, play, ritual, and religion, recognizing both the dialectical and intimate relationship between sports and religion. Religion has not only influenced sports and sports has influenced religion; in some cases; the two have merged: sports has become a religion. Through various media we will study the topics of religion and sports, the spirituality of sports, and sports as a religion.

REL 288. Chinese Religions. 3 Credit Hours.

Over the last generation, China has largely thrown off communist ideology, becoming an economic powerhouse that will shape the 21st century. Alongside economic growth has come a rediscovery and revitalization of its religious heritage. But what is this religious heritage? What makes it unique? What does it offer? And how does this heritage shape China's religious scene today? This course addresses these questions through a survey of Chinese religion focusing on the "Three Teachings"—Confucianism, Daoism, and Buddhism—as well as popular religion. We will examine their development and mutual interaction, attending to their thought and practice as well as their historical and social context. Students will gain not only a familiarity with the religious traditions of China, but also cultivate their ability to think historically and to balance sympathetic and critical understanding.

REL 291. Introduction to Hinduism. 3 Credit Hours.

Sources of Hindu belief and practice date back as early as 1500 BCE, but the mythologies of India harken to time immemorial. The tradition that is now known as Hinduism developed through the rise and fall of empires, the evolution of social hierarchies, and the telling and retelling of colorful stories about heroes and divinities. Today, Hindu practices are part of the landscape not only in India, but in Europe, Africa and the Middle East, Southeast Asia and the Americas, too. Through readings, images and films, this course will introduce the rich and layered diversity of Hindu traditions as well as provide exposure to the methods and theories of Religious studies.

One of the most important developments in modern Buddhism has been the turn toward social engagement and activism. Across Asia and beyond, Buddhist organizations and movements have emerged that consider improving society to be an intrinsic Buddhist concern alongside the classic focus on perfecting the self. Where does this development come from? To what degree is it a departure from previous tradition? How do these movements reconceive and rearticulate Buddhist teachings and practices to address the problems of their societies and the global community? What perspectives does socially engaged Buddhism offer to others movements seeking to address the ills of our time? REL 388. Living Stories: Narrative in Asian Traditions. 3 Credit Hours.

In popular culture, Asian religions are referred to as "Eastern Philosophy." Yet, philosophical doctrine is only one part of Asian religious traditions and for many not the most prominent. Oftentimes narrative, key stories or modes of storytelling, occupies a more central role. But what is that role? How do narratives transmit religious ideas and values and inform ritual life? How do they evolve over time? And how do religious individuals and communities drawn upon them to work in the world? This course will address these questions through a focus on a few narratives selected Asian religions, such as Hinduism, Buddhism, and Confucianism. We will attend to these stories as living phenomena that evolve over time and play a vital role in their communities and also as something that those communities live with as they make their way through the world.

REL 391. Bollywood and Beyond: Religion, Gender and Politics in South Asian Film. 3 Credit Hours.

Themes in Indian society through the lens of Indian cinema – both Bollywood and the regional film industry. The course consists of five modules each lasting between two to three weeks. Module one will situate and frame the entire semester's readings with a discussion of a brief history of Bollywood and regional cinema, their respective reach, influence and limits in framing, valorizing or even critiquing societal and cultural norms. Each subsequent module will open to lecture and discussion with the screening of either a Bollywood film (often an excerpt), regional cinema or a documentary. The important themes that will be covered in the four modules will relate to a) the significance, centrality, fluidity and perversion of caste in Indian society; b) the multiple cinematic and popular representations and framing of the religious epic - the Ramayana. Using multiple visual and textual narratives of the Ramayana we will discuss the place of myths in the construction of politics and society; c) issues of gender and sexuality - studying the shaping of celluloid goddesses and real lives of women, consumption of sex, queering of it and its depiction in film and reception in society; d) Colonial and post-colonial engagement with modernity in India – through the lens of the nation state and its women, as well as the nation and its "others": identity politics based on religious exclusivity, communal and secular anxieties in modern India; and e) Diaspora identities and cultural appropriation of Bollywood cinematic frames and references outside India.

RST 720. Research Ethics. 3 Credit Hours.

Course focuses on topics related to what is sometimes called the "responsible conduct of research" (RCR). It covers the landscape of "scientific integrity" - both the principles and day-to-day practicalities of research ethics. The course is inter-disciplinary in its approach. Readings and other materials used as part of the course draw on the examples from many academic fields, and are intended to have application to any academic or professional area of study in which research is conducted.

RSMAS General (RSM)

RSM 500. Research Diving Techniques. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to introduce students to the practices and policies of scientific diving. The object is to prepare students to use SCUBA as a research tool for the marine sciences. The course content will qualify students as RESEARCH DIVERS under the UM/RSMAS Scientific Diving Program and will meet the standards set by the American Academy of Underwater Sciences (AAUS).

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

RSM 510. Environmental Ethics. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will introduce students to a variety of key issues and concepts in environmental ethics. The course will be a joint scientific and philosophic collaboration, exploring the ethical dimensions of controversial and emerging issues in biotechnology and the environment. After students are exposed to the scientific background of various actual case studies focusing on current environmental and social impact, the ethical and philosophical issues raised by the discussions will be explored using the tools and methods of analytic philosophy. The course will develop the student's ability to construct and evaluate philosophical arguments in the field of environmental ethics, and to reason philosophically on numerous questions in contemporary applied ethics.

RSM 512. Statistics for Environmental Management. 3 Credit Hours.

This course covers the statistical theory, tools, and methods required for management analysis and improvement, emphasizing marine science applications.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

RSM 513. Statistical Modeling of Extreme and Rare Events. 3 Credit Hours.

The course will focus on rare events and extreme values observed in nature. In particular, students will learn: advanced statistical methods of data analysis, as well as concepts of probability and predictability; statistical modeling of rare and extreme events; and applications of these advanced techniques to real atmospheric and oceanic data. Must have taken RSM 512/RSM 612 or equivalent; or calculus; or permission from instructor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

RSM 520. Climate and Society. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to provide students from different disciplinary backgrounds with an overview of physical processes, general concepts and policy debates surrounding climate issues.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

RSM 521. Object-Oriented Programming and Agent-Based Modelling. 3 Credit Hours.

Hands-on training in object-oriented programming using Java, including Java statistical packages, and in the development of agent-based and individual-based simulation models for ecological, physiological, social, economic and physical sciences. Course includes introductions to cellular automata and models based on social and behavioral networks. No prior programming experience required.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

RSM 547. Methods for Marine and Atmospheric Education. 3 Credit Hours.

Will introduce students to recent national science and engineering, climate, ocean education standards, and best curricula and instructional approaches for teaching and learning science.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

RSM 548. Management and Leadership in Marine and Atmospheric Science. 3 Credit Hours.

The goal of this course is to become an effective leader/manager while leveraging the individual strengths of a team in the marine and atmospheric field. The course will use leadership theories and case studies to understand how decisions affect outcomes. Students will develop the ability to manage teams effectively amidst a changing world. Students discuss literature and case studies to explore the foundations of effective leadership and support task triage, decision-making, shared mental models, and appropriate executive styles. The course will introduce students to recent national science and engineering, climate, and ocean standards and best approaches when it comes to managing a staff in the marine and atmospheric sciences. The course will also focus on identifying and analyzing marine and atmospheric leadership and effectively communicating scientific topics to different audiences.

RSM 560. Investigating Nature through Science Teacher Active Research (INSTAR) in Physical Science. 2 Credit Hours.

This is a graduate level marine science course that provides a hands-on approach to education focused on geological and meteorological research in South Florida environment. The course provides training in marine science content, field techniques, state-of-the-art field, computer technology, and science educational reform measures. Participants work collaboratively with marine and atmospheric scientists to bring cutting edge marine science content and research to the classroom focusing on the following coastal themes: geology, hydrology and meteorology. The course will be applicable to all graduate and qualified undergraduate marine science students, per-service teachers in colleges of education, and in-service teachers in school systems throughout the country.

This course is intended to introduce students to key biological, ecological, oceanographic, and climatic processes of direct relevance to fishery species, with a view toward development of an ecosystem perspective.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

RSM 566. Polar Science. 3 Credit Hours.

The course covers the physical, chemical and biological components of the polar oceans, atmosphere and coastal regions. The interactions between ocean, ice, atmosphere and land are discussed in detail not only in terms of local relationships, with links to the climate system.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

RSM 567. Motorboat Operator Certificate Course. 1-2 Credit Hours.

The MOCC course was developed and formalized by the United States Department of the Interior in the early 1990's. The course is designed to give students broad academic knowledge and practical training running small boats (Boats 26' in length or shorter). In addition to the relevant theory, students will get hands on training trailering small boats, launching and loading at boat ramps, slow and high speed maneuvering, Marline Spike (knot tying), as well as in water emergency training and the use of flares and pyrotechnics. The MOCC certification is the training standard for occupational small boating and used by government organizations, public and private research organizations, public aquaria, etc. The certification is a marketable skill for students moving ahead in their careers in marine science.

RSM 650. Data Management in the Research Environment. 2 Credit Hours.

This course covers theoretical and practical approaches to research data management in academic contexts. Theoretical aspects include overviews of information science, data policy and data governance. The practical approaches include skills and best practices in research data management, and basic command line computing for data analysis and visualization (python and R). The purpose of the course is to increase research productivity, to enable data stewardship, and to help the student exceed data management expectations/requirements in the research environment. This is a practical methods course with tangible products; students produce a data management plan for their specific research endeavor, or prepare and deposit data into a discipline specific repository (other projects subject to instructor approval will be considered). The class is open to all graduate students in all disciplines. There are no prerequisites and while the course is designed for the first or second year of a graduate program, students who are further along will benefit as well.

Sociology (SOC)

SOC 101. Introduction to Sociology. 3 Credit Hours.

The scientific study of society and several sociological concepts, including, but not limited to: social theory, social research, social economy, social interaction, social class, social construction, gender stratification, race and ethnicity, family, and deviance. This course will help students to examine the social world around them using the sociological imagination. Students will learn how to connect research to concepts, deepening their understanding of the social world and social phenomena and develop critical thinking skills.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

SOC 103. Social Problems. 3 Credit Hours.

Sociological theories and methods will be used to interpret data, evaluate social policies, and analyze the manner in which ideologies perceive and frame problems. This course will develop critical thinking skills necessary to assess social problems, as well as the ability to recognize, exercise, and develop one's agency to address these issues.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 210. Introduction to Social Research. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides students with an overview of the social science research process and introduces them to the various methodological strategies used by social scientists. The various steps by which research is conducted will be examined such as study design and implementation, data collection and interpretation of findings. Students will also be able to critique the strengths and limitations of difference research methodologies.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

SOC 211. Quantitative Methods for Sociologists. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to introduce students to descriptive and inferential statistics used in sociology, criminology, and other social sciences. We will cover measures of central tendency and variation, probability distributions, hypothesis testing, and bivariate techniques such as correlation and an introduction to regression.

Prerequisite: SOC 101, 210. Corequisite: 212.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

SOC 212. Quantitative Methods Lab. 1 Credit Hour.

Statistical lab associated with SOC 211 introduces the use of computer statistical packages for analyzing quantitative data.

Prerequisite: SOC 101 and SOC 210 And Corequisite: SOC 211 or PSY 291 or PSY 292.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

SOC 270. Deviant Behavior. 3 Credit Hours.

An introduction to the study of deviant behaviors. We will examine the ways in which deviance is constructed and defined. Major sociological perspectives and theories will be applied in order to understand how they aid in the formation and development of social deviance. In addition, various forms of deviant behaviors will be discussed, including: drug use, sexual deviance, violence, suicide, LGBT issues, inequality and crime. The role of social control will also be examined in terms of how it impacts the way in which deviance is understood in society.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 271. Criminal Justice. 3 Credit Hours.

Provide students with both an introduction to the basics of the criminal justice system and a critical approach to contemporary issues in the field. We will focus on the nature of crime and how it is measured; issues in policing and law enforcement; the judicial system and legal process; sentencing; corrections; and prison life. Throughout the course we will focus on current controversies and debates, including such issues as the war on drugs, racism in the criminal justice system, violent crime rates, and incarceration rates.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 291. Special Topics. 3 Credit Hours.

Content will vary by semester.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

SOC 292. Special Topics. 3 Credit Hours.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

SOC 293. Special Topics. 3 Credit Hours.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 301. Social Organization. 3 Credit Hours.

The focus of this course is formal organizations, with an emphasis on the workplace. The topics that are discussed include theories of work, organizational paradigms, bureaucracy, impact of technology, unionization, and the new workplace. The fundamental theme is how organizational style influences productivity.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 302. Social Psychology: Sociological Perspective. 3 Credit Hours.

The influence of human groups, social processes, and social structures on behavior and self, with some attention devoted to the effect of social interaction on groups, processes, and structures. Topics of study include the development of the self, the process of social interaction, the significance of language, and the social construction of reality.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 303. Social Inequalities. 3 Credit Hours.

An overview of the sociological approach to the analysis of structured socioeconomic inequality (a.k.a. "social stratification") in contemporary American society. In this regard, emphases are placed on identifying trends, causes, and consequences of the distribution of a wide range of material (e.g. income, wealth) and symbolic (status, prestige) rewards in American society.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 304. Dynamics of Poverty in the United States. 3 Credit Hours.

Examines trends in the incidence and causes of major types of poverty among the urban underclass, the homeless, migrant laborers, the working poor. Also explores policy-related solutions.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 305. Globalization and Society. 3 Credit Hours.

Concepts and theories that are currently in use to understand globalization both as a process and as a structure: social aspects and narratives of globalization, and theoretical sociological models as scaffolding for understanding many of the disparate characteristics of globalization.

Globalization as it spans disciplinary division and its understanding: the emergence of novel economic forms and practices as a pivotal driving force for globalization. Human migrations and their consequences on cultural identity and diffusion, and the role of the technology in the creation and consolidation the global world. New and complex structures of socioeconomic inequality at national and at transnational levels, the disproportionately important roles that women play in these new structures of inequality, and the social forces and movements that have emerged to resist globalization or to alter it in important ways.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

SOC 306. Wealth and Poverty in Contemporary America. 3 Credit Hours.

The causes and consequences of rapidly changing patterns of concentration of socioeconomic resources, such as wealth and income in America. This changing concentration is associated with the proliferation of impoverishment and privilege in America. Analyzes macro-economic changes, demographic shifts, technological advances, and evolving ideological postures as sources of these trends.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

SOC 320. Social Epidemiology: Illness and Death in Society. 3 Credit Hours.

Social epidemiology and the sociological study of health and longevity. Specifically, this course examines the ways in which key sociological variables structure, shape, or patterns the health and longevity of the US population. This course covers several variables of sociological interest, including socioeconomic status, race/ethnicity, sex/gender, age, family status, and religion.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

SOC 321. Applied Health Policy. 3 Credit Hours.

The role of public and private institutions in health promotion, health care delivery, and health insurance. We will explore the theoretical and practical reasons for intervention in health-related decisions and health care markets, the related empirical evidence, and the effects of these interventions on health outcomes and social welfare. Students will understand how and why government and society in general attempts to influence health-related behaviors and health insurance markets, and the resulting effects on individuals' choices, expenditures, health outcomes, and overall quality of life.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

SOC 332. Collective Behavior. 3 Credit Hours.

Classical theories, issues, and research on fads, fashions, riots, crowd behavior, social movements and other forms of collective behavior.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 335. LGBTQ Communities. 3 Credit Hours.

Gender, race, age and class differences in the experiences of gays and lesbians. A life-span perspective guides the course after the presentation of some background of biological, psychological, and sociological theories pertaining to homosexuality.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

SOC 340. Sociology of Religion. 3 Credit Hours.

Social foundations of religion, growth and change within religious institutions and relationships of religion to other institutions.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 341. Social and Cultural Change. 3 Credit Hours.

Survey of major theories of change; analysis of the processes and mechanisms of change. Contemporary transitions in the underdeveloped regions of the world.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 342. Contemporary Latin American Societies. 3 Credit Hours.

Social characteristics of Latin American societies and their comparison with North American society.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 345. Population and Society. 3 Credit Hours.

Demographic analysis of fertility, mortality, sex-age structure, migration, urbanization and population control.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 350. Sociology of the Family. 3 Credit Hours.

A critical investigation of the family while applying sociological theories, perspectives, and concepts, based on current research in the field. As the family is an important institution in social life, and one in which we have all experienced in some way, we will see that there is not "one" particular way of experiencing this institution. The various definitions and versions of the family will be addressed historically, with an emphasis on how they are shaped by public perception. In addition, more recent trends in family life will be addressed, including cohabitation, marriage, divorce, parenthood, family policy, family structure, and marginalized family types.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 351. Business and Society. 3 Credit Hours.

The influence of business objectives, values, and ethics on American culture, moral standards, and societal institutions. A careful analysis of the choices made by individuals, companies, and governments will demonstrate that sensible "choice architecture" can successfully nudge people toward better decisions without restricting their freedom of choice. Specific topics include: corporate social responsibility; ethical issues in business; business and government in a global society; business and public policy: the corporation and the natural environment; business and technological change; and business relationships with consumers and employees.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 352. Sport and Society. 3 Credit Hours.

The status position and role of sport in society. Our primary focus will be upon delineating and analyzing sport as a major social institution in American society. Thus our perspective will be that of the sociologist (i.e., critical more in analysis than in judgement) rather than that of a sports journalist or sports fan. We shall examine both amateur and professional sports in terms of their interlocking relationships with each other and with other major social institutions (e.g., education, economics, and politics) as well as their significance for promoting and maintaining cultural values such as competition, fair play, teamwork, gender roles, and the like. The objective is to provide students with critical assessment and analytical skills for examining and understanding the impact of sports on both individuals and society.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 359. The Sociology of Human Sexuality. 3 Credit Hours.

A socio-historical survey of sexual ideologies, attitudes and behavior in human societies, with emphasis on social and biological factors.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 365. Internship. 3 Credit Hours.

Exposure to and insight into the operations of community non-profit or government based social service agencies. The course involves prearranged study and supervised work in a variety of organizations and institutions, affording students the opportunity to use their sociological imagination while providing a "hands-on" sociological experience in the local community.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: DIS.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

SOC 368. Violence in America. 3 Credit Hours.

Issues relevant to the study of violence in the United States will be covered. While the emphasis throughout will be on street violence (i.e., homicide, robbery, rape, and aggravated assault), other forms (e.g., corporate violence, intimate partner violence) will also be covered. In particular, we will: Examine violence in historical, international, and situational contexts, examine the major explanations of violence, and examine the factors associated with violent crime. We will also consider how we seek to control violence in the U.S.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 369. Crime and Public Policy. 3 Credit Hours.

The dimensions and causes of the crime problem in America, and the uses and limits of the criminal justice system in dealing with it. We will examine the enormous expansion of the American prison system in recent years, and ask how much it has affected the crime rate. Additionally, we will consider a variety of possible strategies for preventing or controlling so-called "street" crime, both within the criminal justice system and beyond it-including prevention and rehabilitation programs as well as expanding social and economic opportunities. Along the way, we will pay particular attention to several controversial issues, including the death penalty, drugs, and gun control.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

SOC 370. Juvenile Delinquency. 3 Credit Hours.

Application of sociological perspectives and concepts to examine juvenile delinquency and the juvenile justice system. The course takes into account the various social factors that shape juvenile delinquency and its control, such as race, ethnicity, socioeconomic status, gender, and sexuality. In addition, students will take a critical view of the policies developed to control such behavior.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

SOC 371. Criminology. 3 Credit Hours.

The concepts of crime and criminal law, reviews several theoretical approaches to studying crime and criminal behavior, and focuses on several types of crime. In particular, it includes such topics as definitions of crime, sources of crime statistics, correlates and causes of crime, terrorism, genocide, corporate crime, and cybercrime.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

SOC 372. Criminology: Police and Community. 3 Credit Hours.

A study of policing in U.S. society. Interaction with groups and institutions. The overall objective of this course is to provide students with an understanding of the role of the police in American society. The source will focus on the sociological study of policing, not professional training to become a police officer. Students will gain a better understanding of the history of the police, their role in American society and in the American system of criminal justice. In addition, students will discuss and critique important issues and trends in modern policing

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Summer.

SOC 373. Criminology: Courts and Society. 3 Credit Hours.

The importance of the criminal courts and the impact that the criminal courts have on society. You will gain a realistic sense of what it is like to work in and be a part of the criminal justice system. The roles and responsibilities of the major courthouse players will be discussed. You will discover the challenging situations that judges must navigate as well as the difficulties that confront prosecutors and defense attorneys as they deal with victims, defendants and crushing caseloads.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 374. Criminology: Corrections. 3 Credit Hours.

Corrections in the U.S. society; philosophies of rehabilitation, punishment, and incapacitation.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 375. Sociology of Mental Health and Illness. 3 Credit Hours.

An introduction to sociological theories and research regarding the definition, experience, and treatment of mental illness.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 377. Sociology of Drug Abuse. 3 Credit Hours.

Application of sociological perspectives and concepts to examine drug use and abuse. The course examines the historical and theoretical understanding of the social causes and consequences of drug use, as well as the correlates of use and abuse. The course also takes a critical perspective of the policies developed to reduce the harms associated with drug use and abuse.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 378. Criminology: Law and Society. 3 Credit Hours.

How law, crime, and justice systems in the United States relate to social structure. The course covers two major themes: lawmaking (and how it relates to lawbreaking) and the justice system.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 380. Sociology of Gender. 3 Credit Hours.

The phenomenon of gender in society using sociological theory and research. Topics of focus include the social construction of gender, gender identity, and gender discrimination within various social institutions such as the family, the educational system, the media, the world of employment, and more.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 381. Aging in Society. 3 Credit Hours.

The aging processes, the aged and social institutions; special issues.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 382. The U.S. Jewish Community. 3 Credit Hours.

Application of minority group analysis to the U.S. Jewish community.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 383. Sociology of Education. 3 Credit Hours.

The examination and analysis of education as a major social institution. As such, this course assesses the structure, processes, and interaction patterns within the educational system. All levels (elementary, secondary, and postsecondary), and types (public and private) of education are considered. The course also examines the impact of education on social stratification, social mobility, and socioeconomic inequality, especially along race, gender, and class lines.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 384. Medical Sociology. 3 Credit Hours.

A brief early history, methods, theory and concepts of social science research on health and health care mainly from the last half of the previous century to the present. We will explore gender, race, class, age, social and cultural differences in the experiences of individuals as they deal with health and illness across the life course. The course will provide students with a sociological analysis of a broad array of health/illness issues and the health services industry.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 385. U.S. Latinos. 3 Credit Hours.

Sociological perspectives are employed in the examination of the historical, social, economic, and cultural experiences of Latino/as in the United States.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 386. U.S. Immigration. 3 Credit Hours.

The major sociological debates in the field of immigration with an emphasis on recent immigrants to the U.S.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 387. Race and Ethnic Relations. 3 Credit Hours.

The nature and dynamics of race and ethnic relations with particular emphasis on racial and ethnic groups in the United States. We examine basic concepts and major theories in the analysis of race and ethnic relations, racial and ethnic inequality, past and recent immigration experiences, and the historical and current status of specific racial and ethnic groups. Students will also be engaged in a variety of exercises designed to develop critical assessment and analytical skills for examining and understanding issues related to race and ethnicity.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

SOC 388. The Black Ghetto in Urban Society. 3 Credit Hours.

The origin and development of the concept of "ghetto" and application of this concept to both past and contemporary-views of black life in America. Students are introduced to the historical and social significance of the black ghetto in the context of the larger body of literature on the ghetto phenomenon. Emphasis is placed on gaining an understanding and developing critical insight into issues and prospects for the resolution of issues related to black ghettoization.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

SOC 389. The Black Athlete in White America. 3 Credit Hours.

The impact of racism on sport in the United States with a specific focus on the Black athlete. Drawing upon the literature on race and sport in America, the course takes a historical view of the social context in which black athletes have competed and excelled in their craft against tremendous odds both inside and outside of sport competition.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

SOC 390. Directed Studies. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Individually supervised readings or research on special topics offered by arrangement with instructor.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 391. Special Topics. 3 Credit Hours.

Content will vary by semester.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

SOC 401. Sociological Theory. 3 Credit Hours.

The work of theorists such as Comte, Durkheim, Marx, Weber, Parsons, and symbolic interactionists. The epistemology, methodology, and social ontology of each theory is discussed, along with the social context and chief concerns of each theorist.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

SOC 410. Social Research Practicum. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Each student will work directly with a designated faculty mentor to obtain general research training, data analysis techniques, and technical writing skills. As part of the research practicum, students will work in collaboration with their faculty mentor to prepare a journal-length research manuscript and assemble related research materials to gain practical knowledge of the scientific research process. This one-on-one experience will also enhance students' training in sociology and provide them with useful analysis and writing skills when they enter the job market.

Prerequisites: SOC 101 and SOC 210 and SOC 211 and SOC 212.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

SOC 470. Theories of Deviant Behavior. 3 Credit Hours.

Various theories of causes of deviance/crime. It begins with an overview of the early classical and positivist foundations of criminological thought and then moves on to discussing more recent extensions of social disorganization, strain, control, social learning, and other contemporary theories of crime. It also covers the role of theory in scientific research, familiarizes with the foundations of current theoretical debates in criminology, and introduces the empirical research on the reviewed theories.

Prerequisite: SOC 101 and SOC 371.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

SOC 480. Health Disparities in the U.S.. 3 Credit Hours.

A comprehensive examination of U.S. health disparities based on a variety of social variables, including race and ethnicity, gender, socioeconomic status, sexual orientation, and the environment. In doing so, this course will draw on theoretical perspectives from multiple disciplines to examine the relationship between social factors and health outcomes. The most pressing U.S. health disparities will be discussed and put into a historical and global context in order to identify priorities for the elimination of health disparities. After exploring the known and suspected causes of disparities in health outcomes, attention will turn to an overview of the common multi-level strategies used to reduce health disparities. Students will go away with a broad-based understanding of current health disparities issues and the ability to critically examine these issues.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

SOC 487. Race, Ethnicity, and Criminal Justice. 3 Credit Hours.

An in-depth examination of the relationships involving race, ethnicity, immigration, crime, and the criminal justice system. We will consider why these are important issues to study, how and what we know about these relationships, and how we might explain them. We will direct attention to research on defining race and ethnicity, racial and ethnic variations in criminal victimization and offending, population distributions, policing, the court system and sentencing, corrections, and the death penalty. Our approach will primarily be sociological, although where appropriate we will draw from other disciplines (e.g., political science, history, etc.) as well. Prerequisite: Six credits in Sociology.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

SOC 488. Gender and Crime. 3 Credit Hours.

Examination of gender, power, and crime, including feminist theories and the criminal justice system.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 490. Directed Studies in Sociology. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Supervised independent study on special topics. Arrangement with individual faculty.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

SOC 491. Special Topics. 3 Credit Hours.

Prerequisite: SOC 101.

SOC 498. Senior Honors Thesis in Sociology or Criminology I. 3-6 Credit Hours.

Independent research project.

Prerequisites: SOC 101 and SOC 210 and SOC 211 and SOC 212.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

SOC 499. Senior Honors Thesis in Sociology or Criminology II. 3-6 Credit Hours.

Independent research project.

Prerequisites: SOC 101 and SOC 210 and SOC 211 and SOC 212.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

SOC 601. Classical Sociological Theory. 3 Credit Hours.

The focus of this course is the work of Comte, Durkheim, Marx, Weber, and Parsons, along with more recent perspectives such as symbolic interactionism, phenomenology, ethnomethodology, and critical theory.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 602. Contemporary Sociological Theory. 3 Credit Hours.

Recent developments in social theory, such as, for example, the work of Giddens, Habermas, Derrida, Bourdieu, Baudrillard, and Lyotard, along with important themes such as feminism, integration, the linguistic turn, habitus, (anti)foundationalism, and symbolic violence.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 603. Special Topic: Sociology of Knowledge-Science and Technology. 3 Credit Hours.

To address the debates over the nature of social science and technology. In addition to the theoretical disputes, the applications, critiques, and politics of scientific inquiry and technology use will be the focus of attention.

Requisite: Graduate Standing.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

SOC 604. Proseminar in Sociology. 1 Credit Hour.

Introduction to Sociology: the research process, departmental resources, and the graduate program.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

SOC 609. Social Statistics. 3 Credit Hours.

Probability theory, descriptive statistics and tests of independence.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 610. Advanced Research Methods. 3 Credit Hours.

Quantitative techniques for the measurement of theoretical constructs, the consequences of technique selection, and the relationships between method and underlying theory.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 611. Advanced Sociological Statistical Analysis I. 3 Credit Hours.

Multiple linear regression and regression diagnostics using Stata, analysis of categorical dependent variables, count dependent variables, simultaneous equations, and panel data models. Some topics may not be covered and others may be added at the discretion of the instructor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

SOC 612. Sociological Statistics II. 3 Credit Hours.

Advanced statistical analysis techniques covering topics such as hierarchical linear models (HLM), structural equation models (SEM), instrumental variables (IV), factor analysis, propensity score matching (PSM), and nonparametric methods. Some topics may not be covered and others may be added at the discretion of the instructor.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 613. Qualitative Research Methods. 3 Credit Hours.

In-depth introduction to qualitative, inductive methods, with emphases on grounded theory and action research. Focus on qualitative interviewing (including focus groups) and participant observation for the collection of data in naturalistic social settings, with simultaneous data analysis; qualitative methods in mixed-methods research introduced. Covers ties between methods and theory, additional basic methods used in qualitative research, and typical analytic approaches; touch on more esoteric methods; study current issues and debates relevant to this set of approaches to generating knowledge.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 614. Evaluation Research. 3 Credit Hours.

Conceptualizing, designing, conducting, and interpreting the results of evaluation research programs in health and human service agencies.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 615. Class Structure and Social Stratification. 3 Credit Hours.

Theoretical and research approaches to class structure and social stratification, with a focus on the U.S. Examines the conflict perspective(s) and major alternative views including economic class, status and power, gender and race.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 616. Social Psychology: Sociological Perspectives. 3 Credit Hours.

Theories and research addressing the mutual influence between social groups and structures, on the one hand, and individual selves and behaviors, on the other. Balance emphasis between symbolic interactionist and structural approaches, with attention to additional related, yet distinct theoretical perspectives.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 617. Social Organization. 3 Credit Hours.

Examines theories of organization and work, discrimination, technology and job design, bureaucracy, productivity and organizational culture, responsible organizations, and alienation.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 620. Social Epidemiology. 3 Credit Hours.

Theories, issues and methods of study pertinent to health and illness in society. Social factors implicated in patterns of disease occurrence.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 622. Teaching Seminar in Sociology. 3 Credit Hours.

Pedagogical techniques for teaching sociology at the college/university level.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

SOC 632. Social Psychology of Health and Illness. 3 Credit Hours.

Social and psychological factors affecting susceptibility to illness, health related beliefs and behaviors, the doctor-patient relationship, and health care systems and patient compliance.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 635. Medical Sociology: Issues in Research and Theory. 3 Credit Hours.

Examination of health, illness, and health care from sociological perspectives. Includes social-structural, interpretive, and critical approaches, as various authors have used these to address specific issues. Phenomena to be examined range from macro (e.g. population patterns of mortality and morbidity, health care policy) to micro (e.g. the subjective experience of illness). Related theories and methodologies discussed. Focus varies somewhat by instructor and as issues emerge in the discipline.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

SOC 636. Health Diversity Across the Life Course. 3 Credit Hours.

Diversity in health across the life course from broad sociological and cross-disciplinary theoretical traditions. Key questions in medical sociology will be addressed to discover the impact of the life course processes on the health or vitality of diverse individuals and diverse populations, with a focus on inequality and the elements of time and history.

SOC 791. Graduate Internship and Paper. 6 Credit Hours.

Internships are intended to provide students with meaningful work experiences related to their professional interests. This is especially the case for students who are not yet employed in positions related to criminology and/or criminal justice. The internship period should provide the student with the opportunity to examine a criminal justice-related agency or organization, its various roles and functions, and to participate in work experiences related to that agency's goals and purposes. The academic goal is to provide integration of theoretical concepts in criminology and criminal justice with the demands and constraints imposed within a professional work role. For students the internship represents an opportunity to achieve this integration and to acquire experience in the area in which they have been academically trained. Students who elect to take the internship and required paper will complete approximately 300 hours of work with an agency and will complete an approximately 30 page paper.

SOC 791 18 hr requirement.

Graduate Studies in Jazz Guitar are designed to take into account each student's talent, previous accomplishments and particular interests. It is expected that a graduate student at the DMA level would be, to a large extent, self-directing and capable of original research. After a careful assessment of the student's strengths and weaknesses, a course of study will be custom-designed, with possible areas of study drawn from (but not limited to) the following list: advanced jazz concepts in melody, harmony and rhythm, sight-reading, repertoire expansion, transposition, technique, composition, and pedagogy. Assistance with recital preparation will be given as appropriate and necessary. The prerequisite for the first level (JGM) is a Master's Degree and the successful completion of the audition for the DMA program.

TAL 371. Race and Racism in the Making of US Public Education. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will examine the roles of race and racism in the social construction of education and schooling in United States, with an emphasis on how said constructions have impacted the lived experiences of marginalized racial and ethnic minorities, with a particular emphasis on Black Americans. The central themes of the course will be how and why schools in the United States of America were constructed and continue to act as sites of State-sponsored racism, paying attention not only to whom this process marginalizes but also whom it benefits. While the focus of the course will be on race, it is impossible to study race alone, in a vacuum. Therefore, a great deal of attention will be paid to issues of intersectionality, with particular emphases paid to the intersections of race and ethnicity, class, gender, sexual identity, geography, historical specificity, and disability. The semester will begin with a historical overview of the roles education and schooling have played in the lives of African Americans. Our starting point will be roughly 1850. It is important to note that the distinction is made between school and education. The course will examine the roles schools (Saturday Schools, public schools, religious schools, and Historically Black Colleges and Universities to name a few) have played, but it is also crucial to examine the roles of education outside of the context of formalized schooling. The course will examine crucial educational sites such as religious institutions and traditions (outside of religious schools), family life, community education, and oral traditions.

TAL 569. Teaching and Management for Diverse Classrooms. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will emphasize building a classroom culture and community that meets the needs of all students, including learners with disabilities and learners with culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds. A history of major legal requirements for diverse populations is examined, including the meaning of learning differences, definitions and causes of disabilities, language acquisition processes, and methods for teaching diverse populations. An introduction to theories and methods of effective classroom management for building learning communities is integrated throughout the course.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 570. Student Teaching in the Elementary School. 9 Credit Hours.

A comprehensive semester-long program in observation and supervised teaching in the elementary school. The student spends full-time in an elementary school participating in all activities of the teacher under the guidance of school and university personnel.

Corequisite: TAL 580.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 572. Student Teaching in the Secondary School.. 6-9 Credit Hours.

A comprehensive program in observation and supervised teaching in the secondary school. The student spends full-time in a secondary school participating in all activities of the teacher under the guidance of school and university personnel.

Corequisite: TAL 580.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 577. Human Development, Learning and Schooling. 3 Credit Hours.

Major theories of child development and learning will be discussed with a focus on how they apply to teaching and learning in K-12 schools.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 580. Seminar on Teaching. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Topical seminar to accompany associate teaching

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 584. Topics in the Professional Development and Supervision of Teachers.. 3 Credit Hours.

Topics include the preparation of clinical teachers to induct, guide, and supervise the field experiences of students and associate teachers; techniques in the observation and supervision of in-service teachers; creation and implementation of professional development plans; reading in the research on teacher development across the career.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 590. Topics in Education. 3 Credit Hours.

Review of emerging policy, practice, empirical research and scholarly writing on important educational issues for which formal course title and syllabus have not been developed and formalized in the UM Bulletin. Allows for experimental instructional formats. Course number indicates appropriate student audience. See Course Notes for specific topic.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 591. Workshop in Education. 1-6 Credit Hours.

A critical study of practical problems of teachers. Significant problems are defined, literature and research are reviewed, and individual or small group projects are required.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 593. Online Teaching and Leadership. 3 Credit Hours.

Introduction to teaching-learning process in online learning environments, including asynchronous modalities, assessment and evaluation, technology and digital copyright usage.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 595. Research Honors Project. 2 Credit Hours.

Faculty mentored research project. This course is restricted to students in the SEHD who have been accepted into the Research Honors Program and are working with a Faculty mentor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 596. Research Honors Project. 2 Credit Hours.

Faculty mentored research project. This course is restricted to students in the SEHD who have been accepted into the Research Honors Program and are working with a Faculty mentor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 597. Research Honors Project - Thesis Writing. 2 Credit Hours.

Faculty mentored research project. This course is restricted to students in the SEHD who have been accepted into the Research Honors Program and are working with a Faculty mentor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 598. Research Honors Project - Seminar. 1 Credit Hour.

Faculty mentored research project. This course is restricted to students in the SEHD who have been accepted into the Research Honors Program and are working with a Faculty mentor.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 599. Workshop in Education. 1-6 Credit Hours.

A critical study of practical problems of teachers. Significant problems are defined, literature and research are reviewed, and individual or small group projects are required.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

TAL 601. Educational Assessment and Accountability. 3 Credit Hours.

This course covers the principles and classroom applications of educational measurement and assessment as well focuses on accountability policies and practices at the school, district, state and federal levels.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 602. Organizational Learning. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides an overview on how organizations adapt and change, including changes that could be thought of as constituting “learning.” Changes in shared values, structures, and practices can facilitate and/or hinder an organization’s capacity to gather, select, and process information, to retain that information, and to act upon knowledge valued and created by members. Emphasis is placed on how participants’ own careers fit within their employment or field-placement sites as learning organizations and how their efforts can help their sites to learn.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 603. Technology Applications in Education. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to help you better understand why and how to use modern technologies in educational settings. Throughout the course, you will identify and share accessible technological resources, participate in hands-on activities, conduct mini-teaching, and create technology-enhanced instructional materials. You will examine the affordances and constraints of a variety of technologies including mobile learning, computer-based visualizations, web-based curriculum platforms, augmented and mixed reality, and online collaboration tools. You will discuss with the instructor and peers critical issues and policy relevant to the effective use of technologies in K-12 classrooms or informal learning environments. As a graduate level course, you will need to conduct a small-scale research that investigates the effectiveness of a technology-enhanced learning environment.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 604. Building Positive Relationships in Inclusive Secondary Schools. 3 Credit Hours.

Designed to assist general education teachers in meeting the needs of diverse secondary school students. Focus on students with disabilities, language and culture in the classroom, and developing culturally competent classroom management methods.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 605. Mentoring and Internship in Classroom Teaching. 3-6 Credit Hours.

A comprehensive program of supervised teaching in elementary or secondary class rooms.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

TAL 607. Instructional Leadership. 3 Credit Hours.

An examination of the components of effective supervision of instruction. Leadership theories which apply to educational settings; legal rights and responsibilities of students, teachers and administrators will be covered. As well as the examination of various models of teaching.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 608. Language Development for Linguistically and Culturally Diverse Students. 3 Credit Hours.

Course will provide an introduction to theories of linguistics, first and second language acquisition, as well as foundations of English learner education. Readings and lectures will serve to highlight the development of language and literacy, including challenges faced by students for whom Standard English is a second language and/or a second dialect. This course will be the first in a two- course ESOL sequence.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 609. Practicum in Reading. 3 Credit Hours.

Supervised practicum in reading and writing. Emphasis is on assessment and interventions for elementary students with a range of academic, linguistic and cultural challenges in becoming proficient readers.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 610. Literacy and Learning Strategies in the Content Area. 3 Credit Hours.

Literacy instruction in content areas for grades 6 through 12; instructional methods and materials for development of language arts, reading, and study skills. Emphasis on appropriate materials, motivation, and support for students with exceptional needs and English language learners.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 611. Topics in the Professional Development and Supervision of Teachers.. 3 Credit Hours.

Topics include the preparation of clinical teachers to induct, guide, and supervise the field experiences of students and associate teachers; techniques in the observation and supervision of in-service teachers; creation and implementation of professional development plans; reading in the research on teacher development across the career.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 612. Building Positive Relationships with Diverse Learners. 3 Credit Hours.

An examination of the principles of various theoretical perspectives of classroom management and discipline. Applications to the management of behavior problems of children and adolescents. Contemporary research analyzed and discussed. Writing intensive course.

Co-requisite: TAL 670.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 613. Prescriptive Teaching of Exceptional Students. 3 Credit Hours.

Techniques for individualization of instruction for exceptional students, including educational prescription, and curriculum adaptation.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

TAL 614. Assessment in Special Education. 3 Credit Hours.

A survey of assessment instruments used to assess and evaluate exceptional students in inclusive and special education settings. Emphasis is on assessments for students in K-12 settings with a range of academic, linguistic, and cultural challenges in becoming proficient learners. Graduate students will complete a research paper using APA writing format.

Prerequisite: TAL 629.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 615. Reading in the Elementary School. 3 Credit Hours.

Extending competencies in teaching reading, including exceptional children in the regular classroom, with emphasis on applying findings from research in reading to classroom practices. 20 hours of field experience required for all students who are not currently teaching.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

TAL 616. Mathematics in the Elementary School. 3 Credit Hours.

Content, methods, and research appropriate for teaching mathematics in the elementary school, including exceptional children in the regular classroom. Content is defined as a pre-algebra mathematics. 20 hours of field experience required for all students who are not currently teaching. Writing intensive course.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

TAL 617. Science in the Elementary School. 3 Credit Hours.

Extending competencies of elementary school teachers in teaching science to children, including exceptional children in the regular classroom. Development of science programs based on research which has classroom applications. 20 hours of field experience required for all students who are not currently teaching.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

TAL 618. Social Studies in the Elementary School. 3 Credit Hours.

Extending competencies in teaching social studies to children, including exceptional children in the regular classroom, with an emphasis on research applications. 20 hours of field experience required for all students who are not currently teaching.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

TAL 619. Exceptional Student Education and Classroom Management. 1-5 Credit Hours.

Introduction to theories and methods of effective classroom management and learning environments, perceptions of disabilities, addressing disruptive behaviors in classrooms and behavioral assessment.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 620. Teaching and Management for Diverse Classrooms. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will emphasize building a classroom culture and community that meets the needs of all students, including learners with disabilities and learners with culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds. A history of major legal requirements for diverse populations is examined, including the meaning of learning differences, definitions and causes of disabilities, language acquisition processes, and methods for teaching diverse populations. TAL 627. Understanding Culture in the Classroom. 3 Credit Hours.

This course explores the conflicts and the strategies for resolution between the patterns of culture in the classroom and the patterns of culture that school children bring to the classroom - patterns which are learned in their families and communities.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

TAL 628. Internship in Special Education Settings. 3-6 Credit Hours.

A comprehensive program of supervised teaching in special education settings. The student spends two full semesters employed as a full-time teacher while under the guidance of school and university personnel.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 629. Educating Exceptional Students. 3 Credit Hours.

A survey course in special education emphasizing characteristics and problems associated with various categories of exceptional learners. Policy, issues, and trends in special education will be discussed.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 630. Instructing Students Who Have Literacy Challenges. 3 Credit Hours.

Administration and interpretation of instructional assessments with instructional strategies and materials based upon scientifically based reading research for the prevention and remediation of reading difficulties.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 631. Assessment of Reading and Related Learning Disabilities. 3 Credit Hours.

Theories and procedures for screening, diagnosis, and progress-monitoring of reading and related learning disabilities. Includes instruction and supervised clinical experiences in administration and interpretation of assessments with an emphasis on prevention, identification, and remediation of reading and related learning disabilities.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

TAL 632. Intervention for Reading and Related Learning Disabilities. 3 Credit Hours.

Theories and procedures for screening, diagnosis, and progress-monitoring of reading and related learning disabilities. Includes instruction and supervised clinical experiences in administration and interpretation of assessments with an emphasis on prevention, identification, and intervention of reading and related learning disabilities.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

TAL 633. Reading Comprehension. 3 Credit Hours.

Development of comprehension, rate, and study skills; reading in the content areas; evaluation of materials, organization of programs; issues, problems, and exceptional readers. Emphasis is placed on understanding reading as a process of student engagement in fluent decoding of words and construction of meaning.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

TAL 634. Language and Reading Instruction. 3 Credit Hours.

Extending competencies of K-12 school teachers in teaching reading to children, including exceptional children in the regular classroom. Emphasis on applying findings from research in reading and writing to classroom practices.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 635. Inclusive Models of Teaching. 3 Credit Hours.

This course focuses on models of inclusion and the educational roles to support student success in inclusive settings. Topics addressed include: differentiated staffing patterns; working as a member of team; successful collaborative practices; effective communication; including differentiation of instruction and application of principles of Universal Design for Learning (UDL); co-teaching; strategies for working effectively with students, families, parents, guardians, administrators, general education teachers, paraprofessionals, and other professionals, including students, families, and team members; and creating school partnerships.

Prerequisite: TAL 629. And TAL 614.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 636. Universal Design for Learning and Assistive Technology Strategies for Transition. 3 Credit Hours.

This course focuses on evidence-based interventions and models of support for students with disabilities in K-12 settings and strategies for preparing students for transition from school. Topics addressed include: strategies for using Assistive Technology effectively; strategies for enhancing self advocacy and self determination for students with disabilities; strategies for enhancing family involvement in career development and post school employment; transition services and models; preparing students with disabilities for employment and postsecondary education; residential alternatives; recreation and leisure for students with disabilities.

Requisite: Graduate Standing.

Components: LEC.

TAL 637. Field Experience Seminar I. 0 Credit Hours.

This hybrid zero credit course has been designed to provide additional support for students in our teacher preparation programs. Students will enroll in this course while they participate in a series of field experiences where they gain practical experience integrating theory and practice while working with students in K-12 settings. Major topics include: the Florida Educator Accomplished Practices, Live Text, and guidelines and procedures.

Corequisite: TAL 612.

Components: SEM.

Grading: CNC.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 638. Language Arts and Culture in the Classroom. 3 Credit Hours.

Extending competencies in the language arts including linguistic and cultural diversity and children with disabilities in elementary classrooms. Emphasis on research applications. 20 hours of field experience required for all students who are not currently teaching. Writing intensive course.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

TAL 639. Field Experience Seminar II. 0 Credit Hours.

This hybrid zero credit course has been designed to provide additional support for students in our teacher preparation programs. Students will enroll in this course while they participate in a series of field experiences where they gain practical experience integrating theory and practice while working with students in K-12 settings. Major topics include: the Florida Educator Accomplished Practices, Live Text, and guidelines and procedures.

Co-requisite: TAL 606.

Components: LAB.

Grading: CNC.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 640. Typical and Atypical Child Development. 3 Credit Hours.

Theories and research in the development of children from conception through eight years of age. Factors which influence development and the relationship of typical development to patterns of delayed and atypical development. Writing intensive course.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

TAL 641. Working with Families of Young Children with Disabilities: Strategies and Medical Issues. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will address issues related to working with families of young children with special educational and health needs. This will include strategies for effective communication and collaboration with all members of the interdisciplinary team. This is a writing intensive course.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

TAL 642. Evaluation and Assessment in Infant and Early Childhood Special. 3 Credit Hours.

Students will become familiar with a variety of formal and informal screening, evaluation, assessment instruments, and procedures currently in use with children birth to eight. They will learn criteria for selecting and using developmentally and culturally appropriate instruments and become familiar with the multi-, inter-, and trans-disciplinary team approaches. Students will write formal reports and develop an IEP and an IFSP. May require field experience.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

TAL 643. Intervention Strategies in Infant and Early Childhood Special Education. 3 Credit Hours.

The focus of this course will be the implementation of IEPs and IFSPs through the use of developmentally appropriate curriculum, methods, and intervention strategies for infants, toddlers, and young children with special needs. This will include implementation and adaptation of existing curriculum and materials for young children to meet the special needs of this population. May require field experience. Writing Intensive course.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

TAL 644. Early Childhood Curriculum Development. 3 Credit Hours.

Development of curriculum for children from birth to eight years of age. Emphasis on application of research findings. 20 hours of field experience required.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

TAL 645. Methods for Communications and Language in Young Children with Disabilities. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will focus on language theories, models, and methods for birth-eight year olds. The course will present an overview of normal development in communication and discuss conditions that might impede progress as well as signs that would suggest a problem is present. This course may require field experience.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

TAL 646. Working with Children who Exhibit Challenging Behaviors. 3 Credit Hours.

Challenging behaviors in young children; influences of culture, language, ethnicity; applying Response to Intervention in Preschool settings; evidence-based classroom and behavior management strategies; planning intensive individualized interventions; applying positive behavioral support.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 647. Language and Early Reading Instruction. 3 Credit Hours.

Factors related to emergent literacy with an emphasis on diverse aspects of language that influence literacy and learning; development of emergent literacy and word perception; emergent literacy curriculum development; appropriate assessment and instructional techniques. Understanding of reading as a process of student engagement in fluent decoding and construction of meaning. Writing intensive.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

TAL 648. Practicum/Internship with Infants and Toddlers with Disabilities. 3 Credit Hours.

A comprehensive program in observations and supervised teaching in a school/center for infants and toddlers with disabilities (0-3 yrs.). The student spends full time in the school/center participating in all activities of the teacher under the guidance of school and university personnel.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 649. Practicum/Internship with Children with Disabilities (3-5 yrs.). 1-6 Credit Hours.

A comprehensive program in observation and supervised teaching in a school/center for children with disabilities (3-5 yrs.). The student spends full time in the school/center participating in all activities of the teacher under the guidance of school and university personnel.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 650. Early Reading Instruction and Literature for Young Children. 3 Credit Hours.

Study of literature for young children emphasizing multicultural literature and use of literature across the curriculum. Development of emergent literacy; examination of emergent literacy curriculum as well as appropriate assessment and instruction techniques. Emphasis on understanding or reading as a process.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 651. Affective, Relational, and Cultural Factors and Processes in Learning. 3 Credit Hours.

This course explores the impacts of non-cognitive factors on learning and the inter-relationships among what are usually thought of as cognitive and non-cognitive spheres of learning. At times, there may be conflicts between cultural practices as found in learning settings (including classrooms, businesses, and informal learning environments) and the practices into which learners have been enculturated by families and communities; at other times, an individual's identity and the values being imparted in a learning environment may work synergistically. The course includes a critical examination of the sources of these factors on human and organizational learning programs and practices.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 652. Assessment of Human and Organizational Learning. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides an overview of the assessment of learners in educational, business, work place, and informal settings, with an emphasis on considerations related to cultural and linguistic diversity. Topics include classroom-based assessment, high-stakes assessment in educational settings, testing for job placement and certification, and program evaluation. Among the assessment techniques to be covered are cognitive interviews, the analysis of group-based processes, discourse analysis, and focus-group work.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 654. STEM Methods for Diverse Learners. 3 Credit Hours.

Research-based instructional practices and processes to meet the needs of all learners, including diverse populations, for mathematics/science education in schools.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

TAL 655. Applied Linguistics. 3 Credit Hours.

In-depth study of phonology, morphology, syntax, semantics and pragmatics of spoken and written discourse and the application to second language acquisition theories. Issues of nonstandard dialects and creoles as well as their impact on literacy challenges will be discussed. Globalization of English and linguistic imperialism will be addressed.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 659. Practicum in Education and Social Change. 3 Credit Hours.

This practicum course is the culminating project for the Education and Social Change Master's Program. Participants will review the literature, design, and present an action project within the context of a school or community setting.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

TAL 660. Instruction and Assessment in the Secondary School.. 3 Credit Hours.

Research-based instructional processes in the secondary school.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 661. Instruction in Secondary English.. 3 Credit Hours.

Analysis of methods, materials, and content appropriate for teaching language arts in the secondary school.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 662. Instruction in Secondary Mathematics. 3 Credit Hours.

Analysis of methods, materials, and content appropriate for teaching mathematics in the secondary school.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 663. Instruction in Secondary Science. 3 Credit Hours.

Analysis of methods, materials, and content appropriate for teaching science in the secondary school.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 664. Instruction in Secondary Social Studies. 3 Credit Hours.

Analysis of methods, materials, and content appropriate for teaching the social sciences in the secondary school.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 665. Methods of Teaching in the Elementary School. 3 Credit Hours.

Theories and research-based practices for reading/language arts, science, social studies, and math instruction for all learners, including diverse populations in elementary classrooms.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 666. Introduction to the Politics of Education, Teaching, and Learning. 3 Credit Hours.

Survey overview of political debates involving education as a nested and loosely-coupled system where pressures at one level can be supported or countermanded at another. Historical and critical take on present-day debates. Depending on student interests, may go in-depth on topics such as economic politics, cultural politics, state and local control.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall.

TAL 667. Education Reform, Policy, and the Social Organization of Schooling. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to introduce students to the politics and policy debates in American education, including how the U.S. K-12 public education is organized as a socially-constructed system. We will examine the politics of a variety of recent reforms at the local, federal and state levels and their impact on institutions, students and the public.

Components: LEC.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 668. Human Development, Learning and Schooling. 3 Credit Hours.

Major theories of child development and learning will be discussed with a focus on how they apply to teaching and learning in K-12 schools.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 669. Teacher and Student Well-Being in Education. 3 Credit Hours.

This will be an intensive, 600 level course specifically designed for students taking the Master's degree in Education and Social Change. The main thrust of the course will be to link theory and research on personal, organizational, and collective well-being with educational success and school reform. Well-being is a positive state of affairs, brought about by the simultaneous satisfaction of personal, relational, organizational, and community needs. In this course we will examine the signs, sources, and strategies of well-being in individuals, relationships, organizations and communities. The course will focus on applications of theory and research to the well-being of students, parents, teachers, and schools. We will explore the organizational well-being of schools and the policy changes needed to improve the linkages between community development and educational success of children living in poverty. Some of the questions that will be explored in the course include: What is well-being? How is your personal well-being related to the well-being of other people, organizations, and communities? What is the role of values in promoting a just society? What strategies might work for engaging relevant constituencies in educational and social change? The course will be divided into five sections as follows:

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 670. Teacher Preparation Seminar I. 0 Credit Hours.

This hybrid zero credit course has been designed to provide additional support for students in our teacher preparation programs. Students will enroll in this course while they participate in a series of field experiences where they gain practical experience integrating theory and practice while working with students in K-12 settings. Major topics include: the Florida Educator Accomplished Practices, Live Text, and guidelines and procedures.

Corequisite: TAL 612.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 671. Curriculum, Assessment, Teaching and Learning for Physical Science. 3 Credit Hours.

Analysis of content knowledge, pedagogy, and materials appropriate for teaching physical science, K-16. The course content focuses on instructional practice with an emphasis on developing teacher content knowledge in physical science, pedagogy, and student literacy in physical science.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 672. Curriculum, Assessment, Teaching and Learning for Number, Operations, and Algebra. 3 Credit Hours.

This course examines topics that address the mathematical ideas underlying number, operations and algebra. Related K-16 curriculum, instructional and assessment issues will be also discussed.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 673. Curriculum, Assessment, Teaching and Learning for Measurement and Geometry. 3 Credit Hours.

Topics involving measurement and geometry in the K-16 mathematics curriculum, how students learn and reason, assessment, instructional strategies.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 674. Internship in the Elementary School. 3-6 Credit Hours.

A comprehensive program of supervised teaching in a K-6 classroom in the elementary school. The student spends a full semester employed as a full-time teacher while under the guidance of school and university personnel.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 675. Curriculum, Assessment, Teaching and Learning in the Earth Sciences. 3 Credit Hours.

Analysis of content knowledge, pedagogy, and materials appropriate for teaching Earth science, K-16. The course content focuses on instructional practice with an emphasis on developing teacher content knowledge in Earth science, pedagogy, and student literacy in life science.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 676. Curriculum, Assessment, Teaching and Learning for Data Analysis and Probability. 3 Credit Hours.

Data in the K-16 mathematics: how to gather (biased and unbiased samples), store, manage, represent, analyze. Probabilistic inferences in K-16 mathematics: chance, odds, counting, related topics.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 677. Applied Research in Education. 3 Credit Hours.

A graduate course in bilingual education emphasizing different research methods educators and researchers can utilize to gauge and improve student learning.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 679. Teacher Preparation Seminar II. 0 Credit Hours.

This hybrid zero credit course has been designed to provide additional support for students in our teacher preparation programs. Students will enroll in this course while they participate in a series of field experiences where they gain practical experience integrating theory and practice while working with students in K-12 settings. Major topics include: the Florida Educator Accomplished Practices, Live Text, and guidelines and procedures.

Co-requisite: TAL 606.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 680. Foundations of Bilingual Education. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will focus on the historical foundations of bilingual education in the U. S., current models of bilingual or dual language programs in PK-12 school settings, and contemporary understandings of bilingualism/biliteracy development using sociolinguistic and sociocultural perspectives.

Components: DIL.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 681. Principles of Curriculum Development and Engagement for TESOL. 3 Credit Hours.

Components of curriculum and instructional management and engagement in ESOL classrooms. Pupil/teacher interaction, curriculum organization, student assessment and evaluation, materials development and adoption, utilization of resources, and classroom organization.

Requisite: Graduate Standing.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 682. Methods of Teaching Content Areas in TESOL. 3 Credit Hours.

This course examines subject matter education for English language learners (ELLs) in the K-12 and international English as a foreign language (EFL) settings. Best practices are investigated and applied within different teaching contexts with a focus on helping students gain access to core subject knowledge.

Requisite: Graduate Standing.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 683. Introduction to Theories and Practice of TESOL. 3 Credit Hours.

Theory and practical methodology of language and literacy instruction and assessment to children, adolescents, and adults for whom English is not their first language, in alignment with current state, national, and professional standards (as applicable). There will be a focus on inquiry into instructional approaches based on contemporary theories of learning, standards-based and data-driven lesson planning, and reflective practices in the teaching and assessment of English learners.

Requisite: Graduate Standing.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 684. Advances Techniques in TESOL. 3 Credit Hours.

This course addresses advanced techniques in TESOL. The course focuses on methods and approaches for teaching English language learners and specific strategies to deliver instruction in the content areas.

Requisite: Graduate Standing.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 685. Language Assessment. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will familiarize students with the nature of and current methodologies of language assessment within a framework of psychometric and linguistic.

Requisite: Graduate Standing.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 686. Principles of First and Second Language Acquisition. 3 Credit Hours.

This course will familiarize students with the principles and processes at work in the acquisition of first and other languages. The course focuses on similarities and differences in the ways that first and second languages are learned and factors that influence the learning process for both.

Participants will become familiar with current research related to language acquisition through course lectures, interactive course activities and individual as well as collaborative presentations.

Requisite: Graduate Standing.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 687. Home Language Strategies. 3 Credit Hours.

As a culminating course in the Bilingual/Biliteracy program track, this course will review theories in bilingual development, sociolinguistics, and language teaching in Spanish to build Spanish language proficiency for dual language teachers. There will also be an emphasis on communicating with Spanish-speaking parents of K-12 English learners.

Requisite: Graduate Standing.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 689. Language and Literacy for Academic Learning. 3 Credit Hours.

This course introduces key concepts and practical teaching approaches for learning the academic literacies needed to be successful in school contexts. Review of language theories and research concerning teaching academic literacy for education are highlighted throughout the course and embedded within disciplinary contexts for different subject areas (i.e., mathematics, social studies/history, English language arts, and science). Linguistic pedagogy is a central focus of the course to examine applications of language theory in K-12 classrooms serving English learners.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 690. Topics in Education. 3 Credit Hours.

Review of emerging policy, practice, empirical research and scholarly writing on important educational issues for which formal course title and syllabus have not been developed and formalized in the UM Bulletin. Allows for experimental instructional formats. Course number indicates appropriate student audience. See Course Notes for specific topic.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

TAL 691. Workshop in Education. 1-6 Credit Hours.

A critical study of practical problems of teachers. Significant problems are defined, literature and research are reviewed, and individual or small group projects are required.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 692. Curriculum, Assessment, Teaching and Learning for the Life Sciences. 3 Credit Hours.

Analysis of content knowledge, pedagogy, and materials appropriate for teaching life science, K-16. The course content focuses on instructional practice with an emphasis on developing teacher content knowledge in life science, pedagogy, and student literacy in life science.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 700. Professional Seminar. 1 Credit Hour.

The TAL Pro-seminar consists of a series of interactive sessions at which faculty, doctoral students, and guest speakers have the opportunity to discuss current topics in education research. Its purpose is to enhance the culture of scholarship and collegiality within the Department and to provide informal guidance to doctoral students on research and career directions in education.

DOCTORAL STANDING.

Components: SEM.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 701. Teacher in American Society. 3 Credit Hours.

An historical, philosophical, and sociological analysis of the teaching profession in American society. The role and status of teachers in American culture will be discussed. Contemporary issues such as the union movement, status assignment, rewards and incentives, and the role of the teacher as an instrument in the definition of the culture will also be covered.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

TAL 702. The Social and Cultural Foundation of Education. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is an interdisciplinary seminar reviewing the major literature in the Social and Cultural Foundation of Education. Classic, Modern and Post-Modern texts will be read with an emphasis on the literature written after 1980 (Post-Modern). Emphasis will be placed on the exploration of key policy questions, as well as the analysis of key sociological concepts related to the field such as hegemony, cultural reproduction, social capital and privilege. The course is intended to provide a "baseline" for understanding the field.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 703. Issues and Trends in Multicultural Education. 3-6 Credit Hours.

The study and critical examination of the theory and practice of multicultural education. Development of a personal theory of effective education for pluralism is included.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 704. Introduction to the Learning Sciences. 3 Credit Hours.

In this course we will explore perspectives and research on domain-specific and domain-general learning in and out of schools, especially those typically considered in the field of the Learning Sciences. We will examine various perspectives researchers use to inform their work and how these perspectives provide insight into what it means to learn and know. The course objectives include the following: -Understand key questions addressed in research on learning -Understand foundational and modern theories and perspectives in learning -Understand how various learning theories are applied in domain-specific/general research contexts and their limitations -Develop and articulate your own perspectives and research questions on learning.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 705. Design of online learning environments. 3 Credit Hours.

This course provides an overview of technology applications in learning environments, including history, theoretical foundations, design processes, and available technologies. The course includes an exploration of online learning applications/software, instructional design considerations, and curriculum development for online settings. Topics could include multi-literacies, digital youth network, media and connected learning, web-based learning, AI and machine based learning models.

TAL 704 OR TAL 600.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 706. Design of Formal Learning Environments. 3 Credit Hours.

This course on instructional design provides an overview of theoretical approaches to learning that can be used to analyze learning environments, of learning goals for creation and sequencing of learning activities, and of how resources can be deployed in support effective learning. Topics can include the use of theoretical learning trajectories, tenets and applications of universal design, and social support and intellectual scaffolds for learning.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 707. Design for workplace related learning. 3 Credit Hours.

This course deepens participants' understandings of workplace training and professional development by relating learning to needs assessments; instructional design techniques; program planning, marketing, and delivery techniques; and evaluation of adult learning programs within a variety of organizational settings. Emphasis is placed on constructing training and professional development programs that are meaningful to a diverse workforce and that achieve individual and organizational outcomes to improve an individual's and the organization's performance.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 708. Design of Out-of-School, Informal Learning. 3 Credit Hours.

This graduate seminar focuses on learning concepts and practices in and out of formal (school) instructional settings. People learn across a variety of places and over their entire lifespans; much of this learning is elective or interest-driven, in the sense that people voluntarily engage in activity in order to learn. In this we course, we consider how learning is organized within and across a variety of informal settings, including state and national parks, museums, theater organizations, zoos, aquariums, sports teams, one-on-one performance coaching, after school programs, non-profit community centers, in families or home environments, in virtual or online social spaces, and even in interactions between medical personnel and their clients. This course will include ties to sociocultural theories of development and learning as applied to out-of-school, informal contexts. The course provides a review of new empirical research and an overview of theoretical approaches to learning that can be used to analyze informal learning environments. The course will involve theoretical and empirical readings with group discussion, but also visits from and to people who are involved in learning in informal settings.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 709. Applied Research and Development in Learning Sciences - Seminar I. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Students define and conceptualize a group-based project on learning within their particular employment settings. Groups will develop and implement a plan for a well-focused first effort. The project and its results may be submitted as a digital artifact making use of multiple media in a single language (such as English, French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese or Chinese) by a team where that language was used to implement the plan and where its use will facilitate the project's completion. Each individual member of the team submits a paper defining their unique contributions to the project in such a way that it is clear that the work built upon and drew from course work in the Learning Sciences. Individual contributions must be substantive and should be complementary. Projects must be approved by advisor before it is implemented; if a language other than English will be employed, it must also be approved by faculty who will review and evaluate it.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 710. Introduction to Research. 3 Credit Hours.

This graduate course focuses on diverse philosophies and epistemologies of research and the various methodologies that arise from them. Students will develop an understanding of and appreciation for a range of complementary educational research traditions. The goal is to enable students to participate meaningfully and critically in multiple discourse communities that employ and/or produce research bearing on substantive local, national, and international issues in education.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 711. Video Analysis Methods. 3 Credit Hours.

Video-based data has become ubiquitous in educational research. This methods course is designed to facilitate learning how to use video-based research methods in educational research. Despite the growing interest in video-based approaches, we are still beginning to theorize about various points of view when collecting and analyzing video data. There are practical questions about collecting video data and a growing number of software programs to support data analysis. The goal of this course is to learn about video-based methods for data analysis by critically engaging with how others do video analysis and by doing it collectively in the classroom and individually in a final paper.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

TAL 712. Applied Research and Development in the Learning Sciences - Seminar 2. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Students build upon, (re)define, (re)conceptualize, (re)develop and (re)implement their group-based project from TAL709 by using the research methods employed in its evaluation. The advanced project and its results may be submitted as a digital artifact making use of multiple media in a single language (such as English, French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese or Chinese) by a team where that language was used to implement the plan and where its use will facilitate the project's completion. Each individual member of the team submits a paper defining their unique contributions to the project in such a way that it is clear that the work built upon and drew from course work in the Learning Sciences. Individual contributions must be substantive and should be complementary. Projects must be approved by advisor before it is implemented; if a language other than English will be employed, it must also be approved by faculty who will review and evaluate it.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 720. Research in Residence - Masters. 1 Credit Hour.

Masters-degree and Ed.S. students enrolled for credit as determined by advisor. Credit awarded when thesis is accepted.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 730. Topics in Language and Literacy Learning. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Review of emerging policy, practice, empirical research and scholarly writing on important educational issues for which formal course title and syllabus have not been developed and formalized in the UM Bulletin. Allows for experimental instructional formats. Course number indicates appropriate student audience.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 731. Language Policy and Planning (K-12). 3 Credit Hours.

The course focuses on the areas that have been of particular interest to sociolinguists and language planners, namely, status planning, corpus planning, prestige planning, language-in-education planning, the language rights of linguistic minorities and the more recent movements from macro issues on language policy and planning (LPP) to micro issues involved in indexing linguistic, ethnic and racial identities. In addition, the course will address matters of migration, imperialism, state formation and political conflicts due to LPP in the United States as well as in countries in Latin America, the Caribbean, Africa, Asia and Europe.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 732. Seminar in Reading. 3 Credit Hours.

Seminar providing intensive study of contemporary topics in reading. Open to advanced graduate students in reading.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 734. Theory and Research in Reading. 3 Credit Hours.

This course explores the intellectual roots of theories of reading and how these are used to generate testable research hypotheses about linguistic, psychological, social, and cultural factors that influence and sustain reading development and reading performance. The course surveys works that have influenced research and theory in the field of reading from its inception in the early 1900's—through the work of experimental psychologists such as Huey—to present times. The readings and lectures will include work that represents the influence of the intellectual traditions of the introspectionists, behaviorism, cognitive psychology, constructionism, socio-cultural theory, and cognitive neuroscience.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 735. Theory and Research in Writing. 3 Credit Hours.

Seminar that explores the complementary relationship between reading and writing through the reading and analysis of theoretical and research literature on writing theory and writing instruction.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 736. Pidgins, Creoles and African-American English in Sociolinguistic Research. 3 Credit Hours.

The course examines the typology of languages that emerged in North and South America as well as in the Caribbean as a result of sociolinguistic contact between European languages and west African languages, namely, pidgins, creoles and African-American English. The course also examines current debates on the extent to which the superstrate and substrate languages as well as the principles of Universal Grammar and the Language Bioprogram Hypothesis have contributed to the linguistic structures of Atlantic Pidgins, Creoles and African-American and Creole cultures are explored. Additionally, the course addresses the sociolinguistic research that advocates dialect diversity and the affirmation of vernacular languages as a means of social and educational reform.

Requisite: Graduate Standing.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

TAL 752. Seminar in Reading/Learning Disabilities. 3-12 Credit Hours.

Contemporary topics in reading and learning disabilities. Rotating topics and faculty. Open only to advanced graduate students in reading and learning disabilities pursuing specialist or doctoral degrees. Specialist students enroll for a total of six hours, and doctoral students for a total of 12 hours. Course may be repeated for a total of 12 credits. Subtitles describing the topics to be offered will be shown in parentheses in the printed schedule, following the title.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 753. Cognitive Psychology in Special Education. 3 Credit Hours.

Learn about different cognitive theorists and discuss various theoretical positions as to their strengths and weaknesses within and across theories. Address theory refinement over time and the application of theory to research practice. Review literature in a systematic manner and write an integrated and purposeful review of research. Develop a research proposal that is theory-based. Participate in the peer review process.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 754. Disability and Diversity: Critical Views. 3 Credit Hours.

Examines critical issues in the cultural/historical conceptualization of the field of special education against the background of cross-cultural views of disabilities.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 755. Current Issues in Special Education. 3 Credit Hours.

Current issues and trends in special education from historical, societal, policy, practice, and research perspectives. Topics may include identification, referral, and eligibility; inclusion and Least Restrictive Environment; parent involvement; participation of students with disabilities in high-stakes testing; cultural/linguistic diversity; the disproportionate placement of minorities; and teacher qualifications, certification, and education.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 756. Research in Special Education. 3 Credit Hours.

Critical analysis of empirical research studies in selected areas of special education research, focusing on research designs, data analysis methods, and interpretation of findings.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 757. Seminar in Special Education. 3-12 Credit Hours.

Study in special interest areas in special education. May be taken for up to 12 credits.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 758. Topics in Special Education. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Review of emerging policy, practice, empirical research and scholarly writing in important educational issues for which format course title and syllabus have not been developed and formalized in the UM Bulletin. Allows for experimental instructional formats. Course number indicates appropriate student audience. See Course Notes for specific topics.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 770. Topics in STEM Education. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Review of emerging policy, practice, empirical research and scholarly writing on important educational issues for which format course title and syllabus have not been developed and formalized in the UM Bulletin. Allows for experimental instructional formats. Course number indicates appropriate student audience. See Course Notes for specific topics.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 772. Instructional Design and Technology in STEM Education. 3 Credit Hours.

This course is designed to help you take an engineering approach in instructional design, development, and evaluation in STEM education. The course focuses on instructional systems development with a particular emphasis on technology-enhanced K-12 STEM education environments. We will develop an in-depth theoretical understanding and practical skills of instructional design and technology.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 773. STEM Teaching and Teacher Education. 3 Credit Hours.

Advanced and specialized topics in research on the teaching and learning of science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM) including the development of teachers across their careers, professional development, design experiments, and teacher-learning in and out of school.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 774. STEM Learning. 3 Credit Hours.

Provides an overview of the historical roots and current state of the learning sciences, as they apply to the study of learning in science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM). Organized around reading, discussion and synthesis of research.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 775. STEM Curriculum and Policy. 3 Credit Hours.

Study of mathematics and science curricula, with the inclusion of engineering and technology as applied science and mathematics. Study of the competing forces that shape curriculum including standards documents, state and national policy, conceptions of the disciplines, modern and postmodern analyses of curriculum theory.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 776. Assessment in STEM Education. 3 Credit Hours.

Overview of the theoretical and research frameworks for student assessment in science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM). Topics include classroom-based assessment, testing for high stakes and other purposes, national and international comparisons in mathematics and science achievement and factors impacting on STEM-related persistence and careers.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 777. STEM-Education Research Practicum. 3 Credit Hours.

Defining an empirical or theoretical research issue, arguing for its importance; framing the study based on related research; designing, implementing and documenting appropriate research methods; reporting and interpreting the results; writing and submitting a manuscript – in the fields that comprise STEM-education.

Components: PRA.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 778. Diversity and Equity in STEM Education. 3 Credit Hours.

Issues of unequal student achievement, course taking, degree-seeking, and careers that rely on science, engineering, technology and mathematics (STEM). Focus is on social-demographic groups defined along lines of race, ethnicity, social class, gender language, and their interactions. Historical and social antecedents, current day policies and practices, extant research consequences and future trends.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 790. Advance Topics in Education. 3 Credit Hours.

Review of emerging policy, practice, empirical research and scholarly writing on important educational issues for which formal course title and syllabus have not been developed and formalized in the UM Bulletin. Allows for experimental instructional formats. Course number indicates appropriate student audience. See Course Notes for specific topic.

Components: SEM.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 793. Advanced Individual Study. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Individual work on a special project under faculty guidance. Application for Admission to Advanced Individual Study form will be required.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 794. Advanced Individual Study. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Individual work on a special project under faculty guidance. Application for Admission to Advanced Individual Study form will be required.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 796. Practicum/Internship: Elementary Exceptional Student Education Classroom. 1-6 Credit Hours.

A comprehensive program of observations and supervised teaching in an elementary exceptional student education classroom. The student spends full time in the classroom participating in all activities of the teacher under the guidance of school and university personnel.

Components: LAB.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 801. Advanced Individual Study for Doctoral Students. 1-3 Credit Hours.

Individual work on a special project under faculty guidance. Application for Admission to Advanced Individual Study form will be required.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 810. Master's Thesis. 1-6 Credit Hours.

The student working on his/her master's or Ed.S. thesis enrolls for credit. In most departments no to exceed six, as determined by his/her advisor.

Credit is not awarded until the thesis has been accepted.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 815. Post-Candidacy Thesis Research. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Masters-degree and Ed.S. students enrolled for credit as determined by advisor. Credit awarded when thesis is accepted.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 825. Continuous Registration - Master's Study.. 1 Credit Hour.

To establish residence for non-thesis master's study who are preparing for major examinations or working on culminating project. Credit not granted. Regarded as full time residence.

Components: THI.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 830. Pre-Candidacy Dissertation Research.. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Doctoral students enrolled for credit as determined by advisor. Credit is awarded when dissertation is accepted.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 835. Doctor of Education Dissertation. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Required of all candidates for the Ed.D. The student enrolls for credit as determined by his/her advisor. Credit is not awarded until the doctoral project has been accepted. Total enrollment may not exceed 12 credits.

Components: LEC.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Offered by Announcement Only.

TAL 840. Post-Candidacy Dissertation Research.. 1-12 Credit Hours.

Doctoral students enrolled for credit as determined by advisor. Credit is awarded when dissertation is accepted.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

TAL 850. Research in Residence. 1 Credit Hour.

Doctoral students enrolled for credit as determined by advisor. Credit awarded when dissertation is accepted.

Components: THI.

Grading: SUS.

Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, & Summer.

TAL 862. Principles of Curriculum Development and Classroom Management for TESOL. 3 Credit Hours.

Components of curriculum and instructional management in ESOL classrooms. Pupil/ teacher interaction, curriculum organization, student assessment and evaluation, materials development and adoption, utilization of resources, and classroom organization will be covered.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

TAL 878. Teaching in the Elementary School (YR). 3-6 Credit Hours.

A comprehensive year-long program in observation and supervised teaching in the elementary school. The student spends full time in an elementary school participating in all activities of the teacher under the guidance of school and university personnel following the calendar of the school system.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Spring.

Theatre Arts (THA)

THA 101. Introduction to Theatre. 3 Credit Hours.

Intro survey course in theatre--what it is now, how it works, its practitioners and the relationship of theatre to the contemporary world. Attendance at Ring Theatre productions is required.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

THA 102. Introduction to the Audition. 2 Credit Hours.

Students will learn the methods and techniques used to create a successful performance audition. The student will learn how to choose appropriate audition material and how to rehearse the material for an effective and professionally-minded audition.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

THA 103. Introduction to Theatre Crafts. 1 Credit Hour.

Students will learn the techniques and methods used to create costumes, scenery and stage properties for theatrical productions. Lectures and hand-on projects will allow students to practice their skills in scenic construction, scenic painting, sewing, and costume crafting.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Summer.

THA 104. Performance Practicum. 3 Credit Hours.

Students will be cast in and rehearse a performance piece with a stage director. Students will learn effective methods for memorizing text and best professional practices in their collaboration with the director and artistic team. The piece will be performed in front of a live audience at the end of the course.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Womens and Gender Studies (WGS)

WGS 201. Introduction to Women's and Gender Studies. 3 Credit Hours.

Conceptions of masculinity and femininity; gender relations; gender inequalities; the intersections of gender with other categories of identity such as class, race, sexuality, and stages in the life cycle; and the broad impact of gender on society.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

WGS 202. Introduction to LGBTQ Studies. 3 Credit Hours.

Introduction to the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender and Queer Studies minor. The LGBTQ Studies program is designed to allow students to explore sexuality and sexual minorities from a variety of perspectives. The course will provide students with an introduction to a broad array of LGBTQ issues including visual and performing arts, literature, languages, history, social science, various theories, public policy and the law, families and other types of intimate relationships, crime, popular culture, and LGBTQ identities and communities. It will be a core to the LGBTQ minor. The history of LGBTQ Studies extends to the beginnings of the LGBTQ movements of the last third of the previous century. Today, the field addresses work in a broad range of scholarly disciplines including biological and cultural studies, in literature and anthropology, in the health sciences, history, and the visual arts. It ranges from archival research to the elaboration of queer theory, from the analysis of constitutional law to questions of public health, from the study of popular culture to investigations into the development and social construction of sexual identity. Students are usually only exposed to these studies at the upper division levels of the curriculum in disparate departments. An introductory course will make these upper division courses more accessible and meaningful, as well as serve as the basic core to the minor in LGBTQ studies.

Components: LEC.

Grading: GRD.

Typically Offered: Fall & Spring.

WGS 210. Popular representations of Queer sexualities. 3 Credit Hours.
